THE NEW CORPORATIONS

In Union County 142 Companies Were Formed in a Year.

THE CAPITALIZATION $6,656,100.

Forty-seven Have Principal Offices at Elizabeth and Thirty-one Here—Some Statistics as to Them.

Union county is the home of many corporations. During the past year, or from September 1, 1909, up to today, there have been 142 new corporations formed in the county. Of this number forty-seven give their principal office address as Elizabeth, while thirty-one have offices in Plainfield. The rest are scattered about the county, Rahway, Summit, Westfield and Cranford having quite a number. The aggregate total authorized capital stock of all the corporations organized in the county during the year is $6,656,100.

Of these new corporations, thirty-five are clubs and various other organizations not formed for pecuniary benefits. During the year Elizabeth has had fifteen such associations incorporated, while Plainfield has had four.

Real estate and manufacturing are the aims of most of the new corporations. During the year thirty-one real estate and brokerage firms were incorporated in the county. Seven of them have offices in Elizabeth while eight are located in Plainfield. There were also twenty-nine manufacturing concerns incorporated in the county. The products of these manufacturing companies vary from machinery to the making of teddy bears and mechanical toys.

There were seventeen concerns dealing in merchandise incorporated during the year. Five of these companies are in Elizabeth, while six are in Plainfield.

Some interesting data regarding these new corporations may be obtained at the office of County Clerk Calvert, where the certificates are filed preparatory to being sent to the Secretary of State's office.

With the increase in the number of concerns in the county comes also an increase in the number of building and loan associations and banks, which is regarded as an evidence of prosperity. There were five savings institutions and building and loans incorporated in the county during the year. Four new religious organizations, two of them churches, were incorporated, which shows that the county is growing in religious as well as in business strength.

Other concerns incorporated during the year were three automobile companies, a water company, a steam laundry, a live stock company, two newspapers, five contracting companies, one hotel and six express and transportation companies.

THREW STONES AT TRAIN; THREE BOYS ARRESTED.

Three boys were captured by Marshal Eugene Lewis, of the Roselle police force, and Detective Percival F. Hughes, of the Central Railroad, yesterday morning while throwing stones at a train on the Central Railroad.

The boys were brought before Judge Noah Woodruff at 12 o'clock, and gave their names as George and Elmer Dingfeldt, aged 10 and 12, respectively, of Sixth avenue, and Frank Holland, of Westfield avenue, Roselle Park.

The boys were severely reprimanded by Judge Noah Woodruff, and told that if caught throwing stones at trains or any other property in the borough they would receive the full penalty.

Funeral of F. W. Hanaford.

The funeral services of the late Francis W. Hanaford, who died suddenly Tuesday morning, were held this afternoon from his late residence on East Sixth street, at 2:30 o'clock. Rev. Elory G. Bowers, the curate of the Grace P. E. church, officiated. The services were largely attended by many of Mr. Hanaford's friends and by representatives of the Royal Arcanum and Delta Phi fraternity, of which the dead man was an active member. The interment was made in the Scotch Plains cemetery.

Judson Arnold, rector, performing the ceremony in the presence of a large number of relatives and friends.

The bride was attended by her sister, Mrs. Eunice McCracken, of Union Hill, Hudson county, as matron-of-honor, and Alfred Liewald, of this city, brother of the groom, was best man. A reception followed the wedding at the home of the bride's parents.

The couple will reside at Woodcliffe, Hudson county, near which place the groom is employed. He is well known here, where he has a large number of friends.

MR. FOWLER ABSENTEE RECORD IN CONGRESS

Washington, D. C., Sept. 1.—If what Representative Charles Newell Fowler, of the Fifth, New Jersey, congressional district, said in the course of a speech at Plainfield, N. J., last Thursday night, is true, it is more than probable that history would record that Congress had not been in session for some years. The Insurgent candidate, appealing for help in his district, is reported to have proclaimed on that occasion that "I have not been following the Republican party, the Republican party has been following me." Here are some figures that show, most fortunately, that the nation's lawmakers have not been following the disgruntled and ambitious marble quarryman:

Fifty-ninth Congress, first session—roll calls, 100; answered, 21; unanswered, 79; years, '05-'06. Second session—roll calls, 34; answered, 18; unanswered, 16; years, '06-'07.

Sixtieth Congress, first session—roll calls, 272; answered, 121; unanswered, 151; years, '07-'08. Second session—roll calls, 44; answered, 7; unanswered, 37; years, '08-'09.

Sixty-first Congress, first session—roll calls, 36; answered, 19; unanswered, 17. Second session—roll calls, 114; answered, 37; unanswered, 77.

PEACHES TOO PLENTIFUL JERSEY FARMERS REPORT

The peach crop, on which so many of the farmers depend, is this year a failure, says a report from Whitehouse, not because the peaches are poor or few, but because they are so abundant that it will not pay to ship them to market. Only the very best will sell for enough to pay the freight, and the farmers are selling them as fast as they can at the best prices obtainable to get them off their hands before hope of marketing them at all has departed.

The best price for middling fruit on the trees in Hunterdon county is 17 cents a basket. Ninety cents has been obtained occasionally for the best. Never in the history of the State have the orchards borne so abundantly as this year.

From 40 to 85 cents a basket is the prevailing price for the best peaches at Annandale. One farm shipped 1,500 baskets yesterday, and it is estimated that it will market 15,000 by the time the season has closed. No attention is being paid to the poorer fruit. The market is so glutted that it does not pay to ship any but the best.

AGAINST HOBBLE SKIRTS.

Woe is to be the portion of any woman of Groveville, N. J., who dares to add to her wardrobe so much as one gown with a hobble skirt, for the edict has gone forth from the sanctum of the Rev. Peter Henry, pastor of the First Reformed church of that place, that none such can enter the portals of the edifice over whose destinies he presides. Further than that the reverend gentleman decalares that any woman who would so debase herself and her sex as to wear such a sartorial travesty should be spanked.

Mr. Henry characterizes the women wearing hobble skirts as "walking balloons," "lunatics" and "godless ones."

BOY SCOUTS HOME AGAIN

ENJOYED THE EXPERIENCE.

Each Scout Lived on Thirty Cents a Day; Cooked His Own "Grub" and Slept in a Tent—Just Like Real Indians.

The local party of Boy Scouts returned this morning from its two weeks' encampment at the Ernest Thompson Seton experiment camp on Silver Bay, Lake George, N. Y., all tired out from their long trip but tanned and happy. The camp was a great success and the out of door simple life, which the boys led while at the place, was beneficial to them in every way.

There were a hundred boys in the camp from all cities in the United States and the entire company was in charge of Ernest Thompson Seton, the noted author and forwarder of nature's charms. The camp was run as an experiment in the Boys' Scout movement, which has taken a strong foothold in this city and has been the means of the formation of William D. Murray Council here, named in honor of William D. Murray of West Ninth street, who has taken a deep interest in the work.

The boys lived for two weeks in Indian style, sleeping in tepees and cooking their own food. There were eighteen tepees in the encampment, five boys living in each one. The would-be Indians were supposed to exist on thirty cents worth of food a day for each one. But the clear air of Lake George and the numerous branches of exercise made the Plainfield lads go far beyond that limit.

After rising at an early hour in the morning, the boys spent the day almost as they pleased, keeping out of doors all the time. The swimming in the lake was perfect and the canoeing was romantic, according to the local youngsters. Several long walking trips were taken and the boys climbed Black Mountain, the highest point in the vicinity of Lake George. Baseball and other sports were indulged in at the camp where the Plainfield boys showed up well.

Th food was purchased by each individual boy from the general store at Silver Bay and each boy was his own chef, waiter and dishwasher. At night a grand council was held to which everybody was supposed to be present. The Plainfield boys took a prominent part in these meetings.

Needless to say the local delegation was a jolly one and each member of it said that he had had the time of his life. The boys were ably managed by Chauncey R. Murphey, of Watchung avenue, who acted as the director and chaperon of the group. Mr. Murphey said that he had his hands full with his charge at times but the boys were a credit to the city in the way they took hold of the camp life.

Among those in the local party party were: Chauncey Murphey, Cedric Ostrum, William Thompson, Schuyler Line, Frank Dunning and Murdock Hetfield, all of this city. Julian Hovey as a member of the party, from Washington.

"FRITZ" HARDING RETURNS; PLANS TRIP TO EUROPE.

"Fritz" Harding, who was formerly an operator at the local Western Union Telegraph Company office, has returned from a trip to Chicago and Denver. At the former place he met his brother, John Harding, whom he had not seen for seventeen years, and the latter failed to recognize him at first.

Mr. Harding is a prosperous business man in Chicago. Although he had a good time on the trip and liked the West, Mr. Harding said Plainfield was good enough for him. Next month he will leave for Europe with his mother, to be gone several weeks.

Identified by Former Plainfielder.

William Sullivan, formerly of Truell Hall, but now of Cranford, was largely responsibe for the identification of Vera Fitch, the young woman who shot herself in the Hotel Astor, Monday night, and who is now reported to be in a critical condition at Flower Hospital, New York. She was identified last night as the daughter of the late Col. Henry S. Fitch, U. S. A., of Oakland, Cal. Her sister is Mrs. Roy W. Conger, whose husband is a nephew of the late Edwin H. Conger, formerly minister to China.

English Setter Lost.

Attention is called to an advertisement in today's Daily Press of a lost English setter, bird dog, belonging to A. G. Hooley, of 17 Rockview Terrace. The dog answers to the name of "Belle," and the advertisement gives full particulars as to the particular markings of the dog.

VEGETABLE THIEVES NOW

LEGITIMATE GROCERS PUZZLED.

This City Apparently Free From Alleged Night Prowlers, Some are Wondering.

Considerable wonder has been expressed recently owing to the disparity which has existed between the prices charged for vegetables by the reputable grocers and those charged by some of the itinerant peddlers. It has been alleged in several quarters of Union county that vegetables handed out from the peddlers' wagons were not the legitimate property of the vendors.

Allegations are coming from several quarters that a certain gang of vegetable peddlers have taken nocturnal trips abroad and have tendered their accumulations of freshly plucked goods to their customers at prices which it would not pay local dealers to handle.

The latest example of the depredations of these marauders is cited in Elizabeth. There appeared, yesterday, a statement from one of the grocers in that city which has opned the eyes of the grocery world to the speculations which have been puzzling the farmers who cultivate the stuff.

It is alleged in the plaint from the eastern edge of the county that vegetable thieves have been doing a thriving business during the past six weeks and that the sum total of the thefts amount up into the thousands of dollars.

In the story from Elizabeth the thieves take the darkest part of the night in which to make raids on nearby and distant truck farmers and then take the shortest route to dispose of their stolen goods. The strange part of the whole affair is that the peddlers are considered to be honest by their customers and the latter purchase their fresh fruit and vgetables believing that they are buying from those who follow the business in a legitimate manner.

So far as known, there are no parallel cases in this city, but the police are going to keep a wary eye open for possible robbers. Several small farms have been completely stripped of their farm products during the past several weeks.

BAG OF JEWELS A FOOTMAT

Left in a Hack and Overlooked by All Until Owner's Return.

A hackman unknowingly carted around in his rig for two hours, Tuesday night at Asbury Park, a bag that contained a diamond necklace, two sunbursts, several diamond pins, a rope of pearls, a dozen rings and other jewelry said to be worth several thousand dollars.

The jewels are the property of the Misses Ruth and Grace Reddy, of Chicago, who arrived Tuesday night at the Colonial hotel in Eighth avenue, Asbury Park, and in the excitement of the greeting from friends left their jewel bag in the hack, where it was for two hours a footmat for several fares the cabby had in the meantime.

While dressing the Misses Reddy missed their jewels. A search for the carriage was made and it was located and the bag found in it. The hack driver received numerous fares for his unwitting care of the bag.

MODEL CITY TO BE FIREPROOF.

Mrs. Sage Establishes Testing Station for Forest Hills Materials.

An experiment station for the testing of fireproof building materials has been established by Mrs. Russell Sage, at Sewaren, in connection with her "model city" project. The purpose of this undertaking at Forest Hills, Long Island, is to enable men of moderate means to live in comfort, owning their own homes, with gardens and plenty of fresh air.

The construction of the "model city" has just been started with two houses of terra cotta. They are to have walls, floors and paritions of the same kind of hollow briks as are used for fireproofing New York skyscrapers. It is the intention of those in charge of the Forest Hills building operations to have all the houses made absolutely fireproof in their structural parts.

Improvements at Franklin School.

Some much needed improvements are being made at the Franklin School, toilets being built for the school. Heretofore the toilets were located in the Stillman school building, which adjoins the Franklin School. The new toilets are to be in separate outbuildings, which are now under construction. The work will be completed within a few days.

A PLAYGROUNDS SOCIAL

PRAISE FOR THE MONITORS.

More than two hundred children enjoyed the lavish refreshments provided for them yesterday afternoon at the final function of the playgrounds. Parents who were prevented from attending the dances on the previous day appeared in numbers yesterday and entered into the spirit of the event with some of the enthusiasm of the children. Mothers, who had not had the time to see what was being accomplished by their offspring during the heated weather had a chance to see yesterday what had been accomplished by Miss Moe and others who have had the children in charge.

Dances of the old folk character were performed on Tuesday afternoon. As was told in the Daily Press yesterday, the dances were executed with the accompanying voices of the children, and with the utmost precision. Some of the mothers present yesterday were: Mrs. Gildersleeve, Mrs. Weissman, Mrs. Kiely, Mrs. Vail, Mrs. Wilson, Mrs. Scherer, Mrs. Reubenstein, Mrs. Dugan and Mrs. Ord.

The girls who took part in the folk dances were: Maude Feale, Marion Gildersleeve, Marguerite Price, Ida Butler, Edna Strauss, Ruth Carder, Bessie McGoldrick, May Burke, Sadie Hart, Elsie Hart, Lilan Ryno, Loretta Kneiff, Thora Vail.

The boys who amused the audience with their tumbling on the big platform and who seemed to disdain the hard surface were Daniel Kiely, George Gildersleeve, Raymond Sherer, Randall Rubenstein, Edwin Dugan, Robert Bowers and the three sons of Rev. Mr. Tilden, Rufus Clifford and Calvin. Others were Richard Cass, Truman Sharp and Harold Wilson.

The monitors to whom much of the credit is due for the discipline maintained at the grounds during the summer are: Ethel Runyon, Helen Weissman, Maude Morris, Eva Little, Mildred Clark, Frederick Quentin and others.

There appears to be doubt as to the value of the public playgrounds and they had an enthusiastic endorsement yesterday.

Noted Army Speaker Coming.

Colonel J. Dean, head of the Salvation Army Training College, New York, will visit this city Saturday and Sunday and conduct services for the local corps. Col. Dean succeeded Colonel A. A. He recently returned from the International Training School of the Army in London, and has had a wide experience in Christian work in many lands. It is expected that Mrs. Dean, who is a sweet singer, will accompany the colonel.

ALLEGED ROBBER HELD FOR GRAND JURY ACTION

John T. Porter, colored, of Watchung avenue, was held under $100 bonds by City Judge William N. Runyon, this morning, to await the action of the grand jury. Porter is accused of having robbed Herman Overland, Jr., of a pair of shoes and a pocket book containing $2.

When arraigned Porter declared that he had bought the shoes from William Johnson, a barber, and that Johnson was the man who actually committed the robbery. He said that when he and Johnston had passed the sleeping man once they retraced their steps and finally decided to rob the sleeper and divide the proceeds.

The story told by Johnson differs in many respects from that told by Porter and flatly contradicts some of the essential facts. It is said by the police that Johnson has always borne a good reputation and that it is hardly likely that his connection with Porter was in any way criminal.

TWO BICYCLES FOUND; STOLEN IN WESTFIELD

Bicycle thieves of the kind which manage to deceive everybody as to their maneuvres got away with two wheels from people in Westfield yestrday afternoon, but evidently becoming alarmed after riding as far as Terrell road, decided to abandon the bicycles.

At 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon Chief of Police O'Neill, of Westfield, notified local headquarters that two wheels had disappeared from the golf links and that it was supposed they were being ridden toward this city by two boys employed in the neighborhood. Chief Kiely immediately despatched two patrolmen on bicycles to intercept the supposed thieves, but they were not found. At 7:30 Chief O'Neill telephoned again that a report had been received by him that two bicycles answering the descriptions of the two missing ones had been offered for sale near Fanwood. Both wheels were ridden by colored boys.

This morning Patrolman Sweeney brought in a wheel which he had picked up in front of 159 East Front street, evidently abandoned. Some time later John Kiederling brought in another which he found in the bushes near Wolf's Hill. Both wheels proved to be the missing ones from Westfield.

It is believed that the police will be able to round up the two boys who stole the machines.

BUSINESS COLLEGE FALL TERM BEGINS

The Plainfield Business College re-opened this morning for the fall term and, despite the inclement weather, the attendance was large, there being a considerable gain over last year. There will be a still further increase in the attendance on September 6, by which time a number of young people will have returned from their vacations.

This marks Prof. A. S. Herr's sixth year as proprietor and principal of the local college, and its growth during the past five years has been remarkable. It can only be attributed to the integrity of the management, the high educational standing of the school and the earnestness of purpose which Prof. Herr has displayed in his efforts to make the Plainfield Business College a real factor of educational life in this community.

That the work of the school is appreciated, is evidenced by its growth and the general sentiment of the people of this vicinity for the highest standard of education, whether it be along the lines of classical or, as in the case of the Plainfield Business College, real, practical, character building education.

NEW PHYSICAL DIRECTOR

HE SUCCEEDS G. L. LISTMAN.

New Man Has a Reputation as an Athlete and as an Organizer—All the Staff Have Returned to Their Work.

Thomas B. Whittaker, who was elected by the Board of Directors of the local Y. M. C. A. in July to take the place of George L. Listman as physical director of the Plainfield Association, assumed his duties in that capacity this morning. Mr. Whittaker came to this city last night from Reading, Pa., where he has been engaged as director of the large municipal playgrounds, and as city swimming instructor.

The new physical director comes here with a reputation as an athlete in track, football and swimming. He is also a good manager and capable organizer, qualities which are needed in his branch of work. He is especially competent in aquatic sports and has won many medals for speed swimming and fancy diving. He has raced against all of the crack swimmers in the country, including the world's champion, Charles Daniels. Plans have been made by him to make swimming one of the features of the physical department work.

The regular work in the department of physical training will not be formally started until the latter part of this month on account of the extensive repairs which are to be made to the gymnasium, swimming pool and locker rooms. All of the equipment in this department of the association is to be put in first-class condition, and the locker rooms are to be painted and renovated.

With the addition of Mr. Whittaker, the regular force for the Y. M. C. A. work is now back at its duties. Herbert E. Parker, the general secretary, returned this morning from his vacation, which he spent in Cleveland and Buffalo. C. William Bingaman has taken charge of the boys' work, after spending a month at his home in Buffalo, and Henry Walle, the superintendent of the building and chief engineer, is again at work after enjoying a two weeks' trip in New York State.

George L. Listman, who has been the physical director for the past few years, has gone to Montclair to take charge of the physical work in that association. Charles H. Line, who has acted as assistant physical director and assistant general secretary for the past year, and who has won many friends in this city by his competent management, leaves the local association and will enter the Springfield Training School at Springfield, Mass., where he will make a study of the theory of Y. M. C. A. methods in preparation for association work.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

The football spirit has already struck the borough and from the looks of things this will be a big year for the sport in this vicinity. The second team held a special meeting last night and after a discussion of plans for a fast team on the gridiron, it was decided to hold a meeting of all members tonight. At this gathering the final touches on the season's work will be made and arrangements for a gridiron, practice, etc., will be completed. The younger boys in the borough have caught the fever already and yesterday afternoon ten of the lads were practicing on the lot near the railroad station.

George Simon, a member of the Plainfield Cycling Club and a winner of many of the road races in Plainfield, was arrested in the borough Tuesday night for riding his bicycle without a light. EXPRESS PLOUGHS THROUGH WORKMEN.

Elizabeth, Sept. 1.—One man was killed and several others had narrow escapes when a fast eastbuond mail train on the Pennsylvania Railroad plunged through a gang of workmen making repairs on the Broad street arch at 1:40 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Thomas Nevins, 20 years old, a painter, of Bond street, this city, was instantly killed.

Nevins was employed under Joseph Allen, the contractor in charge of the work. He, with the other members of the gang, saw a westbound train approaching and stepped out of the way. Nevins, however, walked directly in the path of the mail train, eastbound. His body was hurled about fifty feet, decapitated and was badly mutilated. Morguekeeper Engel took charge of the remains.

It is not known whether or not Nevins has relatives in this city. He gave no address to the foreman of the gang when he secured employment.

CLEVELAND ESTATE VALUED AT $39,000.

New York, Sept. 1.—Wm. Blau, the transfer tax appraiser named to appraise the New York estate of Grover Cleveland, reported yesterday that the total estate here, all personal property, amounts to $39,065. Of this amount about $10,000 was in cash in banks. The estate had fifty shares of New York Trust Company stock, which sold at $490 a share, and fifty shares of the Realty Associates, worth $115 a share. The net estate subject to taxation was $32,378.

The appraiser said that the executor had declined to tell the amount of the estate in New Jersey, and for that reason a tax of 5 per cent. was assessed, whereas, if the amount had been stated the tax would have been 1 per cent. By so doing the estate paid $400 more in taxes than if the amount of the estate in New Jersey had been stated. In Mr. Cleveland's will he left $10,000 each to his four children in trust, the income to be paid to their mother until they are 21, when they will get the principal. If either daughter cease living with their mother before they are 21 they will receive the income of their share. The residue of the estate goes to Mrs. Cleveland.

To his executor, Frank S. Hastings, Mr. Cleveland left his seal ring, "which I have worn many years and which was a present to me by my wife, who concurs in the gift."

To the late Richard Watson Gilder, Mr. Cleveland left a watch and chain presented to him in 1893 by Mr. Gilder, E. C. Benedict and J. J. Sinclair.

ATTACKED IN WOODS BY UNKNOWN MAN.

Elizabeth, Sept. 1.—With several pieces of buckshot in his head, Edward Roeble, of 208 Atlantic street, is in the Elizabeth General Hospital in a serious condition. Roeble was shot yesterday afternoon as he was walking through the woods adjoining Fairmont avenue. The person who fired the shot is not known.

Roeble dropped to the ground unconscious. Patrolman Bishop heard the report occasioned by the shooting, and on investigation found the body of the injured man lying in the woods. Blood was streaming from his head and neck.

Bishop, after summoning the ambulance of the General Hospital, immediately made search for the man who did the shooting, but no trace of him could be found. The police are investigating.

At the hospital Roeble regained consciousness for a time and told attendants that as he was walking along a man he doesn't know drew his shotgun and fired twice. No motive for the attack is known.

EDITOR ARRESTED.

Mayor of Roosevelt Starts Criminal Libel Action.

Roosevelt, Sept. 1.—Charged with criminal libel, Thomas Yorke, lessee and editor of the Roosevelt News, was arrested here Tuesday evening by Marshall John Donovan on warrants issued by Judge Sedam at New Brunswick and sworn out by Mayor Herrmann, of this borough.

The Mayor charges the editor with libeling him on July 28, August 18 and 25. It was directed that the defendant furnish bail for $1,000 in each instance. The bonds were recorded before Justice Slugg, after which Yorke was liverated.

Stories about a red-haired damsel, said to be the Mayor's fiancee, and a cartoon are the causes of the action.

After the conviction in his case had been overlooked or neglected for over a year, Fred E. Pfeffer, a Burlington liquor dealer, who was found guilty in May, 1909, under two indictments for illegal sales, was just sentenced Tuesday at Mt. Holly by Judge Horner to pay a fine of $150.

GOLF.

Many of the old guard have entered for the annual golf tournament for the championship of New York, to be held over the Van Cortlandt Park public links today, tomorrow and Saturday. Prominent among the entrants are Theodore Cassebeer, of the Oakland Golf Club, winner last year, and William Wallace, the 1908 winner. H. A. Stiener, one of the most promising of the Inwood golfers, has also sent in his name.

Play began today in another three-days open golf tournament over the links of the Ekwanok Country Club, at Manchester, Vt. This is the eleventh annual and the Equinox cup is the chief trophy. According to the conditions the contestants will classify themselves into four sixteens in an eighteen hole qualifying round. The final on Saturday will extend over the thirty-six hole route. An eighteen hole handicap is also carded for the last day.

The new coruse of the Woodmere Country Club will be put into commission on Saturday. This is an eighteen hole circuit and those who have inspected it speak well of its possibilities. There will be competitions on Saturday and Labor Day.

Because of the failure of some of the most prominent "pros" to enter the championship tournament of the Western Golf Association, which began Yesterday at the Beverly Country Club, near Chicago, fears have been expressed that some amateur may succeed in winning. Thus far professionals have always won the principal prizes.

In a recent friendly round over the Wykagyl links Alec Smith made a hole in one stroke. The national and metropolitan champion was playing with Fred McLeod, and the feat was accomplished at the short sixth hole. A deadly iron shot carried the ball to within a few feet of the cup, and it just had "legs" enough to trickle the remaining distance.

HERE AND THERE.

Judge Gaynor, Mayor of New York, who holds that "all honest folk should be in bed before midnight," would find Vienna a city after his own heart. The Viennese are subject to a form of impost unknown to America, the "sperrgeld," or door opening tax. They all live in flats, and the street entrance is invariably bolted at 10 p. m. When the bolts are drawn persons passing in or out must pay twopence until midnight and fourpence from that hour until 6 a. m. The toll is levied every time you go through the doorway. If you post a letter you have to pay to go out and pay to come in. If you dine with a friend and stay smoking until the small hours, it costs you fourpence to leave his house and fourpence to enter your own. The janitors or "house masters", as the Viennese call them, draw handsome incomes from this source, although persons liberal in other respects strongly object to paying "sperrgeld," and will hurry over a costly dinner to save twopence.

ADVERTISE IN THE DAILY PRESS

HAYES THE NEW HEAD OF STATE HIBERNIANS

The forty-sixth biennial State convention of the Ancient Order of Hibernians was opened Tuesday morning, in St. Joseph's School hall, in Carroll street, Paterson. After a speech of welcome by Chairman Richard McGinn, the Very Rev. Dean McNulty was introduced. The dean delivered a short address, in which he spoke briefly of the good work that was being done by the order throughout this and European countries, and urged the members to give their support to the parliamentary party in Ireland, which, under the leadership of John Redmond, is fighting for Irish independence. He also urged the members to live up to their faith and its teachings. The dean reecieved an ovation.

Rev. C. P. Gillen, pastor of St. Joseph's Church, followed and Rev. William P. McLaughlin, of Union Hill, State chaplain, paid a glowing tribute to Dean McNulty. After the clergyman's remarks the convention was turned over to State President Peter J. Kerwin, of Paterson, and the delegates went into executive session.

The reports of the officers showed the order to be in a flourishing condition. There was a balance of $2,204.04 in the treasury. It was voted to contribute $200 to charity and also set aside 5$00 to pay expenses of four delegates to the national convention, to be held at Chicago in October of next year. These delegates are to be elected at today's session.

At the noon hour dinner was served by the Ladies' Auxiliary. The convention resumed its deliberations at 1.30. The next convention will be held in Warren county in October, 1912.

Contrary to expectations, Peter J. Kerwin did not run again for presidency, declining to be a candidate. The following officers were elected: State president, Edward Hayes, New Brunswick, vice president, Dennis Phelan, Boonton; secretary, James P. Mylod, Glen Ridge; treasurer, John Feighey, Arlington.

JERSEY MAN STRANGELY GONE.

Frederick F. Gardner, general manager of the Shore Electric Company, which operates at Sea Bright, Rumson and Red Bank, disappeared from Red Bank, on Tuesday of last weeek, and his whereabouts is a mystery. Mr. Gardner was last seen in the afternoon of that day, when he left his office, saying he wos going to the new power plant which the company is building at the southern limits of the town. It is known he did not reach the plant.

His wife, with her infant son, returned home Monday night from an eight weks' visit to relatives in Oneida, N. Y. In answer to a letter Mr. Gardner received from his wife on Tuesday morning of last week which spoke about her coming home, he telegraphed that day: "Don't start until you hear more."

Mrs. Gardner has telegraphd to all her relatives and has notified Chief of Police J. Frank Patterson, of Red Bank. A list of Gardner's effects and his life insurance policy were found on a desk at his home. Some suspect suicide. Chief Patterson is making a search of the head of the Shrewsbury River and the grounds surrounding the new power plant.

POLICE SEEK AGED WOMAN.

An aged and well-to-do woman of Mahwah, N. J., has been missing from her home since Tuesday afternoon, and all attempts to ascertain her whereabouts have thus far proved futile. Her daughter believes her mother has either become lost in some city or has wandered into the woods. The woods thereabouts have been searched, but no trace of the old woman has been found. Mrs. John Van Pelt, the daughter, has asked the authorities to aid in tracing her.

The missing woman is Mrs. Mary Rudolph, about seventy years old. She left home Tuesday afternoon, shortly after 5 o'clock, and nobody has seen her since. Mrs. Van Pelt says she cannot account for her mother's absence, and at first thought she had gone to New York to visit her son, George Rudolph, at No. 1001 Sixth acenue, but when she communicated with her brother he said he had heard or seen nothing of his mother. The old woman was in good spirits yesterday, and her disappearance is more mysterious on that account.

FOUND, LONG THOUGHT DEAD.

Trolley Car Conductor Lost Memory When Hurt in Accident.

Edward Joshua disappeared from Paterson three years ago. It was believed he was dead, but he has been found in New York City, and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Lee, of No. 161 Perry street, have gone to live with him.

Lee was a conductor on a Hoboken trolley line. Three years ago his car jumped the bridge over the Hackensack River and tumbled into the water. A number of the passengers were injured. No one remembered seeing Lee after the car keeled over. It was gnerall believed he had been drowned.

Mrs. Edward Neal, of West Front street, has returned from a visit at her former home in Westfield, Mass.

EPISCOPAL CONVENTION TO BE HELD IN OCTOBER

The general convention of the Protestant Episcopal church, which will open in Music Hall, Cincinnati, October 6, is arousing great interest because of the important religious questions that are to be considered.

The delegates will go to the convention as the representatives of the Episcopalians in their respective sections of this diocese and the influence they exert upon the deliberations of the general body will indicate the prevailing sentiment of their district.

The delegates are representative of both the clergy and laity. At the diocesan convention held some time ago at Trenton, the following clergymen were chosen, in the order given, to represent this diocese: The Rev. Dr. Otis A. Glazebrook, rector of St. John's church, Elizabeth; the Rev. E. Broden Shepherd, of Riverton, and the Rev. Dr. H. H. Oberly, rector of Christ Church, Elizabeth.

The New Jersey diocese delegates will probably have different opinions on the questions brought up for consideration. Among the important questions to be debated are the adoption of a preamble to the constitution of the church which comes up for final action, the discussion relative to the election of a presiding bishop and to the amendment to the constitution providing for the office of suffragan bishop.

Another point which will be thoroughly discussed is the so-called open pulpit cannon. The indications seem to favor the changing of the wording in the amendment adopted late in the session of 1907, which has been interpreted both liberally and reactionarily. Indiscriminate opening of the Episcopal pulpits at this time is favored by none; Christian unity has not advanced that far yet. The majority seem to favor taking away any seeming liberty the law confers.

The South Jersey Farmers' Exchange has closed its office at Mullica Hill and discontinued buying potatoes there.

Although the price of milk has been raised all around Clayton, dealers lowered the price from eight cents to six yesterday.

Rev. Sidney W. Powell, of New York, has accepted a call to the pastorate of the Frenchtown Baptist church, and will begin his duties October 1.

As a result of the big fire in Williamstown last Tuesday morning, when the glass factory was burned, prominent citizens are endeavoring to organize a fire company.

The stockholders of the Glassboro, Pitman and Clayton Gas Company, at a meeting held in Glassboro Monday evening, decided by a large vote to consolidate with the New Jersey Gas Company.

Through the breaking of a steam hammer at the Rogers locomotive plant, Paterson, Tuesday, James Boylan is confined to his home, 225 Preakness avenue, that city, with a broken arm and possible internal injuries.

William Kaufman, a farmer near New Hope, Pa., had his right arm drawn into a threshing machine Monday and so badly mangled that the member had to be amputated at the elbow. He was taken to a Trenton hospital.

Overcome by the heat while acting in the capacity of a coal passer at a licorice works in Camden, Tuesday night, Michael Carpin, twenty-five years old, of 1835 Salem street, was taken to Cooper Hospital. He is in a serious condition.

Bitten by a dog on the left arm and abdomen, William Lynch, seventy-six years old, of Oaklyn, had the wounds cauterized at the Homeopathic Hospital in Camden Monday. The dog belonged in the neighborhood and will probably be shot.

Positive identification of the body which washed ashore at Hartford avenue, Chelsea, Monday night, was made Tuesday, when relatives of Horace Wells, the young Marlton visitor, who was drowned while bathing off Virginia avenue last Saturday, claimed the remains.

Rev. George A. Leukel, pastor of the Presbyterian church at Ashland, will resign next Sunday and leave on the following Saturday for Germany, where he will begin a special course in fellowship on a scholarship awarded him by Princeton University.

Mrs. Sarah Taylor, formerly of Trenton, but now a resident of Braddock, Pa., has written Chief of Police Hiner asking him to try to locate her father, Joseph W. Phelps, seventy years old, who left his home in 1908 and from whom she has not heard since that time.

The coroner's jury at Trenton Tuesday exonerated Dr. James J. Maguire from all blame in connection with the death of Nicholas Stillwell, the little boy who was killed by the doctor's automobile one day last week. Witnesses testified that the child ran directly in front of the car.

Earnest Tuttle and Herbert Broadwater, of Vineland, gave an exhibition Tuesday of a biplane built by them in the Tuttle door-yard, but it did not rise because of the short distance to get up speed on the roadway and the close proximity of many wires. Another trial will be given soon.

Rev. Dr. R. B. Stephenson, formerly of Bridgeton, and now of Manasquan, is seriously ill with typhoid fever. His daughter, Miss Florence, has been summoned there from Bridgeton because of his illness. Dr. Stephenson is one of the best known preachers of the New Jersey Methodist Conference.

Kate Courtney, who for a number of years lived alone in a woods bordering on the extension of North Church street, in Cinnaminson township, near Moorestown, was found dead Tuesday morning. Coroner Grobler gave a certificate of death from natural causes. The body will be interred at the expense of the township.

John Coffer, of Seabright, the sixteen-year-old son of J. H. Coffer, was shot in the leg, Tuesday afternoon by Alfred Applegate, colored, of the same place, while the latter was carelessly flourishing a revolver. Coffer claims that he was sitting on a bench in the pool-room of Jack Applegate, at Seabright, and the shooting was accidental.

The crew of the United States life-saving station at Anglesea, Tuesday, caught three large man-eating sharks ranging from five to seven feet in length. The same were landed with an inch rope baited with bunkers in Hedeford Inlet, right in front of the station. These fish seldom come so far inside. Scarcity of food is thought to be the cause of their appearance at Hedeford.

A building at Passaic and Henry streets, Garfield, owned and occupied by Michael Coleti, a fruit dealer, was burned to the ground, Tuesday. Coleti, who occupied living rooms at the rear of his store, was awakened by the smell of smoke and succeeded in getting his family out, but all his household goods were burned. The fire was evidently set in several places and is believed to be the work of enemies.

Told that the only way her son could be relieved of terrible suffering from burns of the legs would be through the skin-grafting method, Mrs. Charles Pfeiffer, of 571 Berkely street, Camden, Tuesday night consented to go under ether at the Homepathic Hospital, and within an hour the operation was performed so successfully that both mother and son were resting easily at a late hour.

John Lynch, fourteen years old, who is spending the summer at Wildwood with his aunt, Mrs. Belford Ewan, at Pine and Pacific avenue, became entangeld in a rope and came near ending his career by hanging Monday night. The lad had been playing on the steps of Ewan's store and playfully put his head through a noose in a rope hanging from the overhead awning, when suddenly his feet slipped from the steps and he hung suspended by his neck. A customer emerging from the store cut him down, his eyes bulging and his tongue swollen, and he was unable to speak for some time.

Stabbed during a fight last March, Banney Gofney, colored, twenty-six years old, of Sweedesboro, was not aware that about two inches of the blade of a large pocket-knife was left in his back until he visited Cooper Hospital, in Camden, on Tuesday afternoon. When he called at the institution he complained of a severe pain. He had been using home remedies for rheumatism, and as the pain grew worse he decided to go to the hospital for examination. Discovering a scar the physicians asked if he had been injured. "No," came the reply. "I was stabbed in a fight about six months ago, but I don't think that could have anything to do with the pain, now that the wound has healed." Opening the old wound, the physicians found the piece of steel and it was removed with difficulty.

FASHIONS IN BLACK.

The serious and artistic gown builders are exploiting white and black as though it were an original combination. They are giving it the prestige of a new discovery.

Just why these two colors, brilliantly opposed to each other, should leap into such sudden and dominant fashion is not hard to find out. It is the echo of the British king's death. It began in Paris.

The odd part of it is that the juxtaposition of the two colors is heralded, even over there, as the success oft eh season. But it must be admitted that they are commingling them with more dash and sensationalism than we are doing here.

Everyone who is in authority thinks it will last through the winter, or rather, through the autumn. Time was when a new fashion, if acceptable, was intended for an entire season, but those halcyon days are ended, at least, temporarily. The dressmakers and manufacturers would be sorry to see them return, but all those who have a bit too much to do in this world to run after a new set of fashions every other month would be delighted not to have reason to do so.

Some of them go so far as to devoutedly wish that a sleeve would at least remain in style until it had been worn twice. Judging by last winter's experience this is a happiness that we have no reason to believe will occur.

TIPS FOR THE ANGLERS.

In wading a running stream cover every point where large rocks make eddies; bass move from place to place, and are just as likely to be at the edge of the stream as in the middle. Bass, more than most fish, take the fly as it drops on the water, and dart like a flash after a moving fly. A long deep pool should be fished from the bottom, casting upstream; is such a pool have a high, rocky side force the fly close to it. Fishing on lakes is quite different from river fishing. The time of day, weather conditions, flies on the water, all have influence in getting bass to rise. The best time is rippling water, gray sky, just after a rain on a warm morning. Have the boat in deep water, cast far out towards shallow bars, rocky or weedy places. Never allow the flies to lie still on the water; if they sink it is better, then jerk in short runs; in a word, tease the fish and they will respond. Make every effort to drop a fly on the spot where a fish rises; if no response, repeat the cast a few feet away with a new fly.

Casting the minnow and artificial lures, next to fly casting, is the most artistic mode of angling for bass; indeed, in some respects it is more difficult. The same method of casting will suffice for both live bait and artificial lures—the difference comes in when the fish strikes. With live bait the bass should be allowed from four to twelve seconds to gorge the bait before you strike. With artificial lures the strike of the fish should be followed instantly by the strike of the angler to set well the barb before the fish can eject the lure, which it does instantly it discovers the deception.—Collier's.

"FATHER'S DAY."

There is going to be a Father's Day next June. Mrs. J. B. Dodd, of Spokane, Wash., believes it is noble and inspiring to have a Sunday set apart every year in which to pay reverence to the mothers, but she also thinks the fathers should not be forgotten. She has made it her mission to see the fathers get a kind pat on the back and a kiss and be told how fine they are. She favors the third Sunday in June, and has planned that on that day every father shall receive a June rose and be praised for all the good things he has done in the year, and his delinquencies are not to be mentioned. Mrs. Dodd has enlisted the services of the preachers in Spokane and is forming an association by which she aims to spread the good work for father throughout the country. She already has begun an active campaign and is seeking to interest in her scheme women and preachers throughout the country. "I think it is time," said Mrs. Dodd, "that we do something for our fathers. A little thoughtfulness of this kind just to show them how much we appreciate all they have done for us will make them happier."

TUBERCULOSIS SOCIETY SPECIAL MEETING

At the request of the finance committee, a special meeting of the trustees of the Anti-Tuberculosis League of Plainfield and North Plainfield, was held last night at the home of the president, William S. Tyler, on West Eighth street. The evening was taken up chiefly in discussing the financial needs of the society to carry on the work at the camp and support the visiting nurse. This work requires a monthly expenditure of $300 and the society is now in need of funds.

As the work has passed the experimental stage here, and has been a proven success, the society hopes that many people will be led to contribute generous sums. A remarkable change has been noted in the patients under treatment at the camp and many have been discharged as a result of the improvement in health. There are always eight patients at the camp, there being accommodations for that number of people.

There was also a discussion about placing the Red Cross stamps on sale at Christmas time. This movement was started by the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis, and arrangements for the sale of the Christmas seals were announced today. The national society has decided to use a seal, instead of the stamps, which caused much confusion last year, many using them in place of the regular stamps for letter postage.

The local society has planned to join the movement and will have the seals on sale here. The national society has reduced the cost of the seals to local societies from 20 per cent. to 12½ per cent. which will mean at least $50,000 more for tuberculosis work in all parts of the United States. The stamps are to be designated as "Red Cross Seals" this year, and are to be placed on the back of letters instead of on the front. It is expected that over 430 anti-tuberculosis associations and hundreds of Red Cross societies in every State of the Union will unite in the sale of Christmas seals.

The trustees also discussed plans for a large mass meeting to be held here in the fall, to be addressed by men prominent in the fight for the extermination of tuberculosis, and due announcement of the date and speakers will be made. This is the only society of its kind in the State that supports a camp, and it has attracted considerable attention in consequence.

SEEK SANBORN IN ELIZABETH.

Elizabeth, Sept. 1.—After slipping through a cordon of detectives in Brooklyn Tuesday, Roscie H. Sanborn, who, according to his wife, has carried on over 100 love affairs since their marriage two years ago, is believed to have come to this city, with the summons and complaint in the divorce suit which his wife has begun.

Mr. Sanborn's mother, who returned to the homestead at 518 Madison avenue, this city, Tuesday night, denied yesterday that she knew where her son was. She said that he might have been in the city yesterday, but that she had not seen him at her home and does not know where he went.

"Mr. Sanborn is not here," she said.

"Did he come to this city yesterday?" she was asked.

"I don't know; I was not here. He had keys to the house, but I did not see him when I got back. I don't know where he is."

Mrs. Sanborn parried all questions bearing on the suit for divorce, saying: "I don't know anything about it."

WILL CREATE THREE AMERICAN CARDINALS.

Rome, Sept. 1.—Among those who will receive the cardinal's red hat at the consistory next November are Archbishops Farley, of New York, and O'Connell, of Boston. This will be the first consistory in three years.

As a token of affection for the American people the Pope has determined to raise to the cardinalate Monsignor Thomas F. Kennedy, of Philadelphia, for five years rector of the American College in Rome, naming him a cardinal in curia, which means that he will be attached to the papal court and reside in Rome.

Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Conover, of Duer street, are spending a few weeks in the northern part of New Jersey. They will on the return trip home, stop off at the summer home of Cyrus Conover, who is a cousin of one of the firm of Conover & Son, of Lebanon, Hunterdon county.

TRENTON FAIR TO BE GREATER THAN EVER

When the gates closed on the final day of the unprecedented success of the Trenton fair of 1909 Secretary Mahlon R. Margerum, Assistant Secretary L. P. Randall and the other shrewd business men who had helped to make it the most talked of enterprise of the kind in the country looked around and, like Alexander the Great, sighed for new worlds to conquer. It seemed then as if it would hardly be possible to equal the magnificent results of the fair that had just passed into history. The 1909 fair had been a record breaker in every detail. The attendance had been larger, the exhibits more numerous and of much higher class than in any former year, the profits had been greater and the patrons better satisfied than in all of the many successful years that had gone before.

Even at that early date the brains that plan and the hands that build the Trenton fair began to work and to plan for 1910. As each year has given to the public a better fair than the preceding one, Secretary Margerum determined that in spite of the almost sensational success of the 1909 fair the exhibition of 1910 must be and would be greater. And then the little wheels and the big wheels of the well oiled machinery of the fair began to revolve and the new structure began to assume shape. It was a herculean task to excel that 1909 record, and less original and less brainy men than those who make the Trenton fair would have faltered.

However, the early plans have developed and multiplied until early in August Secretary Margerum once again wore his typical smile—the smile that means satisfaction over some big work accomplished. It was not until August that he paused in the work long enough to say:

"I am satisfied with all of the plans for the 1910 fair and feel certain that we will once again line up as record breakers."

The reason for this satisfaction lies in the many wonderful attractions secured for the fair and in the unparalleled demand for space by exhibitors from all quarters of the country. Exhibitors will flock to the Trenton fair this fall like honeybees to a clover field, and instead of a district fair it will assume the shape and character of a great exposition.

One of the innovations this year will be a big program of running races for Monday, in which some exciting sport is certain to result. There will be six events.

The Wright brothers have been secured to bring their entire staff of daring air navigators to give daily exhibitions. This one attraction stamps the Trenton fair as the real leader of fairs, because the cost of getting the Wrights is equal to the ransom of a prince.

An automobile show of magnitude and class has been arranged for, in which all of the standard makes of cars will be on exhibition.

The always high standard vaudeville show that has ever been a delightful feature of the fair will be better, brighter and more fascinating than usual this season under the direction of William Taylor, who knows how to get what the people like.

The regular four day light harness racing meet will take place the same as last year with Race Secretary Horace P. Murphy in charge. Last year patrons of the fair saw the best racing in the fair's history, and Mr. Murphy promises something even better this year. And Mr. Murphy always makes good.

Those who visited the Trenton fair last season cannot but recall what a stupendous exhibit there was of agricultural implements.

Marvelous, wasn't it, for a district fair?

Secretary Margerum has allotted 25 per cent more space for the 1910 agricultural implements display, so you can use your own judgment as to what is to be expected.

N. Y. AMUSEMENTS.

Duke Franz Joseph, of Bavaria, one evening last week attended the performance of Eddie Foy in "Up and Down Broadway" at the Casino theatre, New York, occupying a box with a party of friends. The Duke was the guest of the Messrs. Shubert and expressed himself as delighted with the production, which was the first American theatrical entertainment he had ever witnessed. At his own request he was escorted behind the scenes after the first act, and was introduced to Mr. Foy, Miss Carus, Vida Whitmore, George Anderson and Martin Brown. He was particularly interested in the rapidity with which the scenery was changed and complimented the principal players on their individual excellent work. He was also especially pleased with the ensemble effects. "It seems to me that these are the prettiest girls I have ever seen anywhere in the world," said the Duke. "They are not only beautiful, but full of life and energy. My friends had told me of the superiority of American choruses, but this really surpasses all my expectations."

SIRES AND SONS.

Major General Daniel E. Sickles is the oldest living civil war leader. He is eighty-seven years old, but still stalwart and active.

Edgar Bloom, a traveling salesman, of Kansas City, Mo., is deaf and dumb. He sells diamonds and carries a price list printed on a card which he hands to each merchant he visits.

The trustees of the University of Chicago have granted to Professor Oscar Bolza of the mathematical department permission to spend the rest of his life in Freiburg, Germany. He will draw the same salary he received when active.

Robert Alphonso Taft, son of the president, who has just been graduated from Yale university, is going to start work in the Harvard Law school in October. He is the first son of a president of the United States to acquire a Yale diploma.

Henry Dexter, president of the American News company in New York, ninety-seven years of age, still sits at his desk. He goes down to his office every day in an automobile and takes a very active interest in his business as well as in philanthropic affairs.

Fernando Jones, who celebrated his ninetieth birthday recently, has lived in Chicago longer than any other person. He settled there in 1835 and has lived there ever since. When he first saw the village it was nothing unusual to observe Indians upon the streets.

Base Hits.

Rumors are persistent that Cy Young is about done for as a pitcher. But he has a fortune.

For a man who doesn't swing violently Schulte of Chicago hits a ball as clean and hard as anybody in major league circles.

Outfielder Clyde Millan, who had a miserable year in 1909, is playing grand ball for Washington this season. They do come back now and then.

Chase is the veteran in point of service on the New York team, and yet he is under thirty, and this is only his sixth season with the Highlanders.

Detroit critics concede that Russell Ford of the New York Americans is a great pitcher, but doubt is expressed there whether he lasts the year out the way he exerts his arm in throwing the spitter.

Household Hints.

A strip of emery cloth tacked to a small square board will be found useful for quickly sharpening the carving knife.

The newest silence cloth is of asbestos. It is thin and as easy to fold as a tablecloth, yet it effectually protects the table top from injury by hot dishes or spilled liquids.

A "ready made cooking cupboard" for the unexpected that always happens may contain soup, salmon, an entree, bottled peas, canned or preserved fruit and anything else which is suitable for a hurried luncheon or dinner.

Train and Track.

Since Mexico acquired control of its principal railroads six training schools for railroad men have been opened in the City of Mexico.

Between Liverpool and Manchester there is an excellent hourly express train service. Packages sent by parcels post forwarded on these trains up to 6:30 p. m. are delivered the same day.

In many of the leading industrial countries of Europe the steel railway tie is being largely substituted for that of wood. In England such ties can be marketed at $30 per ton, or less than the present cost of wooden ties.

Town Topics.

New York persists in the thought that it is a world's fair in itself. It has all the sideshows anyway.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

A Boston professor says the world will be crazy in 265 years. The world is not inclined to give Boston that long.—Chattanooga News.

Chicago has cut its high school course to two years in order to induce pupils to abandon the habit of quitting school at the end of the grade courses. If the Windy City would double the length of the vacations it might also reduce truancy.—St. Paul Pioneer Press.

Wireless Whispers.

There are eighteen recognized systems of wireless telegraphy.

The number of wireless stations on the coasts of the maritime nations of the world is placed at 416.

It is contemplated to establish wireless telegraph stations in German East Africa, Togoland, Kamerun and German Southwest Africa and also between the different German south sea colonies.

State Lines.

More than 5,000,000 rose trees have been planted in Oregon since the movement was started three years ago by the Rose Festival association.

Of the 1,000,000 horsepower which the rivers of Minnesota are estimated to be capable of producing less than one-third has been made available.

From Lucile's Diary

It occurred to me a few weeks ago that I should like to identify myself with some charitable work. I think it is broadening to one's character to take part in any good movement of that sort, and as nearly all the fashionable people whom I know are interested in one or another of the philanthropic societies of the city I determined to join one.

I heard that a member of the "Dix Amies" had resigned on account of moving out of town and I determined to ask Ruth Ritchey to nominate me for membership in that exclusive little circle of ten friends.

"You know, Lucile," said Ruth rather doubtfully when I spoke of the matter, "all the girls in our club are hard workers. We not only attend the meetings faithfully, but we pledge ourselves to do our utmost for the charities we assist. Just now we are trying to raise a considerable sum of money to give at Christmas time to worthy charities."

"I'd be glad to contribute $25 if that would be any help," I remarked, casually.

"Indeed it would and it's awfully good of you, Lucile." Ruth's manner was perceptibly warmer. "Of course it would be very nice to have you in the Dix Amies, but I wasn't sure you'd like—I mean, have time for the work. You know we are getting up a bazaar now."

"I just love such work," I cried, enthusiastically. "Is it to be a fancy dress affair?"

"We did think of wearing peasant costumes."

"Oh, do," I said. "I should choose to be a girl from Alsace. A big Alsatian bow in my hair is so becoming to me."

"Of course then we shall have to have the peasant costumes."

A few days later I was notified that I had been elected to membership in the Dix Amies. I at once asked father for the amount of the initiation fee, for it is quite impossible for me to stretch my allowance beyond my usual expenses.

"And father," I said after he had written the check, "I am extremely anxious to contribute to the charity fund which the club is raising for a Christmas offering and if you will give me $25 I'll feel that you've made me a very lovely and generous Christmas present and I won't expect any other gift from you or mother."

"Why, Lucile, are you sure you won't be disappointed when all the ribbons and tissue paper are being strewn around Christmas morning?" he asked.

"No, indeed. I shall be only too happy in thinking how much good my present from you will do others."

Father dipped his pen in the ink and when he had written another check he handed it to me with a smile that plainly showed he was pleased with my unselfishness. Mother told me afterward that he was quite touched. It's a real pleasure to me to feel that I have won the approval of my dear father.

Notwithstanding that I argued strongly in favor of fancy dress at the bazaar the girls decided against it. Even Ruth said the money and trouble that fancy costumes cost might better be expended upon the worthy charities we desired to help.

The only fun I had at the bazaar was in displaying a beautiful lapis-lazuli necklace which I put on. Walking around the room I tried to induce some one to buy it. But no one appeared to be in the mood to spend $30 for even such an attractive ornament. Just before the bazaar closed I went back to the jewelry booth and told Ruth, who was in charge there, that I feared it was hopeless to try to sell it.

"Well, may be it will go if we mark it down to $25," she said, thoughtfully. "We should still make a small profit, for the dealer let us have it for wholesale price."

"That seems quite a bargain," I said.

"Yes, of course it's too bad to make so little on the necklace, but it would be better to let it go at that than not to sell it at all."

"I'll take it myself, Ruth," I said, with sudden determination.

"Oh, will you? How nice!" she exclaimed, as I gave her the money.

The day after the bazaar the Dix Amies had a business meeting, but I was too tired to go. Ruth came in to see me on her way home from it and told me that we had made a considerable sum.

"With the $25 you have so generously promised, Lucile," she said, "we shall have the amount we have set our hearts upon. I suppose we can have your contribution at any time?"

"Why, I have already paid in that $25," I answered.

"You have! When?"

When I bought the lapis-lazuli necklace."

"Why, Lucile," explained Ruth, "you must know that only a small part of the price of that necklace came to the club."

"Well, you seemed very glad to sell it and I supposed I was doing the club a favor when I bought it," I explained.

"It certainly was a great bargain and I congratulate you on getting it, for I am sure it is very becoming to you," said Ruth, laughing in her disagreeable way. Then she went almost without a word.

When I think of that exasperating laugh of hers I feel that Ruth has not had the advantages of thorough culture, but I try not to judge her harshly.

QUEEN SAAV'S READY WIT.

A Story Appropriated From the Annals of Irish Royalty.

The anger of King Colm was terrible. 'Twas a fortnight before he could address himself to his queen or look her in the face and speak to her—and what he come to say to her then was that she was a shame and a disgrace to him, but sure what could he expect anyhow when he was such a notorious fool as ever to marry a beggar of a race of beggars. "Get up," says he, "and dress yourself, and leave my sight and my castle for evermore."

"Very well and good, me lord," says Saav, says she. "I'm ready. I was prepared for this, as you'll remember, before ever I married you; but," says she, "you remember your agreement—three back burdens of the greatest valuables I choose to carry out of your castle at my lavin'?"

"Thirty-three," says he, "if you like. 'Twill be a cheap price to get rid of you."

"Thanky, me lord," says she. "I'll only ask three. And before I've got them out maybe you'll think it's enough."

"What is the first back burden you choose?" says he.

"A back burden," says she, "of gold, silver, diamonds and jewelry."

In a short time the king had a burden of them piled on her that near almost broke her back, and with it she went out over the drawbridge.

When she had it down and come back in again says the king, says he, "What will your second back burden be?"

"For my second back burden," says she, "hoist up on me our baby boy."

The king gave a groan that'd rent rocks. But he wasn't the man to be daunted before any woman. He lifted with his own hands the boy in whom his heart was wrapped up and, settin' his teeth hard, put him on Saav's shoulders. She carried him out over the drawbridge.

When she come back again says Colm, says he, "Now then, name your third and last burden, and we're done with you forever, thank God!"

Says Saav, says she, "Get on me back yourself."

King Colm and his good Queen Saav lived ever after the happiest and most contented couple that Ireland ever knew, a parable for all kings and queens and married couples in the nation. Saav lived and died the wittiest, as her husband lived ever after and died the justest and most generous, most reasonable, sensible, affable and amiable king that Ireland ever knew.—Everybody's Magazine.

Whistler Let Them Wait.

Whistler's laxity in the matter of engagements was notorious. No one ever knew if he were coming or not to affairs. But his point of view is explained in his answer to a friend of his who knew that he had an engagement to dine with some swells in a distant part of London and who felt that it was most impolitic for Whistler to offend them. It was growing late, and yet Whistler was painting away madly, intently.

"My dear fellow," he said to him at last, "it is frightfully late, and you have to dine with Lady Such-a-one. Don't you think you'd better stop?"

"Stop?" fairly shrieked Whistler. "Stop, when everything is going beautifully? Go and stuff myself with disgusting food when I can paint like this? Never! Never! Besides, they can't do anything until I get there! They never do!"

If Jupiter Were Inhabited.

Calculations as to the size required for human beings on the other planets vary widely, according to the basis of reckoning. According to those based upon the attraction of gravity, Jupiter should be peopled by pygmies of twenty-eight inches. Wolfius, on the other hand, argued that Goliath himself would be accounted decidedly undersized upon that planet. He worked from the feebleness of the sun's light there, which would demand that the pupil of the eye should be much more dilatable. Since the pupil stands in a constant proportion to the pall of the eye and that to the entire body, said Wolfius, a little calculation shows that an average Jovian must be nearly thirteen feet seven inches tall—not quite four inches shorter than Og, king of Bashan, according to the measure of his bedstead given in Deuteronomy.

A Bright Blacksmith.

The greatest improvement in vehicle construction was when some bright blacksmith thought of heating the tires and shrinking them on the wheel. While many claim the honor, it is not known to whom it rightly belongs. Previous to this event tires were made in short sections and held on the felloes with nails. When starting on a long haul the driver always laid in a good supply of nails to use on the trip.—Shop Notes Quarterly.

Winding Up His Affairs.

"Look here, Ben, what did you shoot at me fer? I ain't got no quarrel with you."

"You had a feud with Jim Wombat, didn't ye?"

"I did, but Jim's dead."

"I'm his executor."—Kansas City Journal.

Like the Moon.

"He's a star after dinner speaker, isn't he?"

"A star? He's a moon."

"How?"

"The fuller the brighter."—Cleveland Leader.

BASEBALL.

Two bad! In other words, neither the Merchants nor the Elks can play today. Catch the drift?

And those games were sure to be fast ones!

But rain, rain, go away for Saturday!

Montross and Seery, the famous Dunellen battery, have been in the points for the Elizabeth A. C. in several games.

Russell Runyon, who played in the field for the Dunellen team last Saturday, is there with the goods. The former Plainfield high school star is no slow one at the game of baseball. He will now be a regular on the Dunellen squad.

Charles Line, who has made such a favorable impression among the fans as the manager of the Y. M. C. A. team during the last month, has resigned his position in the Association to enter the Springfield Training School, where he will study Y. M. C. A. work. "Charlie" is a nice boy, as well as a good manager, and we would like to see him get along in the world.

That Somerville team is going at a great rate, and if the locals hope to beat them they've got to play the games of their lives.

"Tommy" Mullin was in the game for fair Saturday afternoon. He caught in great form for the Scotch Plains team, making two clean hits with his weeping willow, and then did some speedy work in the field for the Plainfield aggregation.

Jack Martin, the clever short-stop of the Plainfield team, has been slightly under the weather for the last few days. He is now rounding into shape again and says that he will be as speedy as ever in that game against Dunellen. On Sunday Jack will hold down short for the Paterson team in its game with the Philadelphia Athletics.

The local fans are still talking about that cute little short-stop of the McNulty Brothers. Pfeiffer certainly puts up the classy article of ball and is in the game every minute. The way in which he ate up grounders, flies (and a few mosquitoes) was enough to make him popular with any gallery gods.

Warry McLaughlin will be on the slab for the Plainfield nine in the game with Dunellen Saturday, Montross being opposed to him.

Ward, who pitched for Doerflinger's boys last Saturday, will twirl against the McNulty Brothers in one of the games on Labor Day, and Egan, a former Fordham College box artist and Cincinnati National pitcher, will do the honors on the mound in the other contest. Archer and Wolfe will be the official tossers for the New York aggregation.

ENJOYED SUMMER DAYS AT THE TUNXIS CLUB

Among the hundreds of Plainfielders who go to the seashore and mountains in the summer, few, it is claimed, have had a more enjoyable time than those who have spent the time at the Tunxis Club, Tolland, Mass. Although this club is but a few years old, it now owns more than six thousand acres of valuable land in a picturesque part of the Berkshires.

During the past few years many Plainfielders have been attracted to Tolland, through the influence of Miles Roberts, of this city, who is treasurer of the club and an enthusiastic member of the colony, and many handsome bungalows and small cottages have been erected there, including those owned by Mr. and Mrs. John B. Cottrell, Miss Harriett Halloway, Mr. and Mrs. Miles Roberts, while the Misses Cahoone, of Watchung avenue, possess one of the finest summer homes in that section, where they spend a greater part of the year. As a delightful place to spend the warm weather, Tolland combines all of the natural beauty of mountains, together with a large lake, a mile and a half long and a half-mile wide, which is situated directly in front of the clubhouse and cottages. Here is to be found fine boating, bathing and the best of fishing the water being stocked with bass, pickerel, perch, while but a short distance away is one of the best trout streams in Massachusetts.

Among the many Plainfielders who have been at the club during the summer are Albert B. Beers, Dr. and Mrs. Marcus L. Clawson and son, Witter, Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Hopton, Mr. and Mrs. Frank McBride, Mrs. McBride, formerly being a soloist at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church; Mr. John S. Zelie and son, J. church; Mrs. John S. Zelie and son, J. S. Zelie, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Walter C. Dobbins, while those who have spent the summer there are Mr. and Mrs. Miles Roberts and sons, Blakeslee and Stewart, and daughter, Dorothy; Mr. and Mrs. John B. Cottrell and five children; Mr. and Mrs. Henry R. Halloway and Miss Harriet Halloway.

Andrew S. Brownell, of Yonkers, N. Y., is the president of the club, and he has built a fine home at Tolland, with all the modern conveniences, where he and his family spend every summer.

During the fall and winter months there is fine hunting at the club and many of the members, including Travers Carman, of "The Outlook," and Mr. Brownell, together with their friends, visit Tolland in search of game which is always plentiful. Among other members of the club is Mrs. Charles W. Foster, of East Seventh street, who, with her children, plans to visit Tolland some time during the summer season. Several are planning to build cottages there during the next year and thus will be formed a large colony of Plainfielders.

—Neuman Bros. call attention to the fact that now is the time to can fruit.

Visitors from this section registered this week among the carnival sight-seers of Asbury Park include D. J. Scott, of this city, and Mrs. M. Sellew and Miss Virginia Sellew, of Westfield, at the Bristol Hotel; W. H. Abbott, of West Seventh street, at the Victoria and Mr. and Mrs. Claune S. Sout, at the Wellington.

IN CLEVELAND'S MEMORY

Tower at Princeton Univ. to be the Nation's Monument to Dead President.

THE COST WILL BE $100,000.

Already $75,000 Has Been Raised and an Appeal is Made to Jerseymen for the Balance.

Announcement has been made of the completion of plans for a national memorial to Grover Cleveland at Princeton. It will take the form of a tower 150 feet high and 40 feet square at the base, which will be erected upon the tract known as the old golf links. On that site it will be distinctly visible from the public highways and the railway. The material will be silver and gray stone.

Selection of a site awaited decision in regard to a group of buildings for the Graduate School of Princeton University, with which Mr. Cleveland was closely identified in he last years of his life, and for which bequests aggregating several million dollars have recently been made. The perfected design is to cluster these buildings around the tower, making a fine architectural mass.

The tower will be a plain, dignified shaft, without external ornament of any kind. A statue of Mr. Cleveland will probably be placed in one of the rooms in the large base, where also there will be other accommodation for memorial purposes, including personal and national relics associated with Mr. Cleveland's life work.

This memorial has been undertaken by friends of Mr. Cleveland, who formed an association to raise funds and arrange other details. The cost of the tower will be $100,000, of which $75,000 has already been pledged. Subscriptions have ranged from $1 to $5,000, and have come from all parts of the country.

Appeal is made for the remaining $25,000. The officers of the association are Senator John F. Dryden, of Newark, president; President Woodrow Wilson, of Princeton University, vice president; Daniel S. Voorhees, of Morristown, treasurer, and Henry D. Winton, of Hackensack, secretary.

Another Good Proctor Show.

While the vaudeville show at Proctor's the first three days of the week was considered the best at this house in a long time, the new show today is said to be equally as good, but of a different style of entertainment. The Three Marvelous Mells, acrobats, are especially clever, the City Comedy Four, a quartet of comedians and singers, present a funny act, while the Todeska, Keating Trio, expert bicyclists, are in a class by themselves. The Delmore and Lamont Sisters, in fancy singing and dancing, complete the bill.

James E. Martine, who, as a Democratic primary candidate aspires to succeed United States John Kean, is busy campaigning these days. Tomorrow night he will address a political meeting at Hackensack.

INTERESTING STATISTICS CONCERNING MINISTERS

A bulletin just issued by the government gives facts never before collated about Christian ministers in American cities, their number and salaries, and about the mortgage debts of churches. The figures are for 1906, but have just been made public.

There were 164,830 Christian ministers and 1,084 Jewish rabbis in the United States in 1906, and they increase at the rate of nearly 4,000 a year. Their average salary is $663, and there was paid to them in 1906 a total of $69,667,587. Baptists and Methodists have more than half the whole number of ministers in the country, due to their large number of small churches, especially in rural districts.

The highest salary ever offered a minister to preach in New York was $18 000 a year and a house offered last year by the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian church, Manhattan—and declined! Several minsters receive $15,000 a year, and there are a dozen or more who get $12,000.

These salaries are the highest in the world. London and Berlin averages are hardly more than $3,000 a year. That is, a London minister who gets $3,000 is near the top.

The government shows the average salaries of ministers in cities having 300,000 population and over to be: Baptist $1,793; Congregational, $1,938; Methodist, $1,642; Presbyterian, $2,450; Protestant Episcopal, $1,873; Reformed, $1,938; Roman Catholic, $684, and Jews, $1,491.

In the smaller cities and rural districts, ministers salaries run away down. Baptists in the south average $334, and colored Baptists in the south $227. On the other hand, bodies that are strongest in the cities, like Unitarian, the Protestant Episcopal and the Roman Catholic, the averages stay about the same.

For example Unitarians receive the highest average salaries of all, their figures being $1,543. The Protestant Episcopal ranges down from $1,873 to $1,517, the Roman Catholic does not fall off at all, the rural districts ranging higher than the average, at $724.

In actual money, Methodist ministers get most of all, their salaries amounting annually to $16,150,000. Baptists receive $10,323,000, Presbyterians $7,610,000, Roman Catholics $6,779,000 Episcopalians $4,154,000, Reformed $1,682,000 and Jews $801,000. It is estimated on the basis of these reports that in 1910, $100,000,000 will be paid in salaries, and that congregational expenses, missions and extensions will involve $200,000,000 more.

FURNACE 'PRODUCER GAS' PATENTED BY JERSEYMAN

After four years of study and experiment with the invention, the States Patent Office has finally granted full patents to W. C. Finck, of Elizabeth, for his method of applying "producer gas" to furnace use. This method has been adopted in many large foundries and smelting works where it has succeeded oil fuel and has given better results at great'y reduced cost. During the past, however, Mr. Finck has received no royalties on his invention, but now, with his rights fully protected, all manufacturers will be forced to pay for its use.

As "producer gas" can be manufactured very cheaply, Mr. Finck began to study a method of increasing its efficiency. After years of study he has worked out a device by which the heating power of the gas is doubled. The gas has a heating power of 1800 degrees Fahrenheit, but with the new invention this becomes 3,000 to 3,600 degrees. Since the gas can be made at two cents a thousand cubic feet and possesses such high heating power, its mercantile value is immediately evident.

All the prominent scientists of the day have been visitors at Mr. Finck's laboratory in Orchard street, studying and experimenting with his system, but all failed to account for it scientifically until Prof. Looms, the best expert at Princeton, and Edgar Finck, the son of the inventor, accounted for it according to the laws of science.

The Government experts were so astounded at the invention, which seemed contrary to all laws of science, that they refused to give patents for it until they had built their own plant in Washington, studied it and found the results exactly as claimed by Mr. Finck. The evidence being directly before them, they could no longer deny it.

Among the many large concerns now using the invention are the Newhouse Smelting Works in Utah, the Westinghouse Company, American Locomotive Works at Richmond, Va., and the American Iron and Steel Company at Lebanon, Pa.

Mr. Finck has also discovered a new metal not yet named which resembles platinum in its properties, and is known as Finck's metal, which is in the School of Mines at Columbia University. Another invention made by Mr. Finck is a machine for making rope-chain, a device considered impossible for may years.

FOWLER'S LABOR RECORD

IS UNFRIENDLY TO WORKMEN.

He Voted Against Some Measures Championed for Union Labor and at Other Times Did Not Vote at All.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 2.—The American Federation of Labor, the most powerful organization of union wage earners in America, now as in the past is strongly opposed to Congressman Charles N. Fowler. That he is making his last politics struggle for renomination to Congress appears to be accepted among the champions of the union men's leaders here, they having received from labor organizations in the Fifth, New Jersey district, advices that his opponent, Judge William N. Runyon, of Plainfield, will have a comfortable majority at the congressional convention. The labor union men in Plainfield, the report says, have nothing but the best of words for Judge Runyon who is stamped as a candidate in whom labor can place confidence.

The A. F. of L., has given out this record of Congressman Fowler's record, which shows conclusively that he is really an enemy of organized labor though he is posing as their friend in his district:

January 27, 1906, repeal of the Federal Eight-hour law on the Isthmus of Panama. This bill was vigorously opposed by Labor but it passed the House on a vote of 120 ayes to 110 nays. Mr. Fowler is recorded as voting "aye"—in favor of the repeal of the eight-hour law.

December 6, 1906—Ant-compulsory pilotage bill by Littlefield, of Maine. This measure was opposed by Labor. It failed to pass the house. Mr. Fowler is recorded as "not voting."

Feb. 18, 1907.—Hours of service bill for railroad engineers. The La Follette bill passed by the Senate was ignored by the committee on interstate commerce and a very objectionable substitute of Esch, of Wisconsin, was reported out of committee and pressed to a vote under suspension of rules, which required a two-thirds majority in order to pass a bill. This Esch substitute was vigorously opposed by Labor. The measure failed to get sufficient votes under the rules to pass it. Mr. Fowler is recorded as voting "aye," that is, in favor of passing this objectionable substitute.

March 1, 1907.—The ship subsidy bill. This bill included a very objectionable conscription provision, injuriously affecting seamen. This measure and the conscription feature particularly have always been opposed by Labor. The bill passed the House. Mr. Fowler is recorded as "not voting."

May 9, 1908—A child labor bill for the District of Columbia passed the House by a practically unanimous vote. It was strongly urged by Labor. Mr. Fowler is recorded as "not voting."

Dec. 12, 1908—Compulsory investigation of Labor disputes. This bill was opposed by Labor because it was considered a step towards compulsory arbitration. It failed to pass the House. Mr. Fowler is recorded as "not voting."

June 2, 1910.—The House while in committee of the whole adopted an amendment by Mr. Hughes, of New Jersey, to the Sundry service bill making appropriation for violation of the Anti-Trust law; the provision was favored by Labor, as herewith quoted:

"Provided further, that no part of this money shall be spent in the prosecution of any organization or individual for entering into any combination or agreement having in view the increasing of wages, shortening of hours, or bettering the conditions of labor, or for any act done in furtherance thereof not in itself unlawful."

When this bill was reported to the Senate this proviso was stricken from the bill and the Senate on a record vote approved of the action of the committee.

On July 21, 1910, a motion was made in the House to instruct the conferees to insist upon disagreeing with the Senate. That motion was carried by a vote of 154 "Ayes" to 105 "nays." On that date Mr. Fowler is recorded as voting "nay"—or in other words in favor of striking the proviso from the bill.

On June 23, the conferees reported to the House a disagreement on this viso and recommended "that the House recede and concur, which meant that the House agree with the Senate and eliminate the Hughes proviso from the bill. The motion was carried by a vote of 138 "ayes" to 130 "nays." Mr. Fowler was recorded as "not voting." This last Planning Active Campaign.

The Epworth League of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church is planning an active and aggressive campaign for the fall and winter months along social and spiritual lines, giving especial attention to local mercy and help work and home and foreign missionary enterprises. As a preparatory service, they will hold on Sunday night, at 7:15 o'clock, a membership rally, to which all friends and members of the church are invited. Special music has been provided and the district conference president will be present and speak on the possibilities of the league.

Stamping Machine in Operation.

The new stamping machine was installed at the local postoffice this week and is now in running order. It greatly facilitates this department of office work, cancelling letters with remarkable speed as fast as they are received. The machine is a self-feeder, all that is necessary being for the man who operates it to place the letters in position. There are only two or three postoffices in the State that have this kind of a machine. The manufacturers do not sell them to the government, they being leased at a yearly rental.

British Lord Shot.

Even royalty is not free from the "didn't know it was loaded" class. It is stated in a London despatch this morning that King George V forgot that his gun was loaded, when it was accidentally discharged, nearly killing Lord Kilmarnock who was accompanying the king grouse hunting.

Library to Close.

The circulating department of the Plainfield Public Library will be closed on Labor Day, Sept. 5th. The reading room will be open in the afternoon from 2 to 6, with an assistant in charge.

READY FOR SCHOOL DAYS

Teachers and Pupils in Borough Prepare for the Fall Term Opening.

ON TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 13.

Buildings Renovated—Many New Faces to be Seen Among the Teaching Corps—Some Will Be Missed.

The North Plainfield public schools are now ready for the opening on Tuesday, September 13. Teachers are arriving in town, ready to start their work with a vim. The pupils are making the most of their last week of vacation time. Superintendent H. C. Krebs has returned from his trip to the British Isles and is now hard at work getting the machinery of the school system in running order.

All the borough school buildings have been cleaned and renovated from top to the bottom. Slate blackboards have been installed in the Somerset street school, thus bringing this buliding up to the modern standard in every detail.

As yet no definite prediction can be made as to the enrollment in the schools for the coming term. There will be eighteen pupils in the high school department this year from Warren Township, which will pay their tutition and the expenses of two wagons to bring them to school each day.

There are forty-one teachers on the corps in the borough system. They will be called together at 4 o'clock, Monday, September 12, by Superintendent Krebs, who will lay his plans before them and explain the workings of the borough teaching system to the new instructors. The high school courses are to be improved and enlarged upon with similar additions in the grammar and primary departments.

Two new faces will be noted among the faculty of the high school. George C. Baker, a graduate of Lafayette College and the Bloomsbury, Pa., State Normal School with five years experience in the Pennsylvania high schools, will take charge of the department of mathematics, in the place of F. Eugene Seymour, who goes to Montclair. Miss Roxana Love, a graduate of the Plainfield high school and of Mount Holyoke College, will be the teacher of science, filling the vacancy left by the resignation of Miss Edna M. Wilkes, who has been appointed to the department of physics in the Girls' High School of Philadelphia.

Miss Elizabeth M. Pound, who graduated from the Plainfield high school in 1908 and who has been a student in the Pratt Institute of Brooklyn, will take the place of Miss Elsie R. Horn, as the teacher of domestic science.

Miss Katherine Nelson, who has had four years' experience in teaching in the Newton schools after her graduation from the Oneonta State normal school, will succeed Miss Grace G. Van Patten, who retires from the profession. Miss Malvina Rittenhouse, also retired, will be succeeded by Miss Mame Barrow, a Bloomsburg graduate of three years' experience.

Miss Evelyn Huff, of the Genesee State normal school, has been appointed to teach in the second grade of the Somerst school. Miss Lucia McClintock, a graduate of the same school, will take the place of Miss Daisy Freeland, who enters the Montclair normal school. Miss Sadie Tiffany, a graduate of the Trenton State normal school and who has taught in Newton for the past two years will have charge of the sixth grade work this year.

Miss Bessie Dunham, a graduate of the Plainfield high school and also of the Westfield, Mass., State normal school, will fill the vacancy left by the resignation of Miss Amanda Tyler at the Watchung school.

Superintendent Krebs has been extremely confident that the present staff of instructors is a fully competent one.

AUGUST'S REPORT OF CHARITY ORGANIZATION

The report of the Charity Organization Society, for August, presented by Miss Mabelle C. Phillips, one of the two agents, shows much progress. A feature was the outings for children and mothers and the closing of the garden contest. Clifford Dunn, of Belvidere avenue, gave the use of his automobile two afternoons a week and money from Miss Allison VanBuren, provided ice cream to complete the afternoon's treat.

In the spring the society received five hundred large packages of seed from Congressman Fowler and these were divided among the children and mothers who asked for them. The women guests at Truell Court provided $4 for four awards and four awards of less value. Mrs. George P. Mellick, Mrs. Laurence Van Buren, Miss Mary Tweedy and Mrs. Kathleen Ryder acted as judges. They awarded the first prizes to Mrs. Julius Steiger at the Sanatorium, the Kirsting children at 323 Prescott place, Mrs. Jenny Martin of 302 Arlington avenue, and Mrs. Ella Johnson, of 14 Regent street.

Those receiving second honors were Mrs. Martha Jones, 312 East Fourth street, the Birganti children, 336 McDowell street, Susan Driscoll, 1032 South Second street, and the Thomas children, 6 Dupont street.

REBUKE FOR CANDIDATE

Mr. Fowler's Campaign One of Personal Vilification and Mean Insinuation.

SAYS THE ELIZABETH JOURNAL.

"Mud-slinging, Slurring and Carelessness of Assertion" Characterize Him in His New Role.

The Elizabeth Daily Journal, Republican, expressed its opinion of Mr. Fowler's campaign in its issue yesterday as follows:

"Congressman Fowler's campaign was begun on the low level of personal vilification, mean insinuation and the most repulsive kind of attack on the members of his own party. He has not only kept up this kind of campaigning, but by his example has incited others to mud-slinging, slurring and carelessness of assertion. Mr. Fowler's speech last evening, delivered before one of the smallest audiences which have greeted him everywhere this year, finely illustrated the kind of campaign he is waging. Under the circumstances it is not to be wondered at that the Congressman has alienated already scores of citizens who formerly stood by him.

"The Fowler campaign in the Fifth Congressional district should be compared by the intelligent voter with the contests which are being carried on by so-called progressive candidates in other parts of the country. It will take very little reading to appreciate the difference between the fight Mr. Fowler is carrying on and that of the progressive political candidate who is conducting himself sanely enough and intelligently enough to win votes to his way of thinking. Mr. Fowler's campaign smacks strongly of insurgency of a repulsive type, but it is far from being progressive as it possibly could be.

"The really progressive political candidate has, as a rule, put his campaign on the highest grounds. It is political ideals and not unimpressive and vitrolic personalities with which the sincere progressive deals. He has too much to talk about to dwell upon personal differences with local party associates. His desire is not to create party discord for its own sake. He has no personal differences to settle. He hopes to appeal to the intelligence of the American people by giving them something to think about which will impress them. Petty and spiteful criticism is barred from the campaign of real progressives generally.

"The people of the Fifth Congressional district have been quick to size up the situation as Mr. Fowler has developed it. They regard him as a disappointed politician. They have seen him grow more and more bitter following his defeat at the hands of Speaker Cannon. They have been quick to appreciate the fact that personal rather than political grievances have influenced him to conduct his campaign on the low level which the voters now find it. That he has few able men to aid him now in the kind of fight which he is waging is ont strange, of course."

BOLD BURGLAR NABBED

Patrolman McDonald and Doorman O'Gorman Make Important Capture.

NEGRO ARRESTED AFTER FIGHT

Prisoner May be Able to Enlighten Police on the Many Recent Burglaries—Third Degree Today.

In the arrest of William Connett, colored, twenty-one years old, the the police of this city believe they have captured the most daring burglar who ever operated here. Connett was caught, after a struggle, by Patrolman Mc Donald and landed in a cell at police headquarters.

For some time past petty burglaries have baffled the police and in none of the crimes committed has the thief left any tangible clue behind. Last night, shortly before midnight Patrolman Mc Donald while inspecting the doorways along Madison avenue near West Front street, saw a suspicious shadow against the wall of the store of Honeyman Bros. agents for motorcycles, and as it aroused the suspicions of the patrolman he investigated

McDonald is not timid, and after trying the door and finding it locked stepped back. Across the street he saw a colored boy whom he knew and asked him to get the janitor of the building so that the door might be opened. In a few moments Mr. Honeyman, Doorman O'Gorman and McDonald were ready to enter the store. Mc Donald turned the key in the lock and as the door turned inward he attempted to find an electric light switch. Just as he was reaching for one that he knew the position of, something brushed past him. Quick as a flash McDonald made a dive for the shadow and at the same instant O'Gorman came to has assistance resulting in the capture of the man who has given his name as Connett.

After starting for police headquarters, and apparently going without intentions of trying to escape, Connett suddenly dived for the street in an attempt to get out of the way of the cops. But it was useless. Before he could escape their clutches Connett was pinned to the pavement and was finally double handcuffed.

Several small burglaries of the annoying kind have been perpetrated reecntly but it is altogether likely that they will now be explained. By putting Connett through the third degree today it is possible that the police department will be able to connect their prisoner with all of the recent robberies.

Patrolman McDonald's timely appearance on the scene of Connett's operations probably saved the Honeyman firm from considerable loss as their establishment contains valuable tools besides the motorcycles which involve much money.

Among the thefts reported to the police recently was the cash register in the store of Bernhard Mann, at 124 West Fourth street, where the cash register was taken from Mr. Mann's store and opened in the back yard. Twenty-nine dollars were abstracted and the register left.

During all the time that the burglaries have been going on Chief Kiely, with all of his best men have tried to get a clue to the perpetrator of the crimes, but until Patrolman McDonald's capture last night nothing tangible had been found. It is likely that both McDonald and O'Gorman will be commended for their bravery in capturing the man.

Connett is not more than twenty-five years old, but is powerfully built and might well cope with a big antagonist. He will be arraigned on next Monday morning for a hearing before Judge William N. Runyon.

REUNION OF VETERANS AT SOMERVILLE, SEPT. 21.

COULDN'T BUNCO MAYOR

Bogus Solicitor For Funds Failed to get $50 Out of Plainfield's Executive.

POSED AS CROKER'S SECRETARY

New York's Fire Chief Didn't Know "Riley" and Mr. Fisk's Tip Helped to Catch Him.

Mayor Charles J. Fisk is nothing if not astute; when it comes to helping the police in detecting criminals he is more than that. And by this token it is perceptible that it behooves the would-be grafters and imitation book agents to steer clear of his Honor in the future.

Yesterday the Mayor received a subpoena to appear in the criminal branch of the circuit court in New York city, and at 2 o'clock this afternoon he was there to prove his ability to get the better of the bunco men. Magistrate Moses Hermann signed the court order and it will probably result in the prevention of further depredations of a gang which has systematically robbed the prominent men of the metropolis on pretense of benefitting some benevolent object or society.

All the metropolitan newspapers contained this morning an account of the arrest of Walter G. Lynch, the reputed son of Theresa Lynch, of diamond fame in New York, on a charge of attempting to swindle our Mayor out of $50, besides twenty cents expressage. And this was the manner of the attempt:

"Mr. Riley, private secretary to Chief Croker, of the New York Fire Department," called Mr. Fisk on the telephone some days ago, requesting an interview. Mr. Fisk responded that, owing to a pressing business engagement, he would be unable to meet "Mr. Riley," but would be glad to see him later. Five minutes later, on attempting to pass pass out through the office door to his New York establishment, Mr. Fisk was stopped by an inquirer who said, "Are you Mr. Fisk?" Being answered in the affirmative, the stranged unfolded a plan of assistance toward building up the funds of the Firemen's Benevolent Association of which he claimed to be a special agent, owing to the fact that he had been incapacitated from work through injuries to his eyes.

After a few moments' conversation Mayor Fisk told his visitor to return and that if after an investigation of the facts he found that the object was a worthy one he would be glad to subscribe. On Tuesday afternoon Mayor Fisk received a postal card from the Adams Express Co. in New York saying that they were hold subject to his order a package of books, and would he be kind enough to call at the office and pay the charges, $5.20. The Mayor said he would investigate this also, and after a lengthy talk with Chief Croker over the telephone he decided to let detective headquarters in New York take the postal card and intercept the seller of the books. This resulted in the capturing of Lynch, for whom the New York detectives have been looking for some time. It is alleged that many others have been victimized by the same man.

FUNERAL SERVICES OF DAVID E. SCRIBNER HELD.

The funeral services of David E. Scribner were held this afternoon at 2.30 at his late residence on Somerset street. A large number of the young man's friends attended the services, at which Rev. Ora J. Shoop, pastor of the Grace M. E. church officiated. A representative delegation from the Somerset Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., of which the dead young man was a member, was in attendance.

The pall bearers were all close friends of the dead boy. They were: Russell Hand, Roy Hand, Dudley Welch, William Bush, Robert Fahn, and William Richmond. The interment was made in the North Plainfield cemetery.

Non-Support Case.

After hearing both sides of the case, Justice Snape decided that Minerd should pay $3 a week for the support of his child and also the costs of court.

DUNELLEN.

What might have been a disastrous accident was narrowly averted yesterday afternoon by the presence of mind of the chauffeur of a large touring car, which was going through North avenue at a high rate of speed. The auto's rear wheels caught in the trolley car track and a trolley was approaching the machine from the opposite direction. The chauffeur attempted to turn out of the tracks, but in doing so the rear wheels of the auto skidded on the wet road, and the machine turned a right angle on the road. Instead of trying to turn the front wheels of the auto and proceed down the street, the heady chauffeur ran the car up on the side, bringing it to a stop on the lawn of a nearby residence. If the driver of the car had attempted to turn, the machine would undoubtedly have crashed into the telegraph pole on the side of the road. There were two passengers in the machine.

Hot Water Heating Perfected

Study a moment this detailed sectional cut of a BOYNTON "Square-pot" boiler.

Note how all interior surfaces tend upward toward the front connection. This means quick water circulation and lively steaming. A slow fire under a does more to kill the chill in a cold house than a roaring, red hot blaze in the ordinary round pot type of boiler. This is because the BOYNTON has most fire surface and best draft.

BOYNTON "Square Pot" PATENTED BOILER

BOYNTON "Square-pot" boilers are easily cleaned. They have the same quick cleaning grate and capacious ash-pit as the famous BOYNTON hot air furnaces.

A dozen other strong features that we can't mention here—get the BOYNTON man to show you.

A great many of those who used to do their sewing for the girls say they will not spend the time at the sewing machine when the ready-made dresses are so pretty, and fit so nicely, and such little difference in the price is not enough to pay for the bother and worry—for instance—we show a neat little Percale Dress in neat checks at 98c and $1.25, or a dress made of the ever serviceable "Galatea" at $1.69 and $1.98; and so neatly matched in trimmings, too. Then Checks and Plain Ginghams at $1.49, $1.98, $2.25 and $2.98. If you have been making your girls' school dresses, just try one of these and you will do less sewing this season.

GOLF.

Connecticut and Rhode Island golfers are looking forward with expectancy to their annual interstate team match, which will be held on September 17 over the links of the Agawam Hunt Club, at Providence. There are those who say the Connecticut forces will surely win the day. At any rate, the team appears to be a strong one, including, as it does, R. H. Hovey, who recently won the State title; R. S. White, 2d, E. S. Bronson, Robert Abbott, formerly of Plainfield, but now living in Bridgeport; S. D. Bowers, E. S. Parmalee, L. G. Waldo, Jr., S. J. Graham, Richard L. Jackson and B. P. Merriman, the captain.

John Shepard, Jr., is the Rhode Island captain, and some of his associates in the coming contest include D. Fairchild, H. Congdon, A. W. Hancock, R. V. Rust and Brock Smith and A. A. Campbell, two old Yale players.

Judging from an opinion expressed by a prominent Western golfer, the calling off of the proposed sectional team match that was to have been held prior to the national tournament at Brookline next month is, to say the least, an unfortunate action. Here is what he has to say:

"While our Western boys are keen to play an Eastern team, still I have not been in sympathy with the manner in which the proposed contest has been handled. There seems to be no sponsor for the event and no official notification was sent out to any association secretaries, and the only intimation any of them had was through the press. Notwithstanding this, the Western Golf Association executive committee had picked out a team of six to represent it. The statement has been made that a number of the best players do not care to participate. That must refer to Eastern players, as there is no such timidity shown out here."

HOWARD REEVE DIES OF WOUND.

Accidentally shot by his 11-year-old brother, Walter, in their home at 12 Schley street, Newark, on August 12 last, Howard Reeve, fourteen years old, died Wednesday afternoon in the City Hospital. At the direction of the police Walter was produced in the Fourth Precinct Police Court this morning by his parents, in whose custody he had been paroled.

Captain Vogel made a formal charge of manslaughter against the boy, who was again released on parole, pending action of the grand jury.

The shooting occurred while the two boys were celebrating Howard's birthday and was done in the presence of their aunt, Mrs. Carrie West. Walter found a toy rifle in the cellar. The hammer was defective, part of the plunger being broken, and it was possible to pull the trigger without it discharging.

Walter pressed the trigger twice while he was in the cellar, but the gun did not go off. He went upstairs, where Howard and his aunt were, thinking the rifle was not loaded and intending to scare Howard. He pointed the rifle at his brother, and, as the latter ran away, fired. This time the charge exploded and the ball of a .22-calibre bullet struck Howard in the back of the left shoulder.

For several days Howard's condition seemed to improve and it was thought that he would get better. About ten days ago he boy suffered a relapse. The doctors resorted to strenuous methods to save his life, but without avail. County Physician McKenzie performed an autopsy yesterday to ascertain the exact cause of death.

HINTS FOR THE GARDENER.

In locating shrubery plant the small sorts in clumps; not too many nor too closely, three or five together, to give a massed effect. These may be the same or different varieties to please the taste, and used in the curves of paths are very ornamental, or planted near the roadway. Larger growing shrubs look weall nearer the house and at the sides, and produce a well graduated effect from the background to street. Leave avenues of view far up and oown the road and in front, for mother likes to see father and the boys when they are coming home. Nothing can add effect to the well kept sward in front of a rural home, the contrasting side display enhancing its plain simplicity. Straight path and driveway to front gates are necessary, paralled by no slantings, as long, straight flower borders give place to the seedtime, and the sear and yellow leaf is unsightly in masses.

In my opinion, says a correspondent, the best fowls for the small confined run in a town are Black Leghorns. Their bright plumage and smart yellow leks make them of attractive appearance, and they are well set up, shapely birds, that will make the most of their quarters, however cramped. There can be no doubt about it that in small runs the great point is to get birds that will lay well, keep fit and healthy, and make good table specimens, and all this the Black Leghorn will do. The barndoor fowl is totally unsuitable for the back garden, for the proportionate results per bird are not sufficiently satisfactory, and if you contemplate beginning poultry at this time, take my advice and go in for birds of good breed and strain. True, you will pay more for them in the first instance, but it will be to your profit in the long run. On account of the sooty surroundings of our cities, light-colored birds are totally unfitted for small suburban runs, and in Nature white birds, and other animals, too, for that matter, are seldom so strong as the dark ones. The dust bath is of the greatest importance to all poultry in close quarters, and it should be provided by every suburban fancier, whilst a supply of broken oyster shells or "grits" should also be given to the hens as material with which they may form their eggshells.

One of the most satisfactory fruits for the farmer's garden is the currant. It thrives best in a cool climate, but may succeed in warm localities, but may succeed in warm localities under partial shade. They grow in any well-fertilized garden soil, or may be planted close to the lawn fence. Set the plants four or five feet apart. In the early spring give them careful cultivation, and prune them so that a bush form results. Old canes must be removed and all the straggling shoots shortened. As with gooseberries, barn-fertilizer. Put a few forkfuls around the roots as a mulch in the fall, when it becomes well rotted. Of the red currants cherry, Fay, red Dutch and Crandall are considered the most desirable kinds. Of the white kinds, white Dutch have been quite successful. In ordinary farm gardens plant lice do much damage, causing the leaves to curl and eventually injuring the plant. Those can easily be controlled by applications of kerosene emulsion. Make up the emulsion and apply it with a small brush broom, if only a few plants are to be treated. Where the number is larger any spraying outfit will answer.

LIFE IN THE OPEN.

Cycle-campers are certainly better off today than they ever were before, because big outfitters provide them with nece saries that are miracles of lightness. There is no need to think that, by confining oneself to the articles that can be carried on a bicycle, one need undergo hardship. A little thought beforehand, and a conference with one's companions, and everything necessary can be carried.

Nowadays tents are made which can be easily carried on bicycles. They are, naturally, small, but afford enough room for two people. Of course, they are not "bell tents," but are made in the shape of a gable roof. The material is very light and as the parts are separate they can be shared between the cyclists.

Of pots and pans for cooking, too, there are no end. The best are aluminum, and ought to be carefully selected so that they will fit into each other—"nest" together, as the old camper calls it. For the actual cooking nothing more elaborate than a spirit-stove can be carried; but it is surprising what an experienced cycle-camper can do with even that. I have heard of one camper, who cooked a fowl over his in a most ingenious manner. Soon after breakfast he plucked the fowl and prepared it. Then he put it in an aluminum sauce-pan and allowed it to simmer for an hour. When the time came to strike camp he "jambed" the lid of the sauce-pan firmly on, putting a piece of paper over the sauce-pan first, and then pressing on the lid. Then he wrapped a portion of the tent round it all "to keep the heat in," and strapped it carefully to the machine. At the end of the day that bird only wanted about half an hour's warming up to make it perfecly delicious.

Just one word of advice. It is not at all a bad plan before you start on a cycle-camping expedition to make an experiment in your own garden. Set up your tent, sleep in it, and cook your own breakfast in the morning. It is almost certain that you will learn much from this experiment, and may in this way save yourself trouble later on.

But a still better method of camping is to rombine it with river boating. In the first place, it is possible to carry a great deal more n a boat than on a bicycle, and, consequently, there is more comfort.

One may have either a tent to pitch on the banks, or one may hire a boat provided with a canvas cover that converts it into a sleeping place at night.

This last has many advantages, an important one being that, as the banks of our principal rivers are generally owned by people who are not fond of campers, the boat with the canvas cover may come in useful in the event of a refusal from an owner to allow camping, for it is always possible to find a mooring place.

CLEANING BLACK GOODS.

Where black must be worn in summer, as for morning, it is hard to keep it from getting gray and dusty looking.

A frock must be well shaken as soon as it is taken off, and the hem of the skirt gone over with a stiff brush. Then dust carefully with a fine whisk, using a soft velvet brush or piece of black crepe for silk or net trimmings.

This treatment should be insisted upon where a maid is kept, and otherwise should be done by the wearer. When the habit is once established it does not take long, and a frock is always ready when needed.

If the material has grown gray or shiny it can be freshened by wiping off with alcohol. This is particularly good for black hats and does not hurt crape if carefully applied.

Where black goods are much spotted they can be cleaned with common brown soap—such as is used in the kitchen. Sponge well with a thick suds of the soap, rinse and press on the wrong side or under a thick cloth to prevent shininess.

When mud stains remain on a black skirt after careful brushing they can often be removed by rubbing with half a raw potato.

Do not use ammonia to clean black gowns. This is a common cleanser, but makes the material, especially woolens rusty.

Cotton or linens are apt to turn gray unless carefully washed. Black starch should be used.

Embroidered Collars.

Now that all the summer blouses are cut low, the Dutch collar is aagin with us, but mounted on a neckband so as to avoid the unpleasant exposure of the whole neck so frequent last summer. These collars are often, of course, of embroidered linen, but are seen also in joined rows of insertion or in allover lace, with a gathered or frilled edging. They vary in width from two to five inches. Onee quit new style is in plain lawn, with rounded front ends, with doubled-over bias folds of lawn or batitse stitched upon them. Sometimes every alternate row is in black or color. No jabot is worn with these collars, but they are fastened by means of a large cameo or some other pin in the same quaint fashion.

Shoe Facts

This store is an old-fashioned family shoe store, old-fashioned, however, only because it carries all kinds of dependable boots and shoes for every member of the family—its styles are right and it is thoroughly up-to-date in all its methods and arrangements. We take particular pride in the fact that there are scores of families who never bought much of anything in the shoe line except at this store. Your fathers and mothers bought shoes of us (some of them) when they were lads and lassies—and that's the kind of trade we want—it's the kind every store wants, for that matter. New fangled ideas dont' necessarily instill confidence—quality and fair dealing are the two great factors. We have built up our business on these conservative lines and shall continue to hew along these same broad lines.

4,766,883 IN NEW YORK

Amazing Census Figures Show Gotham Larger Than Some Nations.

RAPIDLY GAINING ON LONDON.

Some Interesting Statistics as to Growth of New York and United States Generally.

Washington, Sept. 2.—According to the official count of the returns of the thirteenth census, the population of the city of New York is 4,766,883 as compared with 3,437,202 in 1900 and 2,507,414 in 1890. The increase from 1900 to 1910, therefore, is 1,329,681, or 36.7 per cent., as compared with an increase for the preceding decade of 920,788 or 37.1 per cent. Following are the figures as given out by the census bureau:

New York City.	4,766,883	3,437,202
Manh'tn Boro.	2,331,542	1,850,093
Bronx Boro...	430,980	200,507
Brooklyn.	1,634,351	1,166,582
Richm'd Boro.	85,969	67,021
Queens Boro..	284,041	152,999

In 1790, New York city had a population of 49,401.

The entire population of the United States in 1790 was 3,929,214, New York State having a total population of 340,120. The population of New York State in 1900 was 7,268,894. The total population of the United States in 1900 was 76,303,387, and unofficial estimates place it somewhere in the neighborhood of 90,000,000 in the present year.

According to figures at the census bureau, the population of Greater London in 1901, at the official count, was 6,581,372. The estimated population for 1900 is 7,420,740.

Paris in 1906, by an official count, had a population of 2,763,393; St. Petersburg, 1908, official count, 2,740,300; Berlin, 1905, official count, 2,040,148; Rome, 1901, official count 1,196,909 and an estimated population in 1900 of 1,323,699.

Pekin, China, at one time supposed to be one of the largest capitals in the world, with a population of more than a million, according to records in the census bureau, now has a population estimated to be somewhere in the neighborhood of 700,000.

The first federal census was taken on the first Monday in August, 1790, under the provisions of the second section of the first article of the constitution. At that time the United States, under the treaty of peace comprised only the territory between the Atlantic ocean and the Mississippi river. Maine was then a district of Massachusetts; Vermont still formed a part of New York; Kentucky and West Virginia formed parts of Virginia and Georgia and extended to the Mississippi river. The territory now comprised by the State of Tennessee was then known as the territory south of the Ohio river, while that now represented by the States of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan and Wisconsin, and a part of the State of Minnesota was then known as the "territory northwest of the river Ohio."

Florida and a strip along the southern border of what was then Georgia, were claimed by Spain, as well as all the region west of the Mississippi river. More than three-fifths of the population of incorporated places in New York in 1900 was found in the city of New York, which contained 3,347,202 inhabitants, constituting 47.3 per cent. of the population of New York. It is estimated that in 1936 New York will have a greater population than London.

Baldest Man in Congress.

The baldest man in Congress is Representative Ollie James, of Kentucky. His head is as smoothly made and as highly polished as a billiard ball. One hot afternoon, when he was engaged in a heated colloquy with Mr. Payne, of New York, he shook his fist and wagged his head with great energy.

"Will the gentleman from Kentucky allow me to interrupt him?" queried Mr. Payne politely.

"For a question, of course," agreed James.

That ended the debate.—Popular Magazine.

Plans Novel Canoeing Trip.

He will be accompanied by two Plainfield friends. ANOTHER PLAYGROUNDS EXHIBITION TOMORROW

The exhibition and games of the Stillman School Playgrounds children will take place tomorrow afternoon, weather permitting. The work at the Stillman grounds has been under the supervision of Miss Mary Leonard Childs and the results achieved in the cultivation of the hand work of the children will be shown. Tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock the folk dances, accompanied by the singing of the children will begin the exercises.

The parents of the children of this school are cordially invited to be present and as many others as care to attend. It is hoped by the Playground Commission that all those interested in the work will take the time to come in and see the work of the children and special attention to the products of raffia work, and other results of manual training is requested.

It is believed that there will be a permanent display of this "idle day work" arranged in some central location in the city so that not only parents of the school children but others may observe what is being accomplished among the youngsters during the vacation season.

MARRIED A MADMAN IN WASHINGTON, D. C.

Washington, Sept. 2.—When informed yesterday that she was the wife of a lunatic, who, after escaping from an asylum, had wooed, won and married her within twenty-four hours, Mrs. Virginia Strouse Frank, eighteen years old, today collapsed, and her relatives, astounded at the wild story unfolded by the police, announced that they would begin action at once to annul the marriage. Edwin Frank, formerly a private in the Seventeenth United States Infantry, escaped from the guards at the Government Hospital for the Insane here last Tuesday, and immediately hired a taxicab and took expensive quarters at the New Willard Hotel, announcing that he was an army captain just back from the Philippines.

Later he "purchased" a big, red touring car, and started out to enjoy himself. He succeeedd in making an appointment by telephone with Miss Strouse for an auto ride. They "did the town," and then visited Chevy Chase and went to Baltimore for late luncheon; dropped in at a matinee and dined at the Hotel Belvidere. On the way home Frank proposed and was accepted. A mad search for a license clerk in Washington failed, and they went to Rockville, Md., where, after arousing officials, they were married at 3 o'clock yesterday morning.

Returning to the New Willard, a wedding breakfast upon which no expense was spared, was served to the "captain" and his bride in their suite. Frank then took the girl home, while he "kept an important appointment at the War Department." The police say that he went to the garage and alleged that he gave a worthless check for $85 in payment for the auto and presented a similar check for $15 to the chauffeur.

Frank then hired another auto and took his bride to the American League ball game. They were sitting in a private box when detectives quietly entered and placed him under arrest. He told his bride to go home and wait for him.

Upon information from the government hospital Frank was placed in jail and today was sent back to the asylum. He was stationed at Fort McPherson Ga., when he was pronounced insane. Frank enlisted last November in New York city, where his address was given at 213 West 122d street. It was stated at the hospital today that Frank had shown great improvement lately and that it was expected he would be released soon. For this reason he was given privileges which resulted in his escape. It is said that relatives in New York had sent him money, which made it possible for him to carry out his plans.

ANGRY BULL DRIVES YOUNG WOMEN UP TREE.

Crossing a field on the farm of Jas. Bascomb on the river road near New Market on Wednesday, afternoon, the Misses Helen and Susie Green, of Lincoln, were chased by a bull and saved their lives by climbing an apple tree.

The infuriated beast charged the tree a dozen times and the force of the impact nearly shook the young women to the ground. They remained in the tree three hours when they were rescued by a couple of farm hands who heard the bellowing of the bull and went to see the cause of the trouble. They attacked the animal with pitch forks and succeeded in driving it into another field, so the young women could come down from the tree.

Miss Susie fainted soon after being taken down and it was almost an hour before she recovered. One of the young women wore a red sweater and it is believed that this angered the beast. The bull was never known to attack anyone before.

ALLEGE NEGLECT OF STREET.

Westfield Avenue in Roselle Park in Deplorable Condition.

Elizabeth, Sept. 2.—Mayor Louis B. Ebert, of Roselle Park, and Samuel Koestler, a local attorney, sent communications to the Board of Freeholders yetserday, both stating that Westfield avenue in Roselle Park and this city is in a deplorable condition, owing to the neglect of the county authorities. The board decided to refer the matter of the ownership of the avenue to the county road committee and the county attorney.

The freeholders were in receipt of a communication from the United Holy Name Societies of Union County, asking that Catholic services be held in the county jail for prisoners. The matter was referred to the jail committee.

Sues for False Arrest.

Elizabeth, Sept. 2.—Adolph Palmgren, a painter contractor, who was last month in the City Criminal Court exonerated of a charge of burglary made by Michael Trangelo, the proprietor of a paint store in East Broad street, yesterday, made arrangements to bring a $5,000 damage suit in the Circuit Court against Trangelo for false arrest.

How To Make The Fat Comfortable in Summer

If you are fat and have difficulty in breathing or walking or eating and if you find that the heat is exhausting to you during the heated term you will be interested in knowing that the famous Marmola prescription is now being prepared in tablet form and that one of these little tablets taken after each meal and at bedtime will reduce your fat at the rate of from 12 to 15 ounces per day. These tablets stop fat from being made and they assist the body to throw away the fat already made in a natural manner. They are harmless and you will find that their use will build up your system to a higher degree of perfection than ever before. They have perhaps the greatest army of responsible men and women who have written of their effectiveness than any other prescription ever written. You need not diet or exercise and you may eat when and what you will. The food you now eat turns into fat. The food you eat will make no fat if you take a Marmola tablet after the meal; and more than that, you will so strengthen your digestive organs that you will need no assistance in a short time even from Marmola Tablets. Every drug store sells them or you may write the Marmola Company, 988 Farmer Bldg., Detroit, Mich. A case of Marmola Tablets costs only 75 cents everywhere.

An Innocent Accomplice.

A smuggling story in which a woman fooled her unsuspecting husband is told in the Century. The husband was a retired general, a martinet in discipline and overscrupulous regarding even the shadow of laxity in the performance of his own obligations. "No smuggling was to be permitted," he told his wife, and before leaving Paris he insisted on making a full list of every dutiable article in his possession. Unknown to him she bought several yards of venetian lace. How to hide it was a problem until she thought of ripping the lining of his overcoat and hiding the lace inside. She regarded her cunning as a tremendous joke, and to this day he does not know how she laughed to herself when, wearing that very same coat on the dock, he drew himself up to his full military height and, with free conscience, pointed to a tray containing "all his purchases." No idea of anything so serious as defrauding the government had ever entered her frolicsome mind.

He Needed a Prodding.

His arm was round her waist, her hand was on his shoulder, and they were walking through the fields as they had been wont to do for nine long years.

"Em," said he, "we've been coortin' a tidy time now."

"I told you, fust start off, as how I shouldn't be in no hurry to git married, Em."

"You didn't tell no lie about it, neither, George," she declared, with a sigh.

"You're a-talkin' as if you was sorry that I'm a man o' my word, Em," he said reprovingly.

"Well, George," she replied, "now you mention it I have bin thinkin' this last year or two that if you could see your way to go back on your word just this once it wouldn't be amiss."—London Mail.

The House Was Shaky.

When John Quincy Adams was eighty years of age he met in the streets of Boston an old friend, who shook his trembling hand and said, "Good morning, and how is John Quincy Adams today?"

"Thank you," was the ex-president's answer. "John Quincy Adams himself is well, sir; quite well, I thank you. But the house in which he lives at present is becoming dilapidated. It is tottering upon its foundation. Time and the seasons have nearly destroyed it. Its roof is pretty well worn out. Its walls are much shattered, and it trembles with every wind. The old tenement is becoming almost uninhabitable, and I think John Quincy Adams will have to move out of it soon. But he himself is quite well, sir; quite well."

With that the venerable sixth president of the United States moved on with the aid of his staff.

Had All His Nerve With Him.

In a downtown stand up lunch place, where the chief source of the waiters' revenue is in the form of tips and where the patrons are supposed to step lively so that those who wait may be accommodated, a man has been coming of late who brings a newspaper with him and reads it leisurely, sometimes for half an hour, while he takes his modest luncheon. The waiter at whose station he planted himself one day recently was prepared for the emergency, and when the man had finished reading his paper the servant handed him two others with the remark: "Maybe you'd like to see these?" The other waiters, knowing of the plot, looked to see the man wilt, but were disappointed. He took the papers with thanks, continued reading, and finally, when he asked for his check, asked also whether he might keep the papers.—New York Tribune.

One of Falb's Predictions.

In 1874 Professor Rudolf Falb predicted an eruption of Etna on Aug. 27. He offered a Vienna editor to write an account of it if the editor would send him to Sicily. Falb was commissioned. When he reached Etna there was not the slightest sign of disturbance. As the 27th approached Falb was tortured with anxiety and spent sleepless nights watching the volcano. Nothing happened on the 27th and 28th. The following morning the servant rushed into the professor's room shouting, "An eruption, a terrible eruption!" Falb saw the spectacle and sent off his dispatch.

"One" as a Pronoun.

I have never been smitten with the use of the word "one" as a pronoun. It takes a word juggler to attempt it and get away with it. Unless one feels that one has won one's spurs in this respect and can extricate oneself from the mess one gets oneself and one's readers into one should avoid the use of the word one in referring to oneself as one would a plague.—London Idler.

Swift.

Teacher—Children, nature is superior to man in everything. For instance, there is nothing that travels so fast as the unseen wind. Willie—Huh! You ought to hear what my pa says about a sight draft!—Puck.

His Part.

"Who is the responsible person in this firm?" asked the brusque caller of the office boy.

"Can't tell you, sir," replied the pert lad, "but I'm the one who gets all the blame."

Curiosity is looking over other people's affairs and overlooking our own.—Wayland.

DYSPEPTIC PHILOSOPHY.

Even a sausage may realize that beauty is only skin deep.

The truth is mighty and will prevail—if it is unpleasant enough.

The people who hustle through life merely get to the grave that much sooner.

When a fellow is stuck on a girl he never realizes how badly he is stuck till he marries her.

Self-deception is a human failing. Of course it's the cherry in the cocktail that upsets a man's stomach.

The fellow who is too much of a coward to steal takes it out in borrowing and forgetting to pay back.

"Here's where I get it in the neck," remarked a married friend of mine whose wife had just bought him a tie.

Many a man is supposed to have money to burn without being in any particular danger of calling out the fire department.

I have noticed that when a man takes to drink it's a pretty sure sign that a girl has either thrown him over or married him.

A married friend of mine is fond of boasting that he owes everything to his wife. This sounds very nice, but he's a double distilled liar. He owes $10 to me.

A business friend of mine suggested to me the other day that a man who always has an edge on never cuts much ice. Not being a drinking man myself, I fail to see the point, but it must be there, so here it is. Which sounds like an Irish bull.

BRIDGE HINTS.

With the years against you, never venture a weak heart declaration unless you have diamonds enough to pull you through.

Holding a commanding club, don't hesitate to tell the cook it looks like rain, if the soup justifies the declaration.

If you hold a good heart, don't discard it.

Never waste time attempting to finesse when your wife is obviously leading up to a new broadcloth suit.

If you find an unguarded knave, kick him and run.

If you are short of honors, never mind—many an obscure man dies rich.

With three good suits and four diamonds, it is safe to accept an invitation to a week-end party.

If your partner is a dummy, don't complain; she probably wouldn't have married you if she hadn't been.

With the score against you, tip the waiter liberally.

Do not make a practise of leading through the cafe door.—D. B. Van-Buren in Smart Set.

BY THE BACHELOR GIRL.

Kissing is love's dope; just a little stimulates it, but an overdose puts it into a comatose state.

From the way in which divorced people are remarrying distance must lend enchantment even to trouble.

From the way a man's digestion affects his love-making one would fancy the heart was simply a gastronomic organ.

Cupid don't waste time aiming at hearts any more; when he gets really serious he points his arrows at a man's vanity and a woman's ambition.

Pianos & Player-Pianos

MATHUSHEK & SON PLAYER-PIANO is the most advanced instrument of its type on the market today, and in its capacity for individual musical expression and for the artistic rendition of music, whether popular or classic, it cannot be surpassed, for it places the control of tempo and phrasing entirely in the hands of the performer, enabling him to give expression to his moods and emotions quite as if he were playing the piano manually.

Our experts have spent a number of years in producing this instrument, and every detail has been carefully thought out and perfected so that it may, without exaggeration, be described as the most perfect Player-Piano Mechanism in the world.

Baltimore and Soft Crabs.

The genuine soft crab, or Brachyura baltimoriensis, is the most delicate as it is the most delicious of all victuals. It will no more bear transportation than a zephyr or a daffodil. The moment it is taken from its native deep it begins to lose bounce and flavor, and once it has left the Chesapeake littora it is no longer eatable. That is why the soft crab is a superb delicatesse in Baltimore and a bitter disappointment everywhere else. So sensitive is it, indeed, to climate and handling that it is impossible to get a decent soft crab anywhere west of the first tollgate on the Frederick road. In Pittsburg, where embalmed soft crabs are offered in the gilded lobster palaces, their flavor is that of glucose. In Chicago the soft crab is a mere curiosity, to be gaped at, but not eaten. Baltimore alone has the genuine article, and it is fortunate for Baltimore that it cannot be transported. If it were possible to ship soft crabs the whole earth would bid for them, running up their price to $1, $5 and perhaps even to $100 a dozen.—Baltimore Sun.

A Teacher In the Making.

She was a popular young normal student who had been to a party the night before, and as a consequence was "not prepared" in the geography class. The woman instructor, true to her method of drawing upon the general knowledge of a student rather than to permit a failure, after eliciting two or three inconsequential "stabs" from her fair but jaded disciple, asked for the products of China.

The victim brightened. "Tea," she asserted, preparing to sit down.

"Yes, and what else?" encouraged the instructor.

The young woman smiled with sweet hopelessness.

"Now you can mention others, I am sure. Just think about it."

"Tea," drawled the flutelike voice of the pretty girl, "and," puckering her forehead with an intellectual tour de force, "and laundry work."—Youth's Companion.

Quick Cure.

Once there was a man who made life miserable for all he met by eternally harping about his aches and pains.

He would discourse on the subject of his dyspepsia, and he would almost interrupt a religious service to tell of his rheumatic symptoms.

If he had a stitch in his side he had to pester his friends with it, and a headache helped him make everybody unhappy.

At last a bright young woman, to whom the man applied for sympathy, cured him of all his ailments.

When he was in the midst of a catalogue of his sufferings she said sweetly:

"Yes, it is strange how many of these things afflict a man as he begins to grow old."

That man never even had a symptom after that.—Wilbur D. Nesbit in Judge.

When Men Were Branded.

A curious relic of bygone times, probably the only one in England, still stands at Lancaster castle. It is a strong iron holdfast, into which the prisoner, who in olden time had been sentenced to be branded as a malefactor, had his hand thrust and locked. The branding iron after being made red hot at the end was pressed against the "brawne of the thumb," and on being withdrawn the letter M branded on the unfortunate prisoner's flesh indicated from henceforward that he was a malefactor. The ceremony was performed in the presence of the judge and jury and in open court, and the brander invariably turned to the judge after he had done his work and exclaimed, "A fair mark, my lord!" It is over 100 years since the instrument was last used on two men sentenced to imprisonment for manslaughter.

His Maiden Speech.

It is related that when the Earl of Rochester in the reign of Charles II. rose to make his maiden speech in the house of lords he said: "My lords—my lords, I rise this time for the first time—the very first time. My lords, I divide my speech into four branches." Here there was an embarrassing pause of some seconds. "My lords," the earl then ejaculated, "if ever I rise again in this house you may cut me off, root and branches and all, forever."

The Devil's Sonata.

Tartini, the great violinist, after dining indiscreetly, dreamed that he had made a bargain with the devil for his soul. To prove his powers the evil one seized a violin and played a sonata of exquisite beauty. Tartini awoke with the ringing in his ears, committed the music to paper and published it as "The Devil's Sonata."

The Verdict.

"How did your act take amateur night?"

"Great! When I sang the first verse they yelled 'Fine!' and when I sang the next they yelled 'Imprisonment!'"—Baltimore Sun.

His Main Want.

Earnest but Prosy Street Corner Orator—I want land reform, I want housing reform, I want educational reform, I want— Bored Voice—Chloroform.—Manchester Guardian.

Proud of It.

The Lady—Poor tramp! Have you anything in your life to be proud of? The Hobo—Yessum. I never beat nobody out of no laundry bill.—Cleveland Leader.

Give, if thou canst, an alms; if not, afford instead of that a sweet and gentle word.—Robert Herrick.

ELIZABETH'S LEADERS OUT TO BEAT FOWLER

The Republican leaders in Elizabeth are very wrathy over the roasting given some of them Wednesday night by Congressman Fowler at a meeting held in Elizabethport, where the speakers were Mr. Fowler and his two Assembly candidates, Hoagland and Wurfel. About 100 persons were at the meeting. The leaders declare today that from now on it will be war with the knife against the Congressman in Elizabeth, and that a nearly solid delegation will be sent from Elizabeth to the Congressional convention for Judge Runyon, Fowler's Plainfield opponent.

Assistant Postmaster Jas. White, chairman of the city central Republican committee, feels particularly sore over the way he was handled by the fighting "insurgent" Congressman. Secret conferences were held at the courthouse at Elizabeth yesterday by the organization leaders, and it is said a most aggressive campaign was mapped out for every ward in Elizabeth aaginst the selection of any Fowler delegates.

Plenty of the sinews of war, it is understood, will be forthcoming to carry on the fight to a successful finish. No quarter will be shown insurgents.

MORE POLICE IN ELIZABETH VOTED.

Elizabeth, Sept. 2. Heeding the many complaints of the business men about the poor police protection, the City Council at its meeting last night appointed twenty-five new patrolmen and voted to give the entire department an increase of 25 cents a day. This was done on the recommendation of the police committee, which had made a thorough investigation of the complaints. The men appointed will, after a physical examination, report immediately for duty.

The new men appointed were John Feehan Michael Manning, Patrick F. Conboy, John Mellaney, Martin Reitman, Michael Delaney, John F. Mallon, Bernard F. Levin, William Hulsenbeck, Charles Brink, James F. Searles, Adam Neubeck, Jr., John W. Talbot, John Hawkins Peter Buckley, Michael Kennedy, Louis Hildebrant, August H. Wolfskeil, Joseph Angen, Emil Smith, Jr., Peter Dempsey, Clarence Springer John Willis, John Kelley and Thomas Morris.

Seven chancemen were also appointed.

BIG BIRTHDAY PARTY.

Thousands Will Attend Hahne & Co.'s Fifty-second Anniversary Celebration Next Week.

All New Jersey is deeply interested in anything that adds to the greatness of its metropolis—Newark—and because of this feeling there will be general rejoicing throughout the State over the fact that that great business house, Hahne & Co., is about to celebrate its fifty-second birthday. In September fifty-two years ago the business was started as a little bird store on Broad street, near the present location, and it has grown steadily year by year, until now it occupies to its capacity the great store which is noted the country over for its magnificence and completeness.

The new building, erected nine years ago, was thought to be far ahead of its time, and wise folks dubiously shook their heads and predicted disaster for the mammoth enterprise. The growth of the business and the success attending it have put the doubters to rout, and now all join in acclaiming Hahne & Co. as pioneers and prophets.

The Big Store will celebrate its anniversary in befitting style. Those who participated in these events last year, and the year before will know what to expect.

The great building will be gorgeously decorated inside and out. There will be a street parade on Tuesday of gigantic proportions, with bands of music, and there will be many thousands of souvenirs distributed to visitors to the store. There will be fine musical programs every day, both vocal and instrumental music included, and, best of all there will be a gigantic sale of merchandise at prices that mean a saving of thousands of dollars to the people, this sale continuing for two full weeks.

Miss Ethel Hudson, of Somerset street, will spend the week-end with Mrs. Lemuel Smith, of Bay Ridge, L. I.

TWO BIG GAMES AT OVAL TOMORROW

Plainfield fans will be glad that they went to the Oval tomorrow afternoon for they will see two classy diamond fights. The Plainfield team lines up in battle array against the Dunellen nine for the deciding game in the series between these two teams at flur o'clock, and the Y. M. C. A. ball tossers are going to try their luck with the team from the C. R. R. of N. J., beginning at 2:15. Both of the visiting teams are strong ones, and are well known in this vicinity, thus the fans are sure of not having a bunch of four-flushers trying to give the local nines a workout.

The rivalry between the Plainfield and Dunellen teams is now at its height, as the two games played by them have been close and exciting and each one was won by a single tally. The boroughites took the first contest after a twelve inning battle, shutting out the locals, 1-0, and the Doerflinger aggregation turned the tables in the next game by the score of 2-1.

Warry McLaughlin has recovered from his rheumatism and will be on the slab for the Plainfield boys, with Nelson on the receiving end. Smiling Jimmie Montross and Seery will do the battery honors for the opposing nine. Both pithers are now in fine fettle and both are confident of delivering the goods—but that's what they all say. Nevertheless, neither of the box artists will give up the struggle until the game is either won or lost.

Southpaw Frederickson will be on the slab for the association nine and the spectators are sure of seeing some clever twirling in the primary contest. The railroad magnates are to be represented on the mound by Pender, an effective twirler.

The teams will line up as follows:

Plainfield: B. Martin, 2b.; Boyd, cf.; Emery, 3b.; J. Martin, ss.; Nelson, c.; McLaughlin, p.; Barnes, 1b.; Schott, lf.; and either Fritts or Mullin, rf.

Y. M. C. A.: Bailey, lf.; either Collier or Dumont, rf.; Smith, cf.; Adams, 1b.; Marsh, 2b.; Coyle, ss.; Fritts, 3b.; Hand, c.; Frederickson, p.

C. R. R. of N. J.: Eilers, c.; Pender, p.; Meehan, 1b.; Morton, 2b.; Bender, 3b.; Pickett, ss.; Doyle, lf.; Moahan, cf.; Rubenstein, rf.

BASEBALL.

Well, the Elks and the Merchants weren't the only teams that didn't play yesterady. In both of the big leagues only one game was held, that being between the Pirates and the Cincinnati Reds.

Dunellen is coming to the Oval tomorrow, prepared to win with ying colors, but Manager Doerflinger says that the boroughites have got to go some to trim his lads. Well, we will see!

And remember that it is bargain day at the Oval tomorrow!

The fans of New York city are now confident of one thing—that neither the National nor the American league rags will fly in the big city this year. But even then, there will be something better than a world's series in the Metropolis this fall, for the Giants and Yankees are going to meet in a post-season series. And this will be sure to draw a larger crowd than any games for the world's championship.

Lajoie, who led the American league batsmen for over half of this season, has taken a slump in his stick work of late and has fallen off considerably. It now looks as though the great Tyrus would again have the honors.

Jack Martin had a tempting offer to play with the High Bridge team tomorrow afternoon, but Manager Doerflinger said, "Not by a long shot. I need you right here against this Dunellen bunch."

That Newark team has got to hustle to catch the Rochester nine in the race for the championship of the Eastern league. The leaders are now twenty-one points ahead of the Tigers.

Phil Sitton, one of the pitchers of the Jersey City team, established an Eastern league record in a game Wednesday against Rochester when he made four wild pitches in the nine innings. Three of the unguided heaves were chalked up against him in the third inning. Needless to say the Rochester team won the game.

VARIOUS SPORTS.

Despite the long and bitter struggle against it, the pugilistic game has been resumed in San Francisco and bids fair to continue ad infinitum. Owen Moran, the English prenomenon, appeared again yesterday in the roped arena and gained a decision over Frankie Burns. Moran was boxing with Tommy McCarthy last year when the latter was killed by falling on his head in the ring. This resulted in the agitation against the game.

FOWLER'S FINAL APPEAL

Victor Murdock and W. P. Martin Also Entertain Small Crowd.

HOWARD TRACY CHAIRMAN.

Congressional Aspirant Pays His Respects to Newspapers and also to Those Who Influence the Votes of Others.

Another appeal for support in the campaign he is waging to obtain the congressional nomination at the Republican primaries on Tuesday, Sept. 13, was made by Charles N. Fowler at the Plainfield theatre, last night. As at the previous meeting, Howard C. Tracy, formerly chairman of the New Idea central committee, had charge, and it was necessary for him to act as chairman as well there apparently being no representative citizen willing now, as there has been in former years, to preside. The audience was also treated to other oratorical dessert provided by Representative Victor Murdock, of Wichita, Kansas, and William P. Martin, of Essex county, the progressive candidate for Governor.

Mr. Fowler was not so wild as he was a week ago when speaking here and this was due in all probability to his being worn out by the aggressive campaign here. But he was just as careless at times in his utterances and played to the gallery in capital fashion.

His recklessness in speech and his purpose to cast reflections on the Republican organization was just as evident as ever for he said:

"The man who would stoop down into the gutter of infamy and say to any of these honest thinking men who express an opinion so and so, 'I want you to go over to the interests of so and so,' is a mean contemptible soul. This influencing by intimidation or buying by price the expression of opinion of another citizen of this great country is a shame and the man who does such contemptible work is a Hessian.

Taking a rap apparently at the Republican dailies in the Fifth Congressional district, all of whom are supporting Judge William N. Runyon's candidacy for the nomination, Mr. Fowler fired from his mud-battery this slime:

"It is the duty of the newspaper man to go around among the people and gather the honest opinions of men so far as possible and give expression o their opinions in a fair, unbiased manner and not allow the opinion of the people to be subverted by the payment of $100 or $200."

Mr. Fowler stopped talking when William P. Martin walked on the stage and strange to say there was no applause when the Essex county man began his speech. He made a brief address, just such a one as he had delivered elsewhere and as of the same order as might be expected from such a source.

Victor Murdock was the first speaker as he had an engagement to fill in Newark and his speech here was about the same as it was there. He flayed "Cannonism" to a whisper; praised Fowler to the skies and had some egotistical things to say of himself. The congressman of red hair and red vocabulary is even more eloquent, more dramatic than Mr. Fowler and as an acter has Sothern as Hamlet beaten to a standstill.

Dinner for Mr. Besler.

On Thursday night, at Asbury Park, at the Hotel Lafayette, Mrs. Frost gave a dinner for W. J. Besler, vice president of the Central Railroad of New Jersey, who is a visitor with his family for early September. The decorations were in red. The guests were T. B. Koons, W. C. Hope, B. E. Chapin, G. Cullen, R. H. Wallace, G. L. Connor and Ira E. Whyte, all railroad officials; Mayor Appleby, Senator O. H. Brown, Henry C. Winsor, Harry Douty, Charles E. Frost and H. E. Denegar.

It is expected that many eleventh hour enrollments will be made today, tomorrow and Monday morning, as the entries do not close until noon on Labor Day.

The entrants for the several events are from some of the most noted cycling clubs in the ocuntry. Two of the crack riders in this section of the United States, Carl E. LARGE ADVANCE SALE FOR THEATRE SEASON

The sale of seats for the forthcoming productions at The Plainfield theatre, is reported to be large since the box-office opened on Thursday. Not only has there been a large demand for seats for the opening performance of "The Three of Us," on Monday, but many patrons have reserved the same seats for all the stock productions during the season. The announcement that Proctor & Sanderson will present only the best plays by their permanent stock company, has served to arouse much interest in local theatricals.

The management announces that patrons reserving seats for stock productions, can also retain the same seats for all other shows, by paying the difference between the popular prices and those charged for traveling shows. The subscription list is now open for the entire season.

The excellent stock company chosen by Proctor & Sanderson assures fine productions. Rehearsals have been held every day and when the first performance of "The Three of Us," is given Monday afternoon, patrons may expect something equal to the best New York production. The initial performance will be followed by the presentation of "St. Elmo," one of the best plays of the year. The following week, "The Man on the Box," which had a long run in New York, will be offered.

The theatre has been completely renovated and cleaned, and repainted, and in addition patrons will find a number of innovations that will add to their pleasure. The men's smoking room has been made attractive, while every attention will be given to the women in looking after their comforts. Women ushers will be introduced. As announced there will be a performance every afternoon and evening during the week. In addition to the stock productions the management has also booked the latest and best New York plays which will be seen here during he season.

COLONEL JOHN DEAN TO SPEAK AT ARMY MEETINGS.

Colonel John Dean, head of the Salvation Army Training College in New York, and one of the army's best speakers, will conduct the services at the local corps this evening and tomorrow. The colonel recently came from the International Training School in London, where he was closely associated with General Booth and the various international leaders of the army.

Col. Dean is a preacher of the old-time Gospel and success has followed him. This will be his first visit to this city and the public is cordially invited to hear him. All services have been transferred from the summer tent to the hall on East Second street, which has been attractively painted and renovaed.

State Trust Co.'s New Vault.

The new forty-ton vault made by the Manganese Steel Safe Company for the new State Trust Company, will be placed in the company's banking quarters at Park avenue and East Second street, tonight. The work of moving the large vault from the railroad siding on Park avenue through the avenue has attracted a great deal of attention. The small force of men employed have moved the vault with remarkable rapidity.

EVENTS FOR LABOR DAY

What Plainfielders Will Do and Where They Will Go on Monday

PLENTY OF ENTERTAINMENT.

Golf, Baseball, Horse and Bicycle Races and Tennis—Opening of the Theatrical Season.

Labor Day, which winds up the summer vacation period, and is the last holiday until winter, will be generally observed in this city and vicinity, as usual. Many Plainfielders will take advantage of the fact that the day follows Sunday, and have planned to spend the two-days' holiday at the mountains or seashore, but there will also be a large number of Plainfielders returning home from their vacations and if the weather is favorable they will enjoy the varied program of sports arranged for the day.

There will be special events in golf, both at the Plainfield Country Club and the Park Golf Club. At the former club there will be two competitions, an 18-hole handicap in the morning with prizes for both classes, and a four-ball match in the afternoon at 18-holes medal play, handicap. Best ball of team at each hole to count. There will also be social features at the clubhouse, together with the serving of luncheons and dinners.

At the Park Golf Club there will be play for the Holiday cup, member's handicap competition, thirty-six holes, medal play, morning and afternoon; an approaching and putting contest, mixed couples; open to members and their guests, to start at 5 o'clock, and a driving contest, open to members, to start at 4:30 o'clock. Plans have also been made for a tea at the clubhouse, at which some of the women members will preside. In addition to the golfing events, there will be a tennis tournament on the club's courts.

There will be plenty of baseball for the local fans, as the Plainfield Baseball Club has ararnged to play two games on Crescent Oval with the McNulty Bros.' team, of New York, old rivals. The morning game will start at 10:30 and the afternoon contest at 3:30 o'clock. During the past three years that these teams have been playing together, Plainfield has won two contests, and they hope to redeem themselves on Monday. There will be numerous other games of more or less interest in the vicinity. The Y. M. C. A. did not schedule a game for the day.

Another sporting event of great interest will be the bicycle road races over the Mountain avenue course, commencing promptly at 1:30 o'clock in the afternoon. There will be eight races in all, from one to ten miles, with suitable prizes to the winners. The races will be held under the auspices of the Plainfield Cycling Club, and have attracted a large number of entries.

The members of Company K will journey to High Bridge for the day, where they will take part in a big celebration, parading and giving an exhibition drill.

Captain Hewitt, of the Salvation Army, has arranged for a big free outing for the poor of the city, to be held at Wayside Park, Dunellen, and this promises to be a success. Many owners of autos have consented to loan their machines for a few hours to convey the people to and from the picnic grounds. The Danish Lutheran church will also hold a picnic at Christopher Lundbacker's new residence, Fairmount and Park avenues.

For those who love trotting races, the Westfield Driving Club has arranged an attractive program for the afternoon at Fair Acres track, Westfield, and among the important entries will be "Miss Syracuse," of Newark, and "Aaron B.", A. C. Blair's speedy trotter, of this city.

The Plainfield Public Library and Reading Room will observe the usual holiday hours, the library being opened with an attendant in charge. The local druggists will close their stores in the afternoon from 1 to 6 o'clock, according to the custom on holidays.

The day will also mark the opening of the local theatrical season, when the Proctor & Sanderson stock company will open The Plainfield theatre with "The Three of Us." There will be matinee and evening performances. Proctor's theatre on Front street will also offer an attractive bill of vaudeville and life motion pictures.

Bad Boy Arrested.

Raymond Church, of Watchung avenue, was arrested by Marshal Pope last night on complaint of his family for threatening violence about the home and being under the influence of liquor. The youth was given a severe reprimand by the court this morning.

BORO. TO HAVE SEWERS

North Plainfield Council Legislates For Much Needed Improvment.

THE VOTE WAS UNANIMOUS.

All Part of Municipality to be Provided with Sanitary Sewer Connection—The Improvement Will Cost $300,000.

Without discussion, the ordinance providing for a sanitary sewage system in North Plainfield was passed on its third reading by the Borough Council last night. The vote was unanimous. After a resolution was made by Councilman Rogers and passed by the borough fathers, the ordinance was read for the third time by the clerk, Frederick A. Martin. One amendment was offered by Mr. Rogers, which provided that the word "Warren Township" be changed to "North Plainfield Township," that being the exact location of the disposal plant of the new system.

There was some discussion among the members of the Council regarding the necessity of putting the sewers through sections of the borough which were not occupied by houses, as is provided in the ordinance. It was decided that sewers through unoccupied districts would tend to build up such sections.

For the new sewerage system, the borough will be bonded to the extent of over $300,000. This will include the entire cost of the system. Work will be started before the winter sets in and as soon as the ordinance has been published in the North Plainfield newspaper, bids on the work will be received.

By the new system the borough will receive the sewer accommodations and there is an ordinance now before the Dunellen Common Council providing for a sewer system in that borough in connection with the North Plainfield system. The disposal plant will probably be located on the Zavolnack farm in North Plainfield township. This property has not as yet been purchased by the borough.

THINK WOMAN IS CAUSE OF SUICIDE

Police of the Second Precinct, Elizabeth are searching for the body of a well-dressed man who, it is believed, committed suicide last night by leaping from the Central Railroad bridge into the waters of Newark Bay.

About 7.30 o'cloc word was received from Smith's boathouse that a man jumped from the bridge. He was walking from the Elizabeth to the Bayonne side of the span, the message said, and when almost at the draw was seen to leap overboard.

The suicide was witnessed by John Van Moren, an Elizabeth fisherman, who was passing under the bridge in a rowboat at the time. Van Moren says he paid slight attention to the man until he saw him come to a standstill about fifty feet from the draw.

Suddenly, Van Moren states, the stranger threw off his hat and coat, almost inaudibly mutter the words, "She can't get me now," and cast himself in the water.

Van Moren hastily rowed to the place where the suicide sank, but although several minutes passed, he did not come to the surface again. It is possible that his body became entangled in the spiles of the bridge.

Van Moren's description of the suicide furnished no clue upon which the police can work. He was dressed like a man in god circumstances, and wore a light Panama hat, which, after being examined, was found to bear the initials "J. V. C."

The body of the suicide has not as yet been found. Van Moren is confident that he heard him refer to "she" before he jumped to his death. This makes the police believe that there is a woman implicated in the case.

Postponed Lecture Tomorrow.

Owing to the inclemency of the weather last week, the lecture announced to be given in the parish house of Grace church, by Rev. Seiler Salmon, minister in charge of the colored mission, will be delivered at the same place, tomorrow afternoon at 5:30 o'clock. The subject will be "Virtue in the Formation of Character," and the public is invited.

CAPTURE THIEF IN BORO

Michele Circello Captured by Marshals Keller and Culver After Robbing Store.

NOW BEING HELD IN BORO. JAIL.

Thief Caught After Chase in Dark Alley—Had Obtained $11.85 From the Cash Drawer.

After an exciting chase through a dark alley on Somerset street, early this morning, Marshals Keller and Culver, of the borough police force, captured Michele Circello, who had broken into Albert Jocoman's fruit store at 109 Somerset street, and looted the cash drawer and cigar-stand. The thief was caught with the goods as well as a loaded 32-calibre revolver. The alleged thief is being held in the borough jail, awaiting examination. It is believed by the police that he is the man that has committed several otherburglaries.

The manner in which the man was caught was a clever one and reflects credit on the marshals. At about 2 o'clock this morning, they noticed a short man leaving the alleyway side of Jocoman's fruit store. When the man saw the policemen, he started to run down the thoroughfare. The marshals immediately started in pursuit and when they overtook him, he suddenly turned and ran into the alley. He tried to climb the back fence but failed and he dashed into some tall weeds that were nearby and completely hid himself from the sight of his pursuers. A thorough search and he was located, by the aid of Marshal Culver's pocket flash light. When placed under arrest, he offered no resistance.

A search at the police headquarters revealed $11.85 in the man's possession and also a number of cigars and cigarettes. A long, thin steel knife was also obtained in the haul. An investigation of the premises of the fruit store told the entire story. The thief had cut the screen in the rear door and slipped the hook with the long steel knife. The cash drawer was open and the contents were absent.

When questioned by the police last night, the man, who is apparently an Italian, said that he lived in New York city, but would not give his name. He pretended that he could not understand and acted sullen and tired. This morning he gave his name to Chief Marshal Weiss, but would not impart any further information as to where he lived or whether he had been in the city or borough for any length of time. It is believed that this is the same man that entered Stanley's florist establishment early last night. Detective Sergeant Flynn, of the city police force, is working with Chief Weiss on the case.

Circello is a short man, about five feet, four inches in height and is of a slim build. At present he is in a sullen mood, but the police believe that he will soon become hungry and tell something about himself. The revolver, which the man had, was found by the policemen in the weeds, where the thief had hidden himself.

BOROUGH BILLS ARE ORDERED PAID.

In addition to the passing of the sewer ordinance, the Borough Council transacted the regular routine business. A protest was received from the residents in the vicinity of Codington avenue against the erection of a barn in that community. The matter was referred to the building committee. Two petitions asking for lights, one at the corner of Duer street and Gavin place, and the other for a light on Verdon street, were referred to the lighting committee.

Bills to the amount of $2,037.12 were ordered paid. The report of the Recorder, showing twenty-nine arrests made and $36 collected in fines during the month of August, was accepted. Councilman Stahl reported that the expenses of the fire department for the past month had been $307.03.

A bill received by the borough clerk from the F. L. C. Martin Co., for $104.92 for automobile hire at the time of the Buckley murder in April was ordered paid.

Mrs. Lillard to Reside Here.

Mrs. Theo White Lillard, of Elmira, N. Y., sister of Mrs. Nelson A. Miller, of Washington avenue, a noted violin soloist and teacher of violin, who was heard acceptably at the First M. E. church last June, has decided to reside here. After October 5 she will have a studio with Mrs. Hopcraft in the Babcock building.

Mrs. Frederick Dean and daughter, Nettie, of Cedar street, have returned from Greenboro county, W. Va., where they have been visiting Mrs. Dean's son, William Dean.

ARTHUR L. DRAKE DIES IN PHILA. HOSPITAL

Through an inquiry received by the Plainfield police today, it was learned that Arthur L. Drake, son of Mrs. W. H. B. Drake, formerly of this city, died at the Pennsylvania Hospital, West Philadelphia, today. A telegram was received by the police from Mrs. Arthur L. Drake, stating that her husband died, but that she was unable to locate his mother. She requested the assistance of the police.

Mrs. [illegible] Drake resided for many years on Orchard place, her husband being a well-known harness-maker in the employ of Thomas North, of Somerset street. He died in 1902, and Mrs. Drake continued her residence here for some time afterward. At the present time her place of residence is not known, but it was learned today that she has a sister-in-law, Miss Hannah Drake, who lives at 41 Burnet street, Newark, and the police will communicate with her in the hope of finding Mrs. W. H. B. Drake.

His mother gained considerable notoriety at one time by the loss of a large sum of money through the clever operations of a clairvoyant. She never recovered the money, although the police made every effort to get it for Mrs. Drake. Since he left Plainfield little has been known of Mrs. Drake's son.

FINAL MEETING AT FRESH AIR CAMP

The last Sunday afternoon service of the summer of the Netherwood Fresh Air Home will be held tomorrow afternoon at 3.30. While all the services this summer have been interesting and largely attended, tomorrow's promises to be the best of all. A fine program has been arranged. Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire, pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church, will deliver the address in the afternoon, which in itself will be worth going far to hear. The musical program, both vocal and instrumental, will be a rare treat. Mrs. Robert Humpstone will be the soloist, and E. D. Young will also sing, accompanied on the piano by Robert Humpstone, organist at the Park Avenue Baptist church. Messrs. Young, Bennet and Guest will be the cornetists. Several beautiful selections will be rendered by the children's choir, which is composed of camp children under the leadership of Clifford Braider, of this city, who has been training the children. Mr. Braider has picked some remarkably good voices for the solo parts.

Miss Curry will make a few remarks and a beautiful silver cup will be presented by the Christian Endeavor Societies of Union county to the larger boys of the camp, who have been under the care and direction of Henry McIlravy. Miss Curry has taken care of more children and mothers at the camp this summer than any previous year and every branch of the work has been unusually successful. Altogether it has been a season of wonderful results and everyone is cordially invited to attend the service tomorrow afternoon and see just what has been accomplished.

MRS. LAURA E. POPE DIED THIS MORNING.

Mrs. Laura E. Pope, widow of A. D. Pope, died this morning at the home of her son, George W. Pope, on New street, following a long illness from an incurable disease. Mrs. Pope's husband died on April 21 last and since that time she has appeared to fail rapidly.

Before her marriage, Mrs. Pope was Miss Laura E. King, and was the daughter of the late John King, a well known carpenter and builder. She had been a resident of this city about fourteen years and had many friends. She is survived by two sons, James L. Pope, of Grant avenue, and George W. Pope, of New street.

Defeated at Nyack.

In the tennis tournament of the Nyack Country Club for the Nyack Challenge Cup in Women's doubles, Miss Edna Wildey, the local expert, together with Miss Adelaide Brownee, defeated Mrs. John Weeks and Miss Griffin, in the semi-finals, 6-4, 6-1. They were beaten, however, in the finals by the score of 6-4, 4-6, and 6-4. The victorious pair was Mrs. W. H. Pouch and Miss Louise E. Hammond.

Miss Laura Woolston, of Fairview avenue, is spending her vacation at Belmar.

Mrs. Hoard, of Fairview avenue, has returned from a seven weeks' trip abroad.

Mrs. Harry Schaffus and daughter, of Fairview avenue, has returned from Stamford, N. Y.

EXCITING NIGHT CHASE

IS NOW CONFINED IN A CELL.

Charge a Serious One—Prisoner Remanded Until Monday Morning for Hearing.

After a lively set-to, just after 2 o'clock this morning, Robert Herzog, 26 years old, who boards at 722 West Fourth street, was landed in a cell at police headquarters and is being held to await a hearing on Monday morning. The charge against Herzog is a most serious one and one almost unheard of in this city.

Herzog gave the police one of the most exciting chases they ever had, after being almost lodged in his cell. When he did make the escape by jumping from the patrol wagon at the entrance to police headquarters, Patrolman O'Keefe, Saffron and Messler, together with Sergeant Overbaugh had the time of their lives in bringing the prisoner back. He was finally chased to Park avenue and was caught attempting to conceal himself under the porch of Dr. Corbussier.

According to the story learned by the police Herzog has been a boarder at the address given above and was a frequent visitor at the home of Mrs. Driscoll. The rule in the Driscoll home was that the last boarder in at night was supposed to lock the front door. Herzog was evidently aware that some one of the boarders was out when he arrived at the house last night for he took off his shoes and socks and softly ascended the stairs, arriving at the door he sought without attracting attention. He forced his way, it is alleged, into the room of Bertha Bender, the sixteen-year-old daughter of Mrs. Driscoll by a former marriage and attempted to commit an unspeakable crime.

Miss Bender's screams aroused her mother and the latter rushed into the room only to catch a glimpse of a fleeting form vanishing down the front stairs. Mrs. Driscoll rushed out into the street yelling for the police. Help soon came in the persons of Patrolmen O'Keefe and Messler and later these two were reenforced by Sergeant Overbaugh and Roundsman Higgins. A search revealed the hiding Herzog and he was quickly brought to book. Landed in the patrol wagon Herzog was deemed safe. Just as the wagon entered the yard at head quarters the prisoner leaped away from the policemen and nearly succeeded in making a getaway. They were alert, however, and quickly started in pursuit. The chase led up Sycamore street to Fifth, and through Fifth to Park avenue with the cops' revolvers barking at every step, arousing all that portion of the city. Up Park avenue to the door of Dr. Corbussier's home the fugitive ran. Here he disappeared under the stoop and after a few months' search he was hauled out and returned to headquarters where he is now lodged. The prisoner says he is an employe in a local factory.

HIGH COURT UPHOLDS THE AUTOMOBILE LAW

The Supreme Court, at Trenton, in an opinion handed down yesterday, sustained the constitutionality of the New Jersey automobile law by upholding the conviction of Frank J. Paine, a New York man, who was arrested in Paterson, for operating an automobile without a New Jersey license.

Paine made a trip through New Jersey without procuring a license, in order to bring the interstate commerce feature of the law squarely before the courts. The contention of the automobilists who supported Paine was that the imposition of license fee was a tax for revenue only, as therefore a violation of the constitutional provision on that subject.

The Supreme Court holds, however, that the Legislature acted within its prerogative when it passed a law putting resident and non-resident automobilists on an equal footing. The case probably will be carried to the Court of Errors and Appeals.

Back From Auto Trip.

Dr. and Mrs. J. C. Anderson have returned from an auto trip in Washington, Mount Vernon, Alexandria, and Arlington, Va. The run to Washington was made in fourteen hours and Dr. Anderson said that he could have made it in twelve hours if he had been alone. Only two accidents occurred to his little Buick car on the trip, these being tire troubles.

CASE AFTER CASE.

Plenty More Like This in Plainfield.

Scores of Plainfield people can tell you about Doan's Kidney Pills. Many a happy citizen makes a public statement of his experience. Here is a case of it. What better proof of merit can be had than such endorsement?

Robert Love, 44 Duer street, Plainfield, N. J., says: "For eight or nine years I was a victim of kidney complaint. Every cold I contracted, settled in my kidneys and caused my back to ache severely. Any heavy lifting or much standing gave me additional pain. In the morning upon arising, my back was very lame and this did not disappear until I exercised for some time. I doctored and used several so-called kidney cures, but it was only a waste of money. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills highly recommended in the newspapers, I procured a box at Randolph's Pharmacy and began their use. When I had taken about half the contents of the box, my condition was greatly improved and before long the pain left me entirely. I will always stand ready to speak a god word for Doan's Kidney Pills."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

AMONG OUR NEIGHBORS

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

Another big attraction on Labor Day will be a game in the afternoon, preceding the Caldwell game, between the single and married men of the borough. There has been no announcement as yet as to the official make-up of either team. Thirty aspirant baseball heroes, fifteen benedicks and as many happy men, are anxious to make their records on the diamond. This makes it difficult to arrange the exact line-ups of the teams as there is no authentic record on hand of the several abilities of these would-be ball tossers. But the borough fans, who would like to see a good merry-go-round and have a hearty laugh, want to be on the job at the Madison avenue field, Monday afternoon at 1.30.

Monday will be a big baseball day in the borough and Manager Charles Adams, of the local team has prepared an interesting schedule for the Dunellen baseball enthusiasts. In the morning the local ball tossers will line up against the strong All-Brunswick team and in the afternoon the Caldwell A. C. will be the attraction. Both games will be played on the Madison avenue grounds and it is expected that an extra large attendance will be on hand to witness the two contests. Jimmie Montross, the old standby of the Dunellen team, will be in the box in the afternoon game, and Manager Adams has engaged McCroskey, a New York pitcher, to twirl in the morning contest.

Beginning with tomorrow, the Sunday school of the Methodist church will meet at 2.30 in the afternoon instead of in the morning. A love feast will be held in the chapel at 9.30 tomorrow morning and at 10.30, the sacrament of the Lord's supper will be observed. The church bell will begin ringing five minutes before each of the services.

The residents of New Market are planning for a big carnival on Labor Day and the interest in the affair has spread throughout the entire village. The day will be taken up with athletic contests, baseball games, and a general good time for everyone. The Lakeside Social Club is in charge of the arrangements for the day.

An auto party from the borough went to the annual clambake of John Hollin's hotel, at Greenville, Thursday. Mr. Hollins, who is a resident of the borough, living on Washington avenue, owns a large hotel in New York city and the clambake is an annual feature for the entertainment of his employes.

Rev. Dr. W. A. Knox, pastor of the Methodist church, has returned from his vacation, which he has been spending in Ocean Grove. Dr. Knox will be in the pulpit of his church tomorrow and in the evening he will speak on "Some Vacation Echoes."

Rev. Henry N. Jordan, pastor of the Seventh-Day Baptist church of New Market, returned Thursday from a visit to Salem, West Virginia. He will occupy his pulpit today.

George T. Heaume, of the borough, has returned from a quick business trip to the British Isles. Mr. Heaume remained on the other side of the water for only two days.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Methodist church, will hold a meeting Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Ella Kennedy at 3 o'clock.

Rev. Earnest Brown, pastor of the Presbyterian church, has returned from his vacation, which he has been spending in Asbury Park.

98c TO $2.98

It's surprising to most women how we can sell such neatly, well-made dresses for the children, 4 to 14, at such very reasonable prices. A great many of those who used to do their sewing for the girls say they will not spend the time at the sewing machine when the ready-made dresses are so pretty, and fit so nicely, and such little difference in the price is not enough to pay for the bother and worry—for instance—we show a neat little Percale Dress in neat checks at 98c and $1.25, or a dress made of the ever serviceable "Galatea" at $1.69 and $1.98 and so neatly matched in trimmings, too. Then Checks and Plain Ginghams at $1.49, $1.98, $2.25 and $2.98. If you have been making your girls' school dresses, just try one of these and you will do less sewing this season.

JUNIOR SOCCER LEAGUE

Plainfield A. F. C. A Member of the New Amateur Football League.

SEASON OPENS IN TWO WEEKS.

New Organization Decides Not to Petition the A. F. A. for Admittance—Schedule of Games.

The Junior Amateur Soccer Football League, of which Plainfield A. F. C. is a member, has decided not to seek affiliation with the American Football Association, because it is the consensus of opinion of the members that they can pilot their own ship without the cost of joining the big body. The league will consider all its own protests and settle the amateur standing of its players for themselves. Any player who has not signed a professional or amateur contract to play for a senior team is eligible to the junior league. It matters not if he was a professional last year, so long as he hasn't signed a senior "blank" this year and doesn't receive money this year.

A schedule of Saturday games, providing for the opening of the season September 17, has been adopted, after the constitution was amended allowing any club that cannot play Saturday games to meet their opponents on Sunday when arrangements are mutually agreeable.

The Pomeroy Thistles, whose representative stated that his club had obtained the use of Wiedenmayer's Park, Newark, for their games, were admitted to the league as the eighth club.

The use of "field tags" of uniform size, showing the color of the home club, has been decided upon. With the exception of the Pomeroy Thistles, who were given four days of grace, all the clubs must file their players' contracts with the secretary by tonight, and the forfeit money by Saturday, September 10.

Referees, each club furnishing a name, will be assigned by the president. The officials will have absolute power over the players and will be instructed to squelch any attempt at rowdyism by expulsion from the game, even if the team is reduced to six men. As no man can be replaced in soccer this will be a severe penalty. The schedule, with the name of the home club first, is as follows:

September 17—Elizabeth United vs. Eureka A. A., American Types vs. Marshall A. A., Nairn A. A. vs. Plainfield F. C., Thomas A. A. vs. Pomeroy Thistles.

September 24—Pomeroy Thistles vs. Elizabeth United, Plainfield F. C. vs. American Types, Marshall A. A. vs. Nairn A. A., Eureka A. A. vs. Thomas A. A.

Chauncey Murphey, one of the Y. M. C. A. players, has been laid up this week with a severe attack of acute indigestion.

The Dunellen team has a hard schedule before it these two days. This afternoon the borough boys play the deciding game of the series with the Plainfield team on the oval. Monday morning, they will meet the All Brunswicks on the Dunellen grounds and in the afternoon of the same day, the Caldwell A. C. team will be their opponents.

On account of the players leaving town on Monday, the Y. M. C. A. will not buck up against the West End A. C., as the opening game of the double header Labor Day afternoon. But the local fans are sure of seeing two good contests on that day for the McNulty Brothers are scheduled to play here both morning and afternoon.

With this afternoon's game with the C. R. R. of N. J. nine, the local association team completes its season. And the Y. M. C. A. bunch has made a good showing this year, too.

The Giants kind of knocked at the door for admission to the "Can't Come Back Club," yesterday, by dropping two games to the Philadelphia Quakers. But Congressman Fowler also made out his application for admission last night in the Plainfield theatre.

"Smiling" Jimmie Montross will have his hands full in the pitching department today and Monday. He will twirl against the Plainfield nine this afternoon and then will oppose the Caldwell A. C. in the box Monday afternoon. Manager Adams, of the Dunellen team, says that Jimmie wanted to pitch the Monday morning game for the borough boys, too, but he thought it would be too much on the pitcher's strong arm.

McCroskey, a twirler from New York city, will be on the mound for the Dunellen team Monday morning.

And what do you think about those Brooklyn Trolley Dodgers taking two games from the Beaneaters yesterday? The two teams are now in the race for the wrong end of the handle of the National League banner, and every game counts.

Delehanty, the crack second baseman of the Detroit Tigers, did some great stick work in yesterday's game against the Chicago team. Out of four times at bat, he made a single, a double, and a home run. Cobb was also there with three hits in as many times at bat.

The Bound Brook team has a hard bone to crack today if it expects to defeat that Somerville nine. Both aggregations are playing the speediest sort of ball and the contest is sure to draw a big crowd.

There is a lot of baseball interest in the little town of Dunellen these days and the culmination of it has resulted in the married men of the borough challenging the single, care free citizens to a game on Monday afternoon at 1:30 as an opener to the big contest of the day. There are lots of benedicks and non-hubbies who have enrolled their names among the eligible ones and there is going to be a hot time in the old town on Monday.

GOLF.

Although the amateur championship tournament of the United States for this year is still to be played, the wires are already being worked in several localities regarding the blue ribbon event of 1911. It may be stated without fear of contradiction that the Oakmont Country Club, near Pittsburg is going to make a bid, and the writer is also informed that the Buffalo Country Club has aspirations the same way. Before Buffalo can talk championship, however, it must needs become an active member of the association. The Deal Golf and Country Club, which entertained the metropolitan delegation so royally last week, is also desirous of having the national.

At the annual meeting of the parent body in New York winter before last, Deal tried to secure the plum but was turned down. Later, when it became evident that Brooklyn was going to be the choice this year, the Deal golfers resigned themselves to their fate, but at the time stated they hoped heir claims would be considered in 1911. All hose who took part in the metropolitan tournament last week were enthusiastic over the condition of the course, and the professionals agreed that with a little trapping it could be brought up to every championship requirement.

Speaking of good courses, an enthusiast, who recently returned from Denver, where he saw the trans-Mississippi championship tournament decided, declares that the course there is the best he ever saw. He even goes so far as to place it ahead of Myopia. This is what he says in part:

"They have the best fair green I have ever seen anywhere, as their adjustable system of irrigation gives them water any place they want and at all hours. It beats the natural rainfall all to pieces."

N Y. AMUSEMENTS.

The New York Hippodrome opens for the season tonight with a big new triple bill entitled "The International Cup," "The Ballet of Niagara," and "The Earthquake," produced under the direction of R. H. Burnside, invented by Arthur Voegtlin and supplied with music and lyrics by Manuel Klein. Several hundred people have been added to last year's tremendous cast making the greatest number of performers ever seen together on the Hippodrome stage. The first of the three spectacles, "The International Cup" furnishes some entirely new and original stage effects including the flight of an airship and a yacht race, in which two full-rigged racing vessels are seen in motion. In this part of the program the circus is given and Marceline and Slivers Oakley help to furnish the fun. Performing bears, lions and elephants appear on the stage at one time. There are twelve big circus features in all. The second part of the program is given up to "The Ballet of Niagara"—an American ballet founded on a legend of the Iroquois Indians and presenting excellent opportunities for gorgeous costumes and scenery. The last spectacle on the bill is entitled "The Earthquake." The scenes are laid in South America, and here again Mr. Voegtlin has seized the opportunity for colorful and effective scenic setting. In this piece the great water tank is brought into requisition and the climax of "The Earthquake" is a Tidal Wave which is in keeping with all the splendid water spectacles which have preceded it. The Hippodrome show is without doubt the biggest entertainment of its kind in the world.

TICKET SCALPING KILLED AT TRENTON'S GREAT FAIR.

New System of Disposing of Reserved Seats Has Been Big Success.

One of the few amusement enterprises that have been successful in protecting their patrons from ticket scalpers is the Trenton Fair association. Last year a new system was introduced that worked out so admirably along this line that the management decided then and there to adhere to it in the future.

Reserved seats will be sold only through the mails, and all orders must be sent to Holmes La Rue, agent, box 105, Trenton, N. J. The advance sale will begin Tuesday, Sept. 13, and each order must be accompanied by cash, certified check, postal or express money order payable to the Interstate Fair association.

All orders will be filled according to the postmark on the envelope beginning with Sept. 12. No more than six tickets will be sold on one order.

Except on Thursday the price for reserved seats will be 50 cents for the grand stand and $1 for the clubhouse. Thursday the prices will be $1 for the grand stand and $2 for the clubhouse.

Under this system scalping is impossible and an absolute square deal is accorded to every patron.

The Danish Lutheran church will hold a picnic on Monday at Christopher Lundback's new residence, Fairmount and Park avenues.

Monday being a holiday, the Plainfield Graded Union will meet at the Y. W. C. A. rooms on Tuesday afternoon. Miss Lounsbury will teach the primary lesson and Mrs. L. R. Schofield the Junior lesson.

THE DAILY PRESS.

Plainfield, N. J., September 3, 1910.

MR. FOWLER'S RAVINGS.

Vainly scheming to make a wide-open breach in his party for his own selfish purposes, regardless of the cost to the Republican party, of which he makes pretense of being a loyal member, Charles Newell Fowler, the eloquent, egotistical and erratic one, is waging a campaign of mud-slinging and vilification that would become the cheapest demagogue. Instead of excusing his absenteeism in Congress; instead of explaining his record as an enemy of organized labor; instead of frankly confessing that all this rot and nonsense he fulminates about Cannonism is due to his mortified pride in being deposed as chairman of a Congressional committee where he had outlived his usefulness or had never been useful to his country; instead of being honest with the voters and giving them some tangible and sound arguments why he deserves, why he has earned, a renomination for a ninth term, he is pursuing a campaign of rancor and abuse that would bring the blush to the decent self-respecting voter.

As the Elizabeth Journal said editorially the other day: "Congressman Fowler's campaign was begun on the low level of personal vilification, mean insinuation and the most repulsive kind of attack on the members of his own party. He has not only kept up this kind of campaigning, but by his example has incited others to mud-slinging, slurring and carelessness of assertion."

That Mr. Fowler who forgets that he is not talking to a Kansas audience, but to a sane and intelligent Jersey constituency, has demonstrated that he is unworthy of the people's confidence, must be perfectly clear to every thinking man who has heard or read his vain, bombastic and yellow utterances. Take for instance the buncome he handed out here last night, as in his wild flights he gave vent to this ludicrous talk:

"The man who would stoop down into the gutter of infamy and say to any of these honest and thinking men who express an opinion so and so, 'I want you to go over to the interests of so and so,' is a mean contemptible soul." Is there a man in this community to be fooled by such bosh? Is there a living soul here who does not believe that that accusation may be laid only at the doors of Mr. Fowler's henchmen? The men of Plainfield know who are using the whip, who are able to control the votes of scores of loyal friends of Judge Runyon to such an extent that at their bidding, or because such voters crave their favor they are willing to betray a true friend, a capable candidate.

Now, just one more reference to this wild-eyed and feverished brained candidate. In a deceptive explanation why the Republican papers of the district, Union Morris and Warren counties, are supporting the candidacy of Judge William N. Runyon for the nomination, he uttered last night what he knew and what his audience knew to be an outrageous slander on newspaperdom. He said: "It is the duty of the newspapermen to go around among the people and gather the honest opinions of men so far as possible and give expression to these opinions in a fair, unbiased manner and not to allow the opinion of the people to be subverted by the payment of $100 or $200." Was ever a more vile aspersion uttered? Were there any evidence to support such a serious accusation, the newspaperman referred to should be driven out of the profession, for he is unworthy of an honorable calling. If Mr. Fowler knows as a fact what he insinuates to be true, it is his duty to expose such a creature. And this paper suggests that he come forward and name the man he accuses.

A Chapter in Stelle History

By O. B. LEONARD

CHAPTER III.

In the two former chapters of the Stelle family of Piscataway, Middlesex county, N. J., their origin has been given. Poncet and wife, Eugenie Stelle were the founders of the line in America. Of their seven children born in the new world after leaving France, their oldest child, Benjamin, settled in Middlesex county near New Brunswick, on the Raritan river. Through his descendants only is the Jersey line being traced in these few chapters. This oldest son became a minister of the gospel, pastor of the Piscataway Baptist church, publicly constituted 1689. At his death, 1759, there survived him (besides his two daughters Susannah Hull and Rachel FitzRandolph) three sons, Deacon Benjamin, Captain John and Rev. Isaac Stelle. Their mother, Mercy, had passed away in 1746, after all of her children had grown up and were married. It is not unquestionably settled what immediate family she belonged to. It has been generally agreed that it was the Drake lineage. But "Mercy" was a cherished name for daughters of the early Dunn, Dunham, Pyatt and Hull households. Yet the strongest claim for maternal ancestry is Mercy Drake as daughter of George Drake and wife, Mary Oliver. This is confirmed by the frequent occurrence of the Christian name of "Oliver" throughout the subsequent descendants of the Stelles.

This third chapter will record some of the numerous offspring of Rev. Isaac Stelle, youngest son of Rev. Benjamin and Mercy Stelle. Rev. Isaac Stelle was born February 6, 1718. Just after reaching his majority he married Christiana Clarkson, whose license to marry is dated April 22, 1740. She was a daughter of substantial members of his father's parish, John Clarkson and wife, Bithia FitzRandolph (of Joseph and Hannah. She became the mother of seven boys and two girls, all but one son and one daughter lived to mature years and raised large families. She died Sept. 27, 1778. A very flattering obituary of her amiable and Christian virtues was printed in the Philadelphia and New York newspapers of that time. Her funeral sermon was preached by her husband's bosom friend, Rev. Benjamin Miller, of the Scotch Plains church. His text was Ezekiel xxiv:16. The journal notice states she was in the fifty-fifth year of her age and had early made a public profession of Jesus Christ, and adorned the same with a becoming life. Rev. Isaac Stelle, for over thirty years had an active and useful life in religious affairs. His usefulness was not confined to his own church and congregation. Before his ordination to the Gospel ministry in 1751-2, and subsequently, for several years, he assisted his father in pulpit and pastoral duties. When the aged man of God ceased from his earthly labors in 1759, the son was invited by the mother church to take the full charge of the pastorate. This he did at once and for twenty-two years continued the faithful minister of this ancient people. In company with Rev. Benjamin Miller, of Scotch Plains, he used to visit frequently the young and feeble churches of the denomination throughout New Jersey and adjacent colonies. He was highly esteemed for his wisdom, sound judgment and pulpit gifts. With Miller and Gano, of New York, they were spoken of as "burning and shining lights." He must have been a man of more than ordinary vigor and consecrated piety to have been able to render so much assistance in other fields of Christian usefulness. The instances at our command are too numerous to mention in this brief outline of the multitudinous labors in which he took conspicuous part.

After his wife's death in 1778, he married again, January 5, 1780, Katharine Green. All his nine children were by the first marriage. He died October 9, 1781, in the 63rd year of his age. There survived him his last wife with six sons and one daughter (of the former union) as cited in his last will made 1781 and probated same year on seventh of November.

Of the seven children of Rev. Isaac Stelle, their son (1) Ambrose, died Feb. 28, 1760, and daughter (2) Mercy died Aug. 14, 1777; neither one being married. (3) Benjamin, born in 1742 was prepared for college at Hopewell Academy, N. J., entered Princeton and graduated in the class of 1766. He soon afterward located in Providence, R. I., and established a thriving Latin school. He married Hudah Crawford and had two daughters, the younger one Mary B., became the wife of Hon. Nicholas Brown, the benefactor of Rhode Island College to which institution his name was given and has ever since been known at "Brown University." While living in Providence he was a clerk in many years of the old Baptist church, of which President James Manning was pastor. He lived to be over seventy years and died in 1819.

(4) Mary Stelle, daughter of Rev. Isaac was born in 1754, Oct. 14. She married Aug. 15, 1780, Thomas Manning (son of Captain Nathaniel and Mary) and had six children, Mercy, Isaac, Stelle married Rachel Banker, had 11, Jeptha, married Elizabeth Stelle (of Isaac and Mary Crow), Capt. William and John Manning. She died March 29, 1837, and with her husband lies buried at Metuchen, N. J.

(5) John Stelle, son of Rev. Isaac, born 1745, was licensed Dec. 19, 1768, to marry Hannah De Bon Repos, a descendant of the Huguenot family. The first of this French name to settle in America was Rev. David de Bonrepos, pastor of the exiled colony at New Rochelle, N. Y. He had a brother Elie Debon Repos (1685-1734). The only children of John and Hannah Stelle known to the writer were Hudah, Christiana and Lewis, and nothing more has been recorded of the family except that they went south.

In another chapter or two will be narrated the descendants of the four sons of Rev. Isaac Stelle, who furnished by far the largest list of the family name. These sons were Abel, Joseph, Oliver and Samuel Stelle.

From a Man's Point of View

Having strolled into the room unconcernedly, the mere man paused in surprise. His eyebrows went up. Nobody paid the slightest attention to him.

At one table his wife was pounding doggedly, determinedly, with a little hammer, at something placed upon what looked like an old-fashioned bread-board. At a card table the young woman from three floors above hammered viciously with a little mallet at another bread-board. Between them, upright in a rocking chair, the young woman from the floor below wrinkled her fair brow as she tied mysterious knots in what looked like a heap of straw brought in from the barn loft.

"Excuse me," said the mere man, "but is this room No. 205, or isn't it? One gets so confused in a family hotel, you know—"

"Don't be any more foolish than you can help!" interrupted his wife, between poundings. "We're just doing Christmas things!"

"Oh!" said the man.

"It's brass work," explained his wife. "We are making electric-light shades, the perforated kind. At least Mrs. Tryem and I are. Flossie, however, is doing raffia work."

"Well," said the man, strolling over to the basket weaver. "I'm glad that one of you picked out a lady-like style of fancy work. It sort of gives tone to the assembly and takes the edge off the remarkably crude and brutal heartiness with which my wife and Mrs. Tryem are conducting a perfectly good imitation of a foundry. How have you noisy people squared yourselves with the persons in the rooms above, below and on either side of you?"

"Why," explained Mrs. Tryem, "we don't know who's above us and the man on the left is out and the woman on the right is deaf, so it's all right."

"I am so glad it's all right," said the man. "If they telephone up from the office, telling us to quit the racket or get out, I can just explain in a few brief, well-chosen phrases that they needn't worry because it's all right and that I was told so on excellent authority. What odd ideas women have! Taking a nice shiny piece of brass and spoiling it by punching holes all over it so they can hang it up and obscure what little light an unobstructed electric bulb gives!"

"But they are dreadfully pretty," protested his wife.

"Of course, that's different," admitted the man. "Give us beauty, even if we don't have light. It reacts on your soul and character, you know. I heard that once in a lecture and I've always remembered it, because the lecturer had such weird whiskers. But, say—you're way behind time! I can think of several ways in which you could simplify that work. That stiletto thing pounded by hand gets in only thirty or forty punches a minute. Just take your sewing machine, put in an extra heavy needle without any thread and let 'er go. Why, you could finish a whole shade in an hour!"

Mrs. Tryem gazed at him with speculative, fascinated eyes, but his wife looked scornful. "The chief charm of these things," she said, "is that they are hand work. Machinery-made stuff is always horrid. What could we do with the extra time if we did save it? We'd just have to find more things to do and for all you know they might be worse than this!"

"Then by all means don't," interupted the man, in haste. "Take just as long to do these as you choose. Do you leave the edges raw that way or do you put on ruffles of Irish crochet or what? Otherwise I don't see what you are ever going to do with all the yards of stuff you've been crocheting. Do you have stated times to pound your fingers or how do you arrange that? Nobody has smashed a finger since I came in, so I consider the entertainment a frost!"

"I can pound one of yours to jelly if you'll bring it over here," suggested Mrs. Tryem invitingly. "It might give you something to think about so you wouldn't continue to waste time as you've done the last ten minutes!"

"Anyhow," retorted the man, "it won't be a month before somebody will put on the market a machine that will punch the entire pattern on a dozen shades at one time with one punch and then you'll hate yourselves to think how you slaved! Flossie, here, little ladylike Flossie, is disturbing no one but herself with her work. If she chooses to tie harmless knots in pieces of straw, she just shall, bless her heart! You can burn up straw, you know, and get rid of it, but it's harder to dispose of brass. Of course, people can dig a hole in the back yard and bury it, but in cold weather the ground is so frozen—"

"See here!" cried his wife, with poised hammer, "would you very much mind going down and talking to some of the men in the smoking room for about an hour?"

"Indeed, no!" said the mere man, with injured spirit. "Not when you have turned my happy home into a boiler factory. Of course, against Flossie I have no grievance. She can string straws for hours if she wants to!"

"Aren't men perfectly horrid!" said Flossie as the mere man closed the door after him.

Little, But Oh My!

How important! There are plenty of low-priced Typewriter oils, but they are really dear at any price. Like Col. Sellers' Eye Water, the more you use the more you have to use. The carriage sticks—the wheels won't go round, the operator gets cross and work is delayed. Don't flood your machine with oil, only a very little is needed—but it must be the right kind. The LENOX kind absolutely will not gum, will make your machine run smooth and keep your temper unruffled—try it and be convinced—Price 20 cents a bottle, sent by mail anywhere upon receipt of price.

Milady's Mirror

To prevent stringiness and the showing of ugly cords in the neck massage the throat every night with a cream made from two gills of spermaceti, two ounces of white wax, ten ounces of almond oil, forty grains of borax powdered and ten drops each of oil essences of bergamot and rosemary. A pinch of powdered camphor should be put with the cream while it is melting, or half a teaspoonful of tincture of benzoin may be added.

Before this or any other cream is applied the throat must be carefully washed at night and the cream rubbed from chin to chest with a rotary motion. This work should last for five minutes at least. At the expiration of that time the cream may be lightly wiped off and a lotion made from a pint of high proof alcohol to an ounce of tincture of benzoin applied.

Following this, the head is to be bent back as far as it will go, which should be enough to stretch the throat cords, and alternating with the backward tilt the head must droop forward until the chin rests upon the chest. Afterward the head must be twisted first to one side and then to the other, the object of these movements being to keep cords and muscles strong and elastic and prevent their sagging and so destroying the throat contour.

The cream described above may also be rubbed into hollows of the chest to fill them out.

A woman who carries her head well—that is, the chin up—is less apt to lose the beauty of her throat than one who permits her head to droop forward. As a matter of fact, the head held up, the chin in place, is a beauty not common, but adds enormously to the effect of presence and distinction. A mistake not unusual to those trying to cultivate the habit is to thrust out the chin.

The Feet and Success.

The condition of the feet has a direct influence over one's success in life. Pain and discomfort make one irritable, and people are apt to attribute the irritability to a naturally bad temper. Moreover, pain and discomfort distract one's attention from business, be this social or commercial. On every account it is of great importance to have the feet as easy as possible. These remarks are merely passing touches of a subject whose full treatment would fill a volume. And in regard to considering ways and means you must be equally concise. One rule is to have the feet sufficiently warm and pleasantly cool. Another is to keep the feet dry, not merely on account of possible chills, but because moisture tends to make soft corns and to so soften the skin that friction may cause tenderness. Footgear, including socks and their substitutes, should be neither tight nor loose, but should fit easily. Tight boots cause pain by pressure. Loose boots occasion blisters and corns by friction. The uppers must be soft and pliable to accommodate themselves to the altered shape of the feet when standing, sitting, etc. The soles should be pliable. When they are stiff the feet are either lifted off the ground without the foot soles being bent, which is tiring and makes the walk hideous, or the feet are wearied by the effort at each step to bend the boot soles.

What's What In Hairdressing.

The matter of hairdressing this summer, says an authority, as regards the big shade hat or the motor hat resolves itself into the simple proposition of trimming the face. The woman who is able to trim her face with best results will have achieved the greatest triumph in hairdressing. As for the top of the head, it doesn't show much, and a simple bun surrounded with an appropriate design in puffs or coils or braids will do.

Hairdressing for the hat is divided into three parts—the utility part, when the hair is fastened where it ought to be so that there is something to build upon; the artistic part, which is after the hat is put on and the hair is draped to meet the knot at the back of the head and secured firmly, and the gay or picturesque part, when the little pin curls are tucked in and the final fancy pins are fixed in place.

Hairdressing as it should be done takes time. You do it slowly and you take infinite pains with it, but when once it is done it is done for all day. You don't have to keep repairing it.

To Prevent Tartar.

Tartar being an enemy to sound teeth and healthy gums, care should be taken to prevent tartar from forming. Use frequently a solution of tincture of myrrh, enough in a glassful to make it milky in color. The mouth should be carefully rinsed with an antiseptic wash immediately upon arising and before going to sleep. A good wash is made by adding one or two teaspoonfuls of listerine to a glassful of tepid water, but this must not be used too constantly. Another good mouth wash is thymol, seven and a half grains; borax, fifteen grains; distilled water, one pint.

GOLF COURSE RULES TO BE ENFORCED

At nearly every well-regulated golf club rules are in force governing three and four-ball matches on Saturdays and holidays, and at the Plainfield Country Club there is a rule in force providing that on Saturdays three and four-ball matches are permitted to start only before 1.30 p. m., and after 3.15 p. m., and on holidays only before 9.15 a. m., between 10.30 a. m. and 1.15 p. m., from the first tee at any time while a two-ball match is waiting to play. Of course, these rules do not apply when four-ball matches are scheduled for competition.

During the summer, however, these rules have not been strictly enforced but from now on during the remainder of the season, it is the intention of the golf committee to enforce these rules strictly. At the Montclair Golf Club the committee has prepared a set of regulations and local rules which they have had printed on cards and distributed to members requesting that they carefully study the regulations which have been adopted for the purpose of preventing possible misunderstandings regarding etiquette and practice of the game, and the following under the heading of "Priority of the Course," will be of interest to those who follow the game here.

A single match (two players or a two-ball match) has precedence or right of way through three or four-ball matches (except on Sunday afternoons or when regularly scheduled.) The three and four-ball matches must give way when they see a single match approaching or on request at any time during the round.

Players in the match play rounds of a competition shall have the right of way from the first tee over those merely engaged in a handicap event or ordinary use of the links.

"A single player has no standing, and shall give way to a match of any kind." (rules of golf.) He must allow any match to pass (local rule.)

If a match fails to keep its place on the green and loses in distance more than one clear hole on the players in front, it may be passed on request being made (rules of golf). It must give way on request (local rules).

In the case of a match starting out with a clear field ahead of it, that plays so slowly as to hold up the match following on three successive tees, it must give way on request.

Players looking for a lost ball should allow other matches coming up to pass them; they should signal to the players following them to pass, and having given such a signal, they should not continue their play until these players have passed and are out of reach (Etiquette of Golf). Players signaled to go through, either on account of a lost ball or by reason of "rules of priority," must be allowed to pass out of reach before the match passed plays another stroke (local rule).

Note: Out of consideration for those following, it is the duty of players to play through under the above rules, rather than be held back and hold back the entire field that is following.

Chalmers
MOTOR CARS

The Chalmers "Thirty" is the Only Medium Priced Car That Was Ever Awarded the Glidden Trophy

Never before has a car costing under $4,000 won the Glidden Trophy.

This year—the longest, the hardest, and most racking route ever undertaken—the Glidden Trophy was won by the Chalmers "Thirty" in competition with cars of more than twice its price, and rated power.

What more could you ask of any car, at any price?

With such a proof of its study and reliable quality, the demand for 1911 models is going to be even greater than last year, when the output was sold before the season was half over.

The increased demand will not effect the Chalmers policy of building cars of quality, not quantity, not how many cars, but how good, is our constant aim and effort, this is the principal reason for the fact that the Chalmers has never been defeated in any motoring event by any car of its price and power.

The 1911 Models are being delivered in order of purchase. Demonstration of new models by appointment.

Girls and Gifts.

The moment a girl is made to feel a sense of obligation for too costly or too frequent gifts she loses that happy sense of independence which is every young girl's right and should be one of her most carefully guarded treasures. Once lost, self-respect soon follows. Of course, there are occasionally careless or selfish girls who freely take whatever an acquaintance chooses to offer. Such girls can only learn wisdom by some unpleasant experience, if, indeed, they are capable of learning it at all.

FRESH AIR HOME CLOSES

A Silver Loving Cup For the Matron and Prizes For the Children.

REV. MR. MAGUIRE SPEAKS.

He Tells the Youngsters of the Poor Little Colored Children in Africa—J. D. Loizeaux Presides.

An unprecedented crowd attended the closing exercises at the Netherwood Fresh Air Home Sunday afternoon and evening and several events commemorative of the season took place. The presentation of a silver loving cup to Miss Curry and the awarding of medals to boys of the camp for results in Bible study being the features aside from the instructive talk of Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire.

Older boys who had been visitors at the camp in years gone by were present to take part in the services and to enjoy the felicitious part of showing their appreciation of what Miss Curry and his assistants have accomplished among the East Side children, of New York. The George Cadman prize was presented to Miss Fisher.

In the evening there was a special service in the auditorium at which big audience. She told but little of her own personal sacrifice, but dwelt on the splendid work of others. J. D. Loizeaux presided at both meetings and when Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire was introduced to the children, many of whom had heard of his wonderful trips through Africa, there ensued an attention which hardly has had its counterpart in the history of the camp.

Rev. Mr. Maguire gave an interesting talk to the children taking for his subject the African children and contrasting their condition with that which surrounds the American. The advantages of the latter are so far superior to those of Africa that it made the poor little colored folk seem to be just what they have been said to be by missionaries from that country.

Mr. Maguire told of the conversion of one little fellow, Amoki, who learned under the tuition of the man who told the story, how to read and write English. This boy became a splendid missionary himself through the efforts of those who took the gospel to the center of Africa and when he was poisoned by one of the venomous snakes and knew that he had to die he declared that he had seen a vision of the Saviour and his people hearing it became one of the greatest bands of native missionaries in the Dark Continent.

Mr. Maguire's story kept the little folks and all the audience in rapt attention and at the conclusion of the talk could not escape the eager questioners who surrounded him and plead for more information about Africa.

SALVATION ARMY OUTING ENJOYED BY CHILDREN.

A very enjoyable outing for poor mothers and children was given Saturday by the local corps of the Salvation Army. It was held at Wayside Park, Dunellen. At nine o'clock in the morning stages and trucks filled with happy children and mothers, about 150 in all, left the Salvation Army hall and made their way to the picnic grounds. Everything that would bring pleasure to the children was provided; suitable games and sports were enjoyed and prizes were distributed to the winners of the foot races.

An abundant lunch, consisting of sandwiches, bananas, ice cream, lemonade and cake was served free to all. Many mothers with their children remarked that this was the only outing they had had during the whole summer. The return trip was made by trolley.

The Green Eyed Monster.

Charged with threatening to kill Mrs. William Holmes, a widow, colored, of West Fourth street, Thomas Edward Johnson, sometimes known as Grouch, was arraigned before Judge Runyon yesterday morning and sentenced to hereafter leave the widow alone. This was the only remedy left when the stories of the warring colored people had been heard by Judge Runyon. Mrs. Holmes declared that Johnson had once declared that he would carve her uniess she became his. He swore yesterday morning that he didn't want either her or any part of her relations He wanted his clothes and was assisted in removing them by his employer who knows Johnson to be a respectable man. It would appear that jealousy had had much to do with the severing of the friendly relations of the two people.

Dr. Charles G. Davis, of 431 Park avenue, will return this week from Wolf, Wyoming; where he has been spending his vacation.

ANNUAL REUNION OF THE HUMMER FAMILY

The seventh annual reunion of the Hummer family residing in this part of the State was held yesterday at the home of Henry Hummer, at Stelton, where a large gathering partook of a fine dinner and enjoyed the day's program. One of the features was the presentation of a handsome bunch of roses to Mrs. Ann Hummer, of Annandale, by her children, grandchildren and great grandchildren. The bouquet comprised eighty-two roses, for as many years as she was old.

The presentation speech was made by Henry Hummer and the response was by Joseph Anderson, of Stanton, on behalf of Mrs. Hummer, expressing the wish that she might be able to meet with the family for many years to come. There were representatives of the family from Annandale, Stanton, New Market, Dunellen, Middlebush, East Millstone, Somerville, Plainfield, Union Hill and Stelton. The gathering dispersed toward night all looking forward to the next reunion to be held a year hence, which will be in the form of a picnic. Henry Hummer, of Stelton; Joseph Anderson, of Stanton and Charles Hummer, of North Plainfield, were appointed to make necessary arrangements.

MOY MASS MEETING ON THURSDAY NIGHT

In order to let the Republican voters know where he stands on local questions and what policies he considers best for an administration of the city, George W. V. Moy will speak at a mass meeting to be held in his interest as a mayoralty candidate at the Y. M. C. A. auditorium on Thursday night. The meeting will begin at 8 o'clock sharp. Mr. Moy announces that his topic will be "Municipal Affairs."

Another meeting in his interest will be held before the primaries on Tuesday, probably either on Saturday or Monday night, at the same place. On that occasion others beside Mr. Moy will talk on local issues. An opportunity will be given anyone in the audience to ask the candidate where he stands on any local political question.

Former Sheriff B. Frank Coriell, who is being supported by the "regulars" for the mayoralty nomination, is making a quiet campaign. He has not arranged for any meetings.

KARDZIK ON RAMPAGE; MUST PAY FOR DAMAGE.

Maybe Albert Kardzik, a boarder with Mrs. Minnie Schorbak, of 512 West Fourth street, will have more care in his future conduct after he has paid for the seven broken windows which he put his fists through last night. Kardzik was in love of the kind of booze distributed at the Polish ball held on the preceding night. This morning when Kardzik was araigned before City Judge Runyon this morning he presented the appearance of a person passed through a threshing machine. His shirt was bloody and his clothing appeared to have been pressed with a mattress.

After the story of Kardzik's doings had been vividly portrayed to Judge Runyon by the boarding house mistress the magistrate decided that it would be just and righteous for the young fellow to repair the damage he had done. He promised to do it just as soon as he could communicate with a sister living in North Plainfield. Chief Kiely took care to see that the sister was sent for.

TAUB LOSES HORSE IN A STABLE FIRE.

At a fire in his stable on Fifth street near Franklin place at 8:15 last night, Harry Taub lost a valuable horse and Captain Feiring, of the fire department, had a narrow escape. The horse was badly burned and died shortly after he was led from his stall by Feiring, who was severely burned about the arms. The blaze was quickly gotten under control after $150 damage to the building had been done.

The fire was caused by the breaking of an oil lantern, which Mr. Taub was carrying near the horses's stall. The blazing oil ignited the straw and Mr. Taub ran into the house to telephone the fire department. Edward Baker, who was passing by, pulled box 23.

Opens Law Offices in New York.

Philip Leichtentritt, formerly of this city, announces that he has opened offices at 116 Nassau street, suite 1124-25, New York city, for the general practice of law. Mr. Leichtentritt formerly attended the Plainfield High School and later the Columbia Law School.

NEW CHURCH IN THE BORO.

Father Miller Digs First Spadeful of Earth For St. Joseph's.

SIMPLE CEREMONIES IMPOSING.

Hundreds of Parishioners of North Plainfield Roman Catholic Church Attend the Ceremonies.

An imposing ceremony in which nearly the entire congregation of St. Joseph's R. C. church joined at 7:30 yesterday morning formally denoted the spot where the new edifice which Rev. William H. Miller has had in mind for several years will be built.

The solemn ceremonies accompanying the dedication of the ground for the new church edifice were accomplished with the assistance of several of the most earnest workers of the parish and included R. H. McCullough, Andrew E. Kenney, E. P. Gavin, J. A. Blatz, Robert McCormick, Peter McDonough, J. C. Keegan and many others.

After the early morning mass hundreds of the congregation in which were included the acolytes and singers of the choir the entire body of people accompanied the pastor of the church to the place where the new ground was to be consecrated to the service of God.

The accompanying children chanted the hymn of "Glory to God" and then followed the blessing of the ground. Father Miller, the pastor of St. Joseph's uttered the prayer in which Divine aid was asked for the success of the work and he turned up the first spadeful of earth.

NATIONAL GUARDSMEN VISIT HIGH BRIDGE

Fifty members of Company K attended the celebration of the 200th anniversary of chartering of the town of High Bridge yesterday and were right royally entertained by the members of the committee having the celebration in charge. Captain Kitchell with his fifty men marched in the parade which included members of the Jr. O. U. A. M., Red Men, Haymakers, Knights of Pythias, Odd Fellows and delegations from several other societies.

The celebration was one of the old fashioned kind in which everybody joined with hearty enthusiasm until the oppressive heat and humidity caused deflections from the ranks. A fine dinner was served in the rooms of the High Bridge Board of Trade to which Company K did ample justice. The heat prevented the special drill which the committee had planned for, but the marching of the K boys more than offset the disappointment of the spectators.

Many of the men in line had heard of the success of the "Jersey" boys at Sea Girt and when they passed the numerous groups of girl admirers they returned their salutes with cheers. Most of the boys of Company K would have been glad to have been at Sea Girt, but they were thankful to be alive and receive the welcome of the inhabitants of High Bridge.

Cole—Leach.

Miss Sophronia H. Cole, of Madison, sister of Mrs. C. B. Stephens, of Grandview avenue, North Plainfield, and John B. Leach, of Bangor, Pa., were married Saturday night at the home of Mrs. Stephens. Rev. Oro J. Shoop, pastor of Grace M. E. church, performed the ceremony. Only the immediate relatives were present and after the ceremony a wedding supper was served. The couple will reside at Bangor, Pa.

Twenty Years' Service.

On Saturday P. S. Kiely, chief of the Plainfield police department, completed his twentieth year of active service. He was subjected to the importunities of his friends who wanted to tender their congratulations and managed to escape them only by declaring that he was twenty years younger than he was twenty years ago and that he was good for more than twenty years more.

Cashman—McMurtry.

Miss Mary M. Cashman, of 2000 West Front street, and Raymond C. McMurtry, of 22 Manning avenue, the borough, were married Sunday night by Rev. Ora J. Shoop, pastor of Grace M. E. church, the wedding taking place at the parsonage. The couple will reside here.

Judge William N. Runyon, candidate for the Republican congressional nomination, will address the Rahway Republicans tonight under the auspices of the Rahway Republican club.

MORELLO USED HIS GUN

APPARENTLY NO ONE HURT.

Italians Quarrel Over Money Matters and Morella Tries to Settle With Bullets.

Saved only because the aim of his would-be assailant was poor, Doninick Scrapello is thankful to be alive today. Scrapello and a friend named Morello, a fellow Italian came to a heated argument over money matters on Sunday evening with the result that Morello is alleged to be a fugitive from justice and is being sought by the police of Jersey City, Brooklyn and New York.

Early Sunday evening it is alleged that Morello and Scarpello entered into an argument in which the principal theme was some money which Morello claimed that Scarpello owed him and which had been due for several months. Wordy war followed the first claim and when words failed to convince Scarpello, Morello used his ever-ready gun. In all five shots were fired, none of which took effect, although it is said Scarpello fell to the floor as though wounded. None of the Plainfield police could detect traces of blood anywhere in the vicinity of the alleged crime and up to now none of the witesses can tell what happened to Morello, excepting that he had made good his escape after the last shot from his revolver was discharged.

The noise of the altercation had attracted a numebr of the residents in the Italian colony near Hunter avenue, Scotch Plains, but it seemed impossible to obtain a coherent account of what actually transpired when Morello and Scaruello came together. Scarpello, it is said, has always borne a good reputation and it is further declared that the two men have held amicable business relations for several years.

A warrant has been sworn out for the arrest of Morello and a description of the man has been sent broadcast over the country. No one was struck by the flying bullets.

H. G. ADAMS ENDORSED

For Position as Secretary to N. J. State Firemen's Relief Association.

HAS LONG VOLUNTEER RECORD.

District Court Clerk Since 1906 is Candidate for Position Held by William Exall, of Newark.

Whether William Exall, the present incumbent, secretary of the N. J. State Firemen's Relief Association, shall succeed himself and enjoy the emoluments of his office to the exclusion of any other candidate will be a matter which will be threshed out at the annual convention of the association at Atlantic City on September 15. There is a feeling among those who are most intimate with the inner workings of the association that Horace G. Adams, one of the most active members of the old volunteer association, deserves the position now held by Mr. Exall, and with any doubt there will be a warm fight on for the position when the question comes up in its regular order.

Mr. Adams was endorsed for the position of general secretary at the meeting of the Exempt Firemen's Association meeting held in North Plainfield on August 8 and this endorsement will have considerable weight with the delegates at the convention. There is a feeling among the members of the relief association that a member of the exempts, and one who is not under the pay of the present paid department should have the office which carries with it a salary of $800 per year.

Mr. Adams is well known as the clerk of the District Court in this city, was born in Newark February 1, 1871, and obtained his education in the public schools of that city. He came to Plainfield in 1887 and served an apprenticeship in the Pond Tool and Machine Works, afterwards being for many years in the employ of the Scott Press Works.

After his appointment as clerk in the District Court in January, 1906, Mr. Adams filled that position with more than ordinary intelligence and today enjoys one of the largest acquaintances among lawyers and other professional men in this city.

As to Mr. Adams' record in the old volunteer fire department there is no one who holds a better one. He entered the North Plainfield department in April, 1892, and served seven successive years. He has been affiliated with the relief association since its inception and is at present one of its trustees. Mr. Adams has represened the association at its regular conventions for the past four years and has always taken a lively interest in the matters looking to the best for the volunteers. He believes that an old volunteer deserves the support of the entire association and he is out for the position.

ROB'T HERZOG HELD WITHOUT BAIL FOR GRAND JURY.

When Robert Herzog was arraigned before Judge William N. Runyon yesterday morning in the city court, he pretended to not understand what was said to him, but his understanding was sharpened when he was told that he would be held without bail to await the action of the grand jury on one of the most serious crimes on the calendar.

It was alleged by a sixteen-year-old girl who was brought before Judge Runyon that Herzog was guilty of the attempt upon her, and after her positive identification of the man he was remanded to a cell pending his removal to Elizabeth, where he will have to stand trial. Herzog claimed that he had but one friend in this country and that he would like to consult with her. She was sent for by Chief Kiely, and may undertake to act in defending the man.

Connett Confesses Thefts.

For alleged breaking and entering, William Connett, twenty-one years old, a colored man, was held under $200 bail yesterday by City Judge William N. Runyon for the action of the October grand jury. Connett was caught and arrested after a struggle with his captor on last Friday night while in the act of robbing the store of Honeyman Bros., on Madison avenue. It is said that the prisoner has confessed to having been the perpetrator of several other crimes of like nature in this city during the past few months.

Lyons Denied the Beating.

John Lyons, of West Third street, was araigned before City Judge William N. Runyon yesterday morning on a charge of being drunk and disorderly. The disorder consisted of beating his mother and father. After listening to the story of the young man Judge Runyon suspended sentence owing to the non-appearance of the man's parents.

'CITIZENSHIP' THE TOPIC OF JUDGE W. N. RUNYON

Speaking for twenty minutes on "Citizenship," Judge William N. Runyon at the Mt. Olive Baptist church last night moved a big congregation to applause time and again as he pointed out the true duties of a man in this Republic. The meeting was in the nature of a sacred entertainment given by the organ club of the church, and the judge had been invited to deliver the principal address.

Rev. Mr. Vaughn, the pastor, introduced Judge Runyon. He referred to him as a man of high character and ability, who had given much of his time in the uplifting of his fellow man and one in whom those of all creeds, color and occupation in life have the greatest confidence.

Judge Runyon impressed upon the congregation what is meant by the ideal citizen; what makes the ideal citizen and how essential he is to the well-governed community and to the country at large. Honesty with one's self and with his fellows tends to the development of a character that is worth more than great riches, he said. He urged his hearers to model their lives after that of the greatest negro of the country, Booker T. Washington, president of Tuskeegee Institute.

In addition to Judge Runyon's address, there were solos by Clark Munroe, G. P. H. Janeway and Miss Maude Green, all of which were enjoyable.

TWO LARGE AUDIENCES GREET STOCK COMPANY

The local theatrical season was opened yesterday at The Plainfield theatre, by the New Stock Company, under the management of Proctor & Sanderson, with the presentation of "The Three of Us," a western comedy play in four acts, by Rachel Crothers. Two performances were given, afternoon and evening, and both times the playhouse was filled with patrons, the "standing room only" sign being displayed last night before the first act was half over.

The play is a strong one, full of good, wholesome comedy, and each act concludes with a genuine climax that arouses the audience. The different parts were well taken by the cast, and all things considered, the initial performances went along smoothly.

Miss Carry Lee, who takes the leading character, that of "Rhy MacChesney," being one of "The Three of Us," worked hard. Her acting was filled with earnestness and she appeared perfectly natural in her desire to keep "The Three of Us" together through adversity. Miss Eleanor Woodruff, the second woman in the company, who played the role of "Mrs. Bix," was good in the part.

Harold Mead, who took the leading male part, that of "Stephen Townley," and a western miner, who has struck it rich, played the role well, and John Dougherty, as "Louis Beresford," a man of means, who through secret information buys Mrs. Bix's mine, thereby precipitating a quarrel between himself and Rhy MacCresney, whom he loves and desires to marry, did well also.

Miss Laurie Davidson, as "Maggie," the Irish maid, kept the audience laughing. The other parts that were well taken were Fred Spear, as "Clem MacChesney"; John A. Robb, as "Tweed Bix"; Warren F. Hill, as "Lorrimer Trenholm"; James Frawley, as "Hop Wing," a Chinaman, and Johnny Hines, as "Sonnie MacChesney."

Among those who witnessed the performance yesterday was F. F. Proctor, who is associated with Mr. Sanderson, and he was well pleased with the opening. He said that it would take a few weeks for the company to perfect itself, and he felt sure that the public would be well plased with the futur work of the organization. He said that the greatest care had been taken in the selection of the cast and that the best results are expectd. Matinee and evening performances will be given every day, and on Thursday "St. Elmo" will be offered for the last three days of the week.

Dr. Gardner's Fine Sermon.

Rev. Dr. T. L. Gardner, editor of The Recorder Press, preached a fine sermon at Trinity Reformed church, Sunday morning, taking for his text, 1st Timothy, 4-8, the last clause of the verse: "Godliness is profitable unto all things, having promise of the life that now is, and of that which is to come."

Crap Players Released.

Five colored men were collared playing craps on Saturday afternoon by Patrolman Dobson, but of all the five none would swear against his brother and they were all discharged. Their next offense will result in a heavy fine.

2 KILLED BY EXPLOSION

Victims Alone in Moving Picture Storehouse at Time of Accident.

VALUABLE FILMS ARE LOST.

Cause of Fatal Mishap at Pathe Freres Plant Unknown—Charred Bodies of Victims Found by Workmen.

Fred W. Miller, aged 35 years, of South Bound Brook, and Louis Streiff, aged about 30 years, both employed by the Pathe Freres Moving Picture Company, at Bound Brook, lost their lives at the company's plant, this morning, as the result of a fire in the storehouse. What caused the fire will probably never be known, as the only persons who were present at the time were the two who were burned to death. There is a rumor that one of the men, in violation of the rules, struck a match to light a cigarette and that the head of the match flew off into the highly combustible materials used for making films.

Practicany everything was destroyed in the concrete building used as a storehouse, and aside from the death of the two men, the loss is a heavy one, as thousands of strips of negatives and finished work, as well as thousands of feet of unprinted films which cannot be duplicated, were found very soon after the fire by other workmen about the place.

The blaze did not reach any other part of the plant, as it was confined entirely to the storehouse, which occupies a central point in the tract of land upon which the company's buildings are located.

Mr. Miller, who was an American, had been employed by the company for several months and was well-known at Bound Brook. Mr. Streiff was a Frenchman and had only recently come to this country to take a position at the works. He was recently married. He leaves a young wife, as does Mr. Miller.

SEARCH FOR HEIRS OF MICHAEL CURRAN

Chief of Police Kiely has received from Edward Trautwein, of Cedarhurst, L. I., a communication which may prove of interest to the family of one Michael H. Curran, whose last address in this city was at 45 William street, now known as Plainfield avenue.

It is said that some property belonging to the Curran family mentioned in the letter is awaiting the heirs in the Long Island town and it is in the hopes of locating these heirs that the news has been handed to the local newspapers.

The actual amount of the value of the property has not been stated, but it is believed to be considerable. Anyone knowing of the whereabouts of the Curran family will confer a favor upon the Chief by notifying him.

AMONG OUR NEIGHBORS

DUNELLEN.

A meeting of the Dunellen Second Football team was held Thursday night in the Dunellen A. C. rooms. There was a large attendance and plans for the coming season were discussed at length. It was decided to lease the Madison avenue football and baseball grounds for this fall, and to begin practice work on September 8. All of the twenty-six members that were present at the meeting were enthusiastic over the prospects for a fast team this year, and from present indications one of the speediest elevens in the vicinity will represent the borough on the gridiron this fall. Manager Peter Mowen has been preparing a schedule, which will include some of the best teams in this section of the State, and the football enthusiasts in the borough are sure to see some battles of blood.

While Louis Block, Jr., was riding his bicycle down the New Market hill, Thursday afternoon, he was thrown from the wheel by a big Newfoundland dog, which ran out from a house nearby and jumped at his machine. Young Block fell over the handlebars of the bicycle and landed on the roadway with considerable force. He was stunned for a minute by the fall, but later picked himself up and went home. His face was badly cut and one hand was severely bruised and lacerated.

On account of the rain Saturday afternoon a large number of the borough fans, who had planned to see the deciding game in the series between the local nine and the Plainfield team, were compelled to remain at home and think about the outcome of the postponed game. It is probable that the delayed contest will be run off some time in the near future.

Shortly before twelve o'clock, Sunday night, two automobiles collided on the bridge at Manion's corner. The machines were totally wrecked, but the occupants of the cars were uninjured.

Mrs. Harry C. Apgar, of Philadelphia, who has been visiting Mr. Apgar's parents Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Apgar, of Front street, has returned home.

Edgar Starner and William Piddington, who have been spending a couple of weeks at Asbury Park, came home yesterday.

Miss Matilda Block, of North avenue, has gone to Brooklyn to visit with the family of her uncle, John Wagner.

Miss Ruth Voorhees of Jackson avenue, has returned home after a visit of two weeks in Pottersville.

Leon Carpenter, of the Weekly Call staff, has returned from a trip to Boston and New England.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The Italian residents celebrated Labor Day with an all-day program yesterday. In the morning there was a parade of the Italian residents headed by Verdi's Band, through the streets of the town. At 10:30 mass was celebrated at St. Mary's church, Stony Hill. In the afternoon there was a band concert and games on Standing's field, the day's sport ending with a band concert and grand display of fireworks at night. The fireworks, which included bombs and set pieces, were the best that has been seen in this section in many years, and was a grand wind-up to an njoyable day's sport.

The Ginley Airdonn Co., after several postponements on account of bad weather, was able to open its advertised morning picture show last night. On account of the band concert and fireworks, the attendance was small.

Mr. and Mrs. William B. Noble and son Clifford, who have been spending July and August at Asbury Park, have returned home.

Many of the local fans attended the Plainfield-McNulty Bros. games at Crescent Oval yesterday.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

Regular services will be resumed at All Souls church on Park avenue, next Sunday.

Regular services will be resumed at the First Presbyterian church on Sunday, when Pastor Herring will preach and the choir will sing.

The choir of the First Baptist church will resume services on Sunday, September 18, on which day Pastor Chambliss will be in his pulpit.

Rev. S. J. Skevington, pastor of the Clinton Avenue Baptist church, Newark, preached an excellent sermon at the First Baptist church, Sunday morning, and was in charge of the monthly communion service.

THE FASHIONABLE WAISTLINE.

Where is our waistlines going?

Just as we are congratulating ourselves that we have a waistline once more and in its proper place comes the word that we must wear the "girdle a la religieuse" and have our skirts up under our arms.

Perhaps it is not quite so bad as that, though the proper place for the girdle is at least two inches above the natural waistline and every sign points that it will go higher.

The Empire line is in great favor for evening gowns, but not as it was formerly used in pointed shape, but in every instance a round line with an easy curve from the back to the front.

A GUESSING LUNCHEON.

Girls who want to give clever midday feasts to their friends should try a guessing luncheon, in which all or many of the dishes are given names.

Every guest is given a chance to find out what the food is before the feast is served. Cards are handed around and small pencils. There are a dozen or more sentences written on the card, each of which stands for a food. The one who guesses the most of these correctly is awarded a prize. It is not necessary to serve the food; it is only necessary to guess it. A jumble would result if the hostess served the luncheon which is on the card.

1. Emblem of silence—Oyster.
2. The penalty for looking backward—Salt.
3. Made keen by its mother—Vinegar.
4. Boston diet—Beans.
5. Forbidden to Jews—Pork.
6. Emblem of stupidity—Goose.
7. Universal crown—Hare.
8. Largest part of the foot—Sole.
9. To shrink from danger—Quail.
10. Ludicrous situations—Pickles.
11. Tailor's tool—Goose.
12. Country of the "Sublime Porte"—Turkey.
13. One of Noah's sons—Ham.
14. Woman's weapon—Tongue.

PUTTING OFF.

"What made you stop right in the middle of your sentence, and then start talking about something entirely different?" The questioner laughed, and her friend joined in as she replied to the puzzled query.

"If I think in time, I make it a rule never to say today the mean thing that can be put off until tomorrow," she explained. "By tomorrow it is out of date and does not get said at all."

Which goes to prove that putting off—of a certain sort—is not always the bad habit we have been used to believe it. How about the falsehood that tempts? Put off until a quiet moment, it is easily banished forever, and one can be honestly glad that he did not "do it now." What of the doubtful amusement? Put aside until one has time to investigate or think it over, it loses its lure. Whoever repented of the dishonest deed put off until later reflection or greater courage came to conquer it?

FOR ICED TEA.

Iced tea has become the ntaional summer drink despite the doctors. Hence some of the interesting novelties for the servic make acceptable wedding gifts.

Iced teaspoons with long handles are rarely given, yet they are almost essential in tall glasses. Some of them have hollowed tubes for handles, used as straws. They are scarcely as sanitary nor are they as handsome as handles that can be marked with a monogram.

There are long handled spoons to stand in an iced tea pitcher that are useful. Those with respousse handles are especially new. Iced teaspoons to match make a handsome gift.

Tall thin glasses especially for iced tea are always acceptable. Good looking ones can be had very reasonably, though those of cut glass and rock crystal are expensive.

Coasters are almost essential with iced tea glasses, as the moisture generated is bad for a bare table. The silver rimmed ones can be used for all kinds of glasses, but there are special glass plates or saucers made for iced tea.

As a smaller gift, a silver rimmed glass plate with small silver fork for lemon or a silver rimmed glass strainer and cup for lemon juice are necessary accessories to a complete iced-tea service.

What an Out of Town Woman Said:

The writer had the privilege, the other evening, of talking to an out-of-town woman who had always been an enthusiastic New York shopper, but who was BEGINNING TO SEE THE LIGHT.

This woman—we shall call her Mrs. X.—was on her way to New York on a shopping tour one day last week, when her attention was arrested by one of our cards in a McAdoo tunnel car.

Mrs. X., according to her own statement, read this card through carefully, then RE-READ it and pondered.

"If what Bamberger's say is so," said she to herself, "then I am making a mistake by trading in New York. I shall continue my trip today, however, but not to buy. I will find out what the New York stores ask for such articles as I need, and tomorrow I shall go to Bamberger's and see if they are telling the truth."

Mrs. X. made the rounds of the New York stores last Monday, and Tuesday SHE CAME HERE. To make a long story short, she not only bought everything she needed here at a MUCH LOWER PRICE than she would have been compelled to pay in New York, but opened a charge account as well. We might add that up to this time Mrs. X. had never traded in Newark.

Here's the card that caught her eye:

Read This and Profit By It.

Advertising space in the New York papers costs three times as much as it does in Newark. Add to this, high rent and other big expenses and you will then realize why Manhattan stores have to charge more. When you shop in New York you help pay the bills. It is as plain as A-B-C. Think it over.

MR. FOWLER'S RECORD AS JOURNAL VIEWS IT

The following is an editorial expression of The Elizabeth Journal, concerning Representative Charles N. Fowler:

"It is inevitable that the critics of Congressman Fowler should at this time draw attention to the fact that his record of absences in the House of Representatives is discreditable. The people have a right to expect faithful attention to duty on the part of their public servants, and when they find that instead of faithfulness there has been neglect it is not at all surprising that they are finding fault. Indeed, Mr. Fowler must have expected, in view of the fact that his record of absenteeism is well known, that the people would ask, when he faced them again, for an accounting.

"Perhaps the best way to tell whether a member of Congress is paying proper attention to the duties of his office is by glancing at his record on roll calls. No one would be so foolish as to demand that a member be present every hour in the day when Congress is meeting. That would be unreasonable. But what about the record of the Congressman on matters of sufficient importance to cause a roll call? Whether he has voted as all his constituents thought he ought to is one matter, and whether he has not been present to vote at all is quite another.

"Aye and nay votes are of frequent occurrence. They help carry along the routine. Roll calls in comparison are rare. Members may be absent for reasonable lengths of time, showing up when legislative matters of importance are under consideration, without piling up an unenviable record for absenteeism. The record of Congressman Fowler, under the circumstances ought to be of interest to the voters of the Fifth Congressional district:

Congress	Session	Roll Calls	Answered	Unanswered
Fifty-ninth	First	100	21	79
Fifty-ninth	Second	34	18	16
Sixtieth	First	272	121	151
Sixtieth	Second	44	7	37
Sixty-first	First	36	19	17
Sixty-first	Second	114	37	77
Total		600	223	377

"The labor union men are now complaining about Mr. Fowler's record from their point of view. They point out specific instances where his vote has been cast against their interests. Doubtless the representative of the Fifth district has reasons for voting as he has and can defend himself if he thinks it necessary. But the really conspicuous feature of Congressman Fowler's so-called "labor record" is that he seldom voted at all. Naturally the trade unions refuse to overlook this now, holding that a man elected to represent the people is expected to let them know where he stands by his vote on measures in which they are interested.

"How it can be expected that the needs of laboring men or of the district generally will receive consideration from a representative with so bad a record for absenteeism is difficult to figure out. The argument has been heard that Mr. Fowler is interested in 'a big problem', and that he has to devote his time to it. It is said that he has spent a great deal of time and money in an attempt to create an impression with bankers and others favorable to his views for reforming the currency system of the Nation. But somehow this does not satisfy the laboring man, or any other thinking voter in the district. In the first place, it is not taken seriously, and, furthermore, it is considered too weak an argument to occupy the attention long. Whatever a representative in Congress may have for his special hobby, he owes it to his constituents faithfully to serve them. He has no right to be absent from his duties. There is no excuse for persistent absenteeism in Congress except ill health.

"Doubtless Mr. Fowler's habit of absenting himself from the duties of his position led Judge Runyon to state in his declaration to the people:

"'I believe in independence of thought and action, and if elected, my highest aim as a Republican representative shall be to attend faithfully all sessions of the House; to give my best study to every public question; to deal fairly and honestly with every proposition brought forward for the consideration of Congress, and to make the affairs and interests of my own district matters of prime importance.'

"On first reading these words may have seemed very strange to the average citizen who does not follow affairs closely at the National capital. The idea of a Congressman promising to attend faithfully all the sessions" some may have exclaimed. That would naturally be expected of any man chosen to the position. Is the thought which comes to us. To have a candidate promise to make the affairs and interests of his own district, matters of prime importance' seems equally absurd. But in neither case has Mr. Fowler's opponent made a mistake. He has struck at a sore point with the voters of the Fifth district, who realize that they must have a representative who both attends the sessions of Congress and looks after their interests. If he is big enough and interested to do more than this so much the better, of course."

MISSIONARY DESCRIBES SUFFERING OF CHINESE

G. Herbert Condict, superintendent of Hope chapel, read an interesting letter from Gilbert Lovell, the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church's missionary in China, at the Sunday-school session, Sunday afternoon. His letter depicts conditions as they really are and suggests the relief which he says is imperative. Since the letter was written on June 24, however, supplies of foodstuffs, clothing and other necessities have been sent to the flooded ara and afforded great relief.

"By this time we are out of danger," says Mr. Lovell, "but we are already being thrown into another experience, the worst flood that Chang-teh has seen in thirty years. Last year's crop was a total failure from the same cause, and now this has all gone. People are dying by the score daily. Rice is being given out in the streets here and at Deh San, and the laborers who are burying the dead cannot work fast enough. The situationn is so desperate in Chan-teh and immediate vicinity that we have united in sending a letter to the Christian Herald appealing for funds. It may mean that some of us will have to drop our work temporarily in order to devote our energies to relieving immediate distress.

"The water has gone down considerably, but the suffering is intense. Our cook has just returned from the street and says he saw eleven dead bodies. I have seen poverty at home, but nothing to compare to what is constantly going on about us in this place."

POSTMASTER GONE; SHORTAGE ALLEGED.

The receipt of a letter by his parents stating that he would not be back again is a sequel to the sudden departure from town of William T. Briggs, postmaster at Hartford, near Mt. Holly, who is alleged to be short in his accounts.

A postoffice inspector, who visited Hartford Friday, after making an investigation of the manner of conducting the office, stated that he found the books in bad shape. Briggs went away Saturday, leaving a sensation behind.

The amount of his alleged shortage is not known. A year or two ago the young man took the Keely cure but he is thought to have returned to his old habits.

The absence of Briggs creates a vacancy on the election board. The County Board of Election will appoint a Republican successor tomorrow morning. Briggs announced his candidacy for assessor of Mount Laurel Township early in the spring.

CANOISTS LET BOY DROWN.

Thought Companions Were "Fooling" When They Called for Help.

Howard Shantz, the eleven-year-old son of Ernest Shantz, of Emerson, N. J., was drowned in the Hackensack River yesterday while bathing. A group of companions, unable to swim, could offer no assistance.

A young man and a young woman passed in a canoe while the boy was struggling in deep water, but they thought his companions were only fooling when they yelled for help and the canoe kept on its way.

Autos in Collision.

Two automobiles, both from Perth Amboy, one a Cole 30-horse power, and the other a Ford, were wrecked in a head-on collision on the bridge at Mannion's corner, west of Dunellen, Sunday night, but fortunately the occupants of the cars escaped injury of any kind. There were three men in the Ford car, one of whom gave his name as J. Tywell, of 1438 West Froht street. The names of the other autoists could not be learned.

Stillman School Playground.

The closing exercises at the Stillman School playgrounds which were postponed on account of rain on Friday will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. It will be appreciated by the Playgrounds Commission if the parents of the children of the schools will attend and observe the progress made by their children during the summer months.

For Centerpieces.

A large tube or roll of art cardboard or heavy paper, covered with linen and embroidered—or rather, covered with linen that has been embroidered—will keep centrepieces and like embroideries from showing the wrinkles of careless use. Book cloth lines this tube and the whole is fastened and bound with inch-wide satin ribbon, which ends in strings wherewith to fasten the tube after rolling. Place a sheet of blue tissue paper between each two pieces after laying them within; this will keep their color from turning yellow if they are laid away for any considerable length of time.

An Evening Gown.

A charming little frock of supple satin of rose and white is trimmed in a novel manner with quantities of pink leafless roses of the rambler description, laid flat close together in a band about four inches wide, confining the overdress of pale rose tulle, slightly bouillonnee, then an epaulette of the same.

Shoe Facts

This store is an old-fashioned family shoe store, old-fashioned, however, only because it carries all kinds of dependable boots and shoes for every member of the family—its styles are right and it is thoroughly up-to-date in all its methods and arrangements. We take particular pride in the fact that there are scores of families who never bought much of anything in the shoe line except at this store. Your fathers and mothers bought shoes of us (some of them) when they were lads and lassies—and that's the kind of trade we want—it's the kind every store wants, for that matter. New fangled ideas don't necessarily instill confidence—quality and fair dealing are the two great factors. We have built up our business on these conservative lines and shall continue to hew along these same broad lines.

CANDIDATES LIKE STEPHEN

Stoning of the Martyr Metaphorically Like Present Day Method.

"BEHOLD I SEE THE HEAVENS."

The Four Characteristics of St. Stephen as Revealed by Study of the Scriptures—The Two Prayers.

Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire did not preach on the subject announced in Saturday's papers last night, but he did more than that—he brought to the surface a greater element in character than perhaps his original topic would have developed. The topic announced, "Christian Character," might have had some reference to aspirants for political office in the approaching campaign, but who knows?

The thought for the present must therefore be confined to the subject actually selected by Mr. Maguire and the announcement made from the pulpit that owing to a mistake of his own a wrong impression was given in the newspapers as to what the topic would be.

Selecting Acts. 7-56, "Behold I see the Heavens open and the Son of Man standing on the right hand of God," Mr. Maguire drew three vivid pictures of the death of Stephen, beginning from the stoning of the martyr to his transition from earth to Heaven. Both of these places were described in language which cannot be reproduced in type, that is to say, so that it will reach with the same impulse the senses of those who might best be benefitted by the telling. However, the four pictures of the stoning to death of Stephen as described and commented upon by Mr. Maguire will remain a living memory among his hearers.

The four situations were those of Stephen seeing into the heavens; the result of his vision of Christ; the stoning and finally the two prayers of the martyr in which the first was was for his own soul and the second for the men who were slaying him to death.

The only reference to politics or politicians made by Mr. Maguire was that in which he likened candidates for office who were likely to be subject to persecutions to St. Stephen. He declared to those who sought office that they must bear with the stone throwers.

LOCALS WIN FIRST GAME

Ward Outpitches Archer and Plainfield Defeats McNulty Bros. in Morning Contest.

TWIRLERS HAD GREAT CONTROL

Doerflinger's Men Bunch Hits in Third and Clinch Game—Jack Martin, Ward and John Payne the "Stars."

In a hard pitchers' battle between Ward and Archer, the Plainfield team took the long end of a 3-1 game on the Oval yesterday morning, and it was the superior twirling of the local box artist that did the trick. The locals managed to bunch their hits in the third inning and clinch the game with a lead of one run. Another tally was added in the seventh and the visitors never had a look in after that.

Ward was the whole show for the Dorflinger aggregation although the team work of all the nine men was a big factor in the final result. The new twirler allowed the New Yorkers only seven scattered hits and didn't give a single free pass. At the bat he was there in every sense of the word for he clouted out three safeties out of four times up. Archer the New York pitcher, was touched up for ten hits and although he too donated no bases on balls, four of these safe cracks came together and lost him the game.

The feature of the game was the speedy work of Jack Martin at short stop. He took ten chances without a misplay and handled some of the hottest liners as though they had been easy pop flies. He was handy with his stick, disgruntling Archer with two clean safeties. But another feature of the contest (and this was a disagreeable one) was the queer umpiring by John Payne. Several of his decisions on both sides were of the cross-eyed order, and stirred the anger of the hungry fans.

The McNulty Brothers scored the first run of the game, making the tally in the third inning. Reeves got a life on a fielder's choice and came home when Deroizer doubled along the right field foul line. The hit was plainly a foul, for the ball struck outside of the diamond and a foot and a half outside of the foul line—but the "ump" didn't see it that way. And that is the reason why the McNulty boys weren't shut out in the morning game.

In the locals' half of the third two runs were scored and clinched the game. Boyd sent a two sacker to left, crossing the rubber when Emery singled o deep center. Jack Martin was equal to the occasion and clouted a beauty into the wilds of left field and Emery came home with a tally. Nelson singled but the next two men sent up pop flies and here ended the scoring for that inning. In the seventh round, Fritts started things a moving by lacing a neat hit to center. He reached second on Brit Martin's sacrifice and came across on an error by McGrath.

In the first inning, Ward pitched himself out of a tight hole. Pfeiffer slammed the first ball over the pan for a double, making third on Dowling's single. The Plainfield twirler fanned the next two batters and McGrath sent up a weak pop fly to Jack Martin, thus ending the suspense for the local fans.

GOLF.

A local golfer who was at St. Andrews, Scotland, recently, says that players began to hit the ball there as early as 2:30 in the morning; also that play goes on until 9 o'clock at night. This, of course, would be possible only in a latitude as high as that of central Scotland, which is 57 degrees, as against about 40 in New York. About 6 o'clock in the evening scores of factory workers drove off from the first tee and went over one of the three courses. All day long each links was crowded. As is known, the courses are under municipal control, and at the first tee there is a warning posted that any one who practices with iron clubs alone, or does one or two other things that might injure the turf must pay a fine of $5 or go to jail for fourteen days. A visitor may play upon paying a shilling. The New York man says that for the privilege of playing on the Braid Hill links, in Edingburgh, he had to pay only fourpence, and he hired a set of clubs for a shilling. Such prices would certainly be popular in America.

SATURDAY'S RESULTS AT THE COUNTRY CLUB.

The event on Saturday at the Plainfield Country Club was an 18-hole match play handicap against par, the players taking three-quarters of their medal play handicap. The competition was for both Class A and B players and some good scores were returned as follows:

Class A—Morris J. Dumont, 5 down; George S. Clay, 6 down; J. S. Erickson, 6 down.

Class B—H. J. Cochran, 5 down; George S. Clay, 6 down; William T. Kaufman, 6 down; Henry L. DeForest, 7 down; T. W. T. Maxwell, 8 down.

FEW SCORES POSTED AT PARK GOLF CLUB.

Although there was a large field at the Park Golf Club, Saturday, only five scores were posted in the weekly competition for the President's and golf club trophies, as follows:

U. G. Tingley, 97, 25-72; Charles B. Morse, 93, 19-74; W. V. Byard, 96, 21-75; Dr. H. K. Carroll, 96, 16-80; W. E. Lough, 106, 24-82.

LABOR DAY ON THE LINKS

Events at the Country Club and the Park Golf Club Courses.

Although weather conditions were not ideal for golfing, the numerous events attracted a large field to the Plainfield Country Club, yesterday, while the clubhouse was thronged all day with members and friends enjoying the cool breezes, as well as the lunches and dinners served. The social features were much enjoyed, as was also a dance in the evening.

In the morning there was an 18-hole medal play handicap, for both Class A and B. William T. Glenney won the Class A event and George S. Clay the Class B competition. The best scores:

Class A—William T. Glenney, 75, 6-69; Howard G. Lapsley, 89, 15-74; C. C. Burke, 91, 15-76; R. G. Morse, 90, 13-77; H. T. Eaton, 93, 15-78.

Class B—George S. Clay, 91, 23-68; William T. Kaufman, 90, 16-74; C. W. King, 104, 25-79; G. M. Holstein, 106, 27-79; James P. Murray, 99, 18-81; Silas P. Wood, 105, 20-85.

The afternoon event was an 18-hole medal play handicap, four-ball match, the players taking for their handicaps one-half of the low plus one-third of the high. C. W. King and G. M. Holstein were the winners with a net of 64. The scores:

C. W. King and G. M. Holstein, 85, 21-64; Leighton Calkins and Morris J. Dumont, 74, 7-67; R. G. Morse and Stuart H. Patterson, 79, 10-89; E. P. Goodwin and H. L. Hall, 87, 14-73; Silas P. Wood and William T. Glenney, 80, 6-74; H. R. Stockton and Clifton Wharton, Jr., 83, 9-74.

There were numerous holiday events at the Park Golf Club, yesterday, attracting a large field. Throughout the day there were social features at the clubhouse, and in the afternoon tea was served, at which some of the women members presided. The game contains all of its popularity, as was shown in the large number competing for honors.

There was the initial play for the Oakmont cup, offered by L. K. Hyde, weekly competition until Election Day. The best scores were as follows:

W. E. Lough, 100, 24-76; U. G. Tingley, 102, 25-77; W. V. Byard, 99, 21-78; W. R. Faber, 103, 22-81; Dr. H. K. Carroll, 99, 16-83.

W. V. Byard, 199, 42-177; W. E. Lough, 207, 48-159; U. G. Tingley, 201, 50-161.

There was also the initial play for the Ladies' Autumn cup, nine holes, the play to continue weekly until November 1. The point-winners:

Miss E. Bird, 50, 3-47; Miss Bess TenEyck, 80, 28-52; Miss Grace TenEyck, 66, 13-53. The approaching and putting competition was won by Miss E. Bird and W. E. Lough with a score of 9, while A. M. Morrell was the winner of the driving competition.

Another event was the qualifying round for the Faall championship, and the sixteen who qualified will continue at match play next Saturday.

BOWLING.

The local bowling season got under way on Saturday when Johnny Campbell opened the local East Second street alleys for another season.

A number of the local pin smashers tried a game or two and found the alleys to be in excellent shape. Charley Eller made the first 200 score rolling 208 while Frank Willett got the second with 216.

High scores were not in order yesterday possibly owing to the heat, but the pin boys were kept busy nevertheless.

Registrations this week at Shafer's Hotel, Lake Hopatcong, include Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Boyce and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Blatz, of Somerset street.

Misses Mabel and Lucy Douglass, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel R. Douglass, of Grove street, have returned home after a month spent in Nova Scotia.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Pearson, of Martine avenue, have returned from the Wilson farm in Washington Valley, where they spent th summer for the benefit of Mrs. Pearson's health.

LOCAL NINE LOST THE SECOND CONTEST

Amidst a bunch of errors and a myriad of poor decisions, the Plainfield team failed to keep up its morning reputation in the game on the oval yesterday afternoon and went down to defeat at the hands of the McNulty Brothers by the score of 6 to 3. The New Yorkers only made six hits against eight by the local batsmen but "bonehead" work on the bases was the added feature of the Plainfield playing. There were many chances when the local nine could have tied the score if the base runners and batters had only worked in unison, but alas, this virtue was not forthcoming and hence the defeat.

Warry McLaughlin was on the slab for the Plainfield aggregation and he pitched a good game at that, but poor support handicapped his chances of winning. Wolfe, the New York twirler, was not in the best of form, allowing four passes and being banged for eight hits. This weakens all the excuses of the local boys for not winning the game.

Pfeiffer and Dowling were the real article of baseball and had the fans cheering every few minutes at some startling plays. The New York comedy short stop made some miraculous stops, and Dowling's work with the willow and on the bases was all that could be asked for. Emery might also be commended for his clever playing on third base. He accepted seven chances without an error and added to the collection of hits with a two sacker at the critical moment. "Big Six" Nelson showed up in god form and proved to the fans that he can come back. Umpire John Payne distinguished himself almost as much as he did in the morning game.

A hit by Dowling, two errors by Brit Martin, and a single from Damreau's bat gave the visitors two runs in the fourth inning, and a hit and two sacrifices with Nelson's error, scored one more for the New Yorkers in the fith. Plainfield came back in the fifth and tied the score; Brit Martin got a life on a free pass, going to second on Boyd's single. Emery then came along with a double to left, which brought the two men home, Jim reaching third on an error. Nelson singled and brought Emery home but here the scoring ended.

By some clean hitting mixed up with errors, the visitors managed to make three more tallies and win the game. Plainfield had several good opportunities to score but failed in the pinch.

OLD SONG REJUVENATED.

I cannot wear the old hair
I wore some months gone by,
I've laid it on the topmost shelf
With many a weary sigh.
No longer are they wearing puffs,
And rats are quite de trop;
I cannot wear the old hair—
Oh, what a cruel blow.

I cannot wear the old hair
For which good gold I paid.
Red hair is so expensive when
One gets the proper shade.
I felt si dressed when it was coiffed,
All little puffs and curls;
But I can't wear the old hair,
Alas for Fashion's whirls'

I cannot wear the old hair,
Four switches I must buy
And wind them round and round my head
As flat as they will lie.
My face is far too plump for this,
My nose is much too long;
But I can't wear the old hair,
It's altogether wrong.

DUNELLEN TWICE VICTOR

All Brunwicks and Caldwell A. C. Are Both Taken into Camp.

SOME GOOD TEAM WORK.

In the Morning the Score Was Two to One and in the Afternoon the Result Was Nine to One.

Dunellen took both games in the double header on its grounds yesterday, defeating the All Brunswicks in the morning in an exciting game by the score of 2 to 1, and smothering the strong Caldwell A. C. in the afternoon to the depth of 9 to 1. McCroskey, a pitcher from New York, did the twirling against the Brunswicks and held them safe in the pinches. Jimmie Montross was on the mound in the afternoon and was invincible, allowing only three scattered hits. The borough boys worked together in great shape and accorded their pitchers good support.

Two Ideas.

The first was a millinery hint. The hat, in poke-bonnet shape, fitting closely to the blond head of the wearer, was a folded black satin, with no trimming but a buckle and tassel of black wooden beads at the left side. But all round the inner edge there was a narrow frill, about an inch wide, of white pleated lawn with a tiny embroidery edging. The touch of white gave coolness and distinction to the whole hat. The other idea was a welcome change from the eternal black waist with white ruching. It was worn by a woman evidently in half mourning, and consisted of a white tucked batiste waist, cut with a round Dutch neck, and with a folded collar edging of half-inch wide black lawn. Here again was an excellent finishing touch produced simply by a reversal of the common-place and ordinary.

Poached Eggs and Macaroni.

Break some macaroni up into inch pieces, rinse it well, put two ounces of butter into a fireproof dish, put the macaroni in and pour enough milk over it to cover it thoroughly, stirring it now and then. When three-quarters cooked, lift it out and put it in another dish, seasoning it well with pepper and salt, and pour over it half a pint of good brown gravy, then put it back in the oven again and leave it until cooked. When ready lay some poached eggs on it, spinkle lightly with Parmeasan cheese, pepper and serve.

Make a Rose Leaf Pillow.

Gather the roses each morning while the dew is yet on the petals, for they are more fragrant then. Spread them on newspapers in an airy place to dry. It takes a large basketful of the dried petals to make a pillow. Mix with the petals a teaspoonful each of ground cloves and cinnamon and shake thoroughly. Put in a cambric tick and cover with silk or silkolien.

An Early Wall Paper.

On preparing a room in Bradbourne Hall, Derbyshire, in 1882, I found, partly covered by an old oak cupboard, considerable remains of quite early eighteenth century wall paper, of pale green tint, with a flowing pattern in darker color on it. This paper was made in squares of about twenty inches, and I was able to rescue two or more complete pieces. It had been printed on rather thick paper from woodcut blocks, and each square was nailed up with coarse iron tacks about one and a half inches apart, each tack being run through squares or washers of brown leather, so that both tack heads and washers showed all around each square of paper. It is possible that this wall paper was of late seventeenth century date. Bradbourne Hall, in the lower peak, is a picturesque house, almost unaltered, of the time of James I., having been then fashioned from the canonical house of the Augustins of Dunstable. It was just the place—"far from the madding crowd"—where curious details of domestic decorations would survive.—London Notes and Queries.

The Cynic's Point of View.

Of course we all like to know that our enemies are vulnerable, but it is only the cynical elect who can appreciate with fine epicurean fastidiousness the glorious revelation that their friends are human after all. And it is not only the weakness of those near and dear to us, but their misfortunes and annoyances, which give a thrill of illicit joy to those honest contortionists who can look in their own hearts. I once heard a young mother say that there was only one thing which gave her greater pleasure than hearing that the children of her friends were sick, and that was to hear that they were bad. No one but a brom-idiot (to borrow the excellent root with which Mr. Gelett Burgess has enriched us) would think of condemning this young woman for being malicious or unkind. Misery is not the only human quality that loves company. Some of her distant relatives — Anxiety, Discouragement, Annoyance—are equally sociable.—Atlantic.

The Forbidden City.

Peking has been a city for something like 3,000 years, first as the capital of a small state, then destroyed, again rebuilt and finally molded into the form in which we now know it, with its Chinese, Tartar, Imperial and Forbidden cities, each with its inclosing wall. Nobody has ever yet attempted to tell the full tale of its intrigues, its cabals, plots and counterplots. Few know anything about them. No one person knows them all. If only the bricks that form the walls could find a tongue, if only the pavilions on the Coal Hill could produce the sights and sounds that have fallen to their lot to see and hear, there would doubtless be a tale to tell which might vie in interest and dramatic force with anything that ancient Rome or Babylon has given, even through the medium of fiction.—Shanghai Mercury.

Napoleon and Waterloo.

There is nothing in the result of the Waterloo campaign to show any decline in Napoleon's powers of mind. The plan of the campaign as laid down by the emperor was a most brilliant one, and had it not rained on the night of the 17th of June Napoleon would in all likelihood have kept his throne. Had it not rained and made the land miry he would have had his artillery in position four hours before he actually did, and Wellington would have been disposed of long before Blucher's arrival. Even as it was, the Iron Duke was pretty well used up when the Prussian came up on his left. Napoleon's genius never shone more brilliantly than it did in his last campaign. He was defeated by the elements and by the unaccountable stupidity of some of his lieutenants.—New York American.

Assyrian Seals.

The ancient Assyrians nearly 6,000 years ago put in moist clay their seals, engraved in intaglio upon precious stones, on chests and doors, in order to prevent their being opened. There were no locks or keys in those days. If they wished to send a private letter they would often seal it with a hippogriff, which fabulous winged horse was regarded as the emblem of secrecy. Centuries later the Greeks and Romans adopted similar devices for the same purpose.

He Whistled.

Old Lady (to grocer's boy)—Don't you know that it is very rude to whistle when dealing with a lady?

Boy—That's what the guv'nor told me to do, mum.

"Told you to whistle?"

"Yes'm. He said if we ever sold you anything we'd have to whistle for the money."

Her Sweeping Abilities.

Mrs. Neurich—Did you notice how grandly our daughter swept into the room at Mrs. Puppson's reception last night?

Neurich—Sure I did! When it comes to sweeping into a room Mamie wins in a walk. But when it comes to sweeping out a room she goes lame.

Wanted It Plain.

Mrs. Youngwife—I want to get some salad. Dealer—Yes'm. How many heads? Mrs. Youngwife—Oh, goodness! I thought you took the heads off. I just want plain chicken salad.

Appearances.

Magistrate—If I remember rightly, this is not your first appearance in court. Prisoner—No, your honor, but I hope you don't judge by appearances.

A Mohammedan Festival.

Taboots is an Indian festival in connection with the celebration of the month of Moharram, which begins the year of the true Mohammedan. This festival commemorates the death of Prince Hossein, the grandson of Mohammed, who met his death in battle after ten days' fighting against King Omar. The word taboot, from which the festival takes its name, means literally a tomb, and it is always built in front of the homes of some rich and important Mohammedans and under a temporary shed built for this purpose. The taboots are made from thin bamboo strips covered with highly colored paper, and it is always decorated with isinglass, gold and silver paper, glass balls and much red and green paint. On the ninth day of the festival of Taboots the taboots are carried in a possession through the streets of the various cities in India. On the tenth day all the taboots are thrown into some river, and thus ends the Mohammedan festival of Taboots.—Boston Herald.

Primitive Fire Fighters.

As late as the end of the sixteenth century in London the sole method of extinguishing fires was by means of contrivances known as "hand squirts." These were usually made of brass, with a carrying capacity ranging from two to four quarts of water. The two quart "squirts" were two and a half feet in length, one and a half inches in diameter at their largest part and but half an inch at the nozzle. On each side were handles, and three men were required to manipulate a "squirt." One man on each side grasped the handle in one hand and the nozzle in the other, while the third man worked the piston or plunger, drawing it out while the nozzle was immersed in a supply of water which filled the cylinder. The bearers then elevated the nozzle, when the other pushed in the plunger, the skill of the former being employed in directing the stream of water upon the fire. Such primitive contrivances are said to have been used during the great fire of 1666.

Mythical Horses.

Pegasus ("born near the source of the ocean") was the winged horse of Apollo and the Muses. Bellerophon rode this animal when he charged the Chimera.

Sleipnir ("the black horse of Odin") had eight legs and could carry his master on sea as well as land. This animal is believed to typify the wind, which blows from eight different points.

Al Borak ("the lightning") was the horse commissioned by Gabriel to carry Mohammed to the seventh heaven. He had a human face and the wings of an eagle. Every step he took was equal to the farthest range of human vision.

According to Thessalian legend, the first horse was miraculously brought forth by Neptune striking a rock with his trident.

A Japanese Anthem.

The majority of national anthems are not conspicuous for beauty, either of words or music. The only one composed by a musician of the very first rank is the Austrian anthem, for which Haydn is responsible. And in no country has the composition of a really great poet been adopted except in Norway, where Bjornson's stirring lines beginning "Yes, we love this country," serve as the national anthem. The Japanese have a daintily worded anthem which Captain Brinkley translates as follows:

Until this grain of sand,
Tossed by each wavelet's freak,
Grows to a cloud girt peak,
Towering above the land;
Until the dewy flake
Bending this blossom's gold
Swell to a mighty lake—
Age upon age untold,
Joy to joy manifold
Add for our sovereign's sake.

A Dirge.

She laid the still white form beside those which had gone before. No sob, no sigh, forced its way from her heart, throbbing as though it would burst. Suddenly a cry broke the stillness of the place, one single heartbreaking shriek; then silence, another cry, more silence, then all silent but for a guttural murmur which seemed to well up from her very soul. She left the place. She would lay another egg tomorrow.—Princeton Tiger.

Reversed.

An East Boston doctor told of the experience of a druggist the other day who sold some alcohol to a new customer. After the man had signed the book as required he said: "Now, don't get that name twisted. It is Michael Sullivan and not Sullivan Michael, same as they turned it around in the directory."—Boston Journal.

A Light Retort.

"How did the trouble in the family start?"

"The wife, it seems, got tired of her husband's heavy wit."

"Why didn't she simply make a light retort?"

"She did. She threw the lamp at him."—Exchange.

A Puzzle.

Mother (reprovingly to little girl just ready to go for a walk)—Dolly, that hole was not in your glove this morning. Dolly (promptly)—Where was it, then, mamma?

Couldn't Risk It.

Husband—Did you hunt up the new cook's references? Wife—No, John, I didn't. I was afraid they might prove prejudicial.—Harper's Bazar

Some Doubtful Transactions

"I'm a little mixed up about this church business," said Mrs. Adgate with a puzzled frown. "Of course I want to help the church building fund as much as I possibly can, but I must confess that it's a little wearing."

"You've done so much work I should think you would be worn out," said the caller sympathetically. "I've wondered how you stood it."

"Oh, it isn't the work," declared Mrs. Adgate. "It's the bargaining."

"The what?"

"Well, you see, when all the members of the aid society pledged themselves to raise a certain sum of money, I wanted to help. We decided, you know, to work as individuals, rather than all together, so each one has been doing her best to sell something."

"It's the best way," said the caller. "It keeps every one interested."

"I suppose it does," sighed Mrs. Adgate. "But it's dreadfully annoying to have Mrs. Stoddard boasting that she's earned $10, when I haven't secured even one dollar."

"How does it happen?, You are such a worker, I should think you'd have more than any one else."

"Well, you see, I'm selling jellies. I put up a great many, too, this year. Mr. Adgate spoke of it at the time, and reminded me that we don't need so much, now that Sarah's married. In fact, even when she was at home we never ate half I made."

"We never eat up our jellies, either," acknowledged the caller. "My husband insists that it tastes better than the kind we buy, but, considering what we give to people or throw away, it's lots more expensive."

"Of course it is," agreed Mrs. Adgate. "So, as I had so much of it, I decided to offer it at 25 cents a glass, the proceeds to go to the building fund."

"That was good of you."

"The first person I asked," said Mrs. Adgate, "was Mrs. Bushnell, who is selling pickle recipes at 15 cents each. When we finished our talk I was ten cents ahead, because she had given me a pickle recipe and ten cents for a glass of jelly."

"That recipe makes good pickles," said the caller. "I made some."

"Tom will not eat pickles," said Mrs. Adgate. "The next person I met asked me to buy a loaf of cake to help the church fund before I had time to ask her to buy my jelly. It was good cake, selling for only 50 cents, so I exchanged a glass of jelly and 25 cents for one of the loaves."

"Was it cocoanut cake?"

"No; chocolate."

"The cocoanut is better. I bought a loaf and we ate it all at one meal."

"We finished our loaf Sunday evening. There are only two of us and things last so long. The cake was quite stale by that time."

"Mrs. Huntington is selling pincushions," said the caller.

"I know it," said Mrs. Adgate. "She charges ten cents for the small ones, so she gave me 15 cents and a pincushion for a glass of my jelly. It's red and my room is pink, so I gave it to the maid, who likes it immensely. Old Mrs. Clark is knitting mittens, and I bought two pairs at 15 cents each, giving her five cents and a glass of jelly."

"What did you want with children's mittens?"

"That's what I don't know," laughed Mrs. Adgate. "But I gave them to the janitor's little girls, and they were as pleased as could be. My next bargain was with Mrs. Newberry. She had grape juice for sale at 20 cents, so she gave me a nickel and a jar of it in exchange for my jelly. I dropped the jar on my way home and it was smashed. The grape juice watered the Flints' lawn, and incidentally sprinkled my light skirt, which had to go to the cleaner's at once. Miss Sophie Flint came out to see what had happened and remarked that if I was buying things she had painted mottoes for sale, so she hurried in to get one for me."

"She does such beautiful work," said the caller. "Her paintings make lovely Christmas presents."

"They do if you care for mottoes," said Mrs. Adgate, dubiously. "I don't. The one I bought is 'A Penny Saved Is a Penny Earned.' Somehow, it is almost too appropriate."

"Mrs. Smith is selling ribbon belts and Mrs. Blinn has aprons," said the caller. "I haven't heard what the others have for sale."

"There are 60 of them!" groaned Mrs. Adgate. "And I don't see where I am coming out. I have now sold five glasses of jelly, receiving 30 cents, with absolutely nothing to show for it."

"I'm sorry, but I came in to ask you to buy," said the caller, hesitatingly. "I make old ladies' caps for 50 cents, but I'm willing to take two glasses of jelly for one cap."

Uncivil Englishmen.

Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont thinks that both sides of a story should be told, and gave an account recently of brutal treatment of young women by a number of young Englishmen wearing the rosettes of the Liberal stewards. They cut the tires of the automobiles, ripped up the hood and tried to strangle one of the young women by wrapping a scarf around her neck. They had to actually fight for their lives and yet there was not a word upon the subject in the English papers, nor was any account of it telegraphed to the United States.

THE NEAT GIRL.

We all have among our acquaintances the girl who, without being in the least good-looking, always manages to look neat and welldressed.

Perhaps she has only a small dress allowance, and whenever you happen to meet her she looks smart and attractive, while other girls, with twice te hmoney at her command, too often look shabby and dowdy.

What is the neat girl's secret? Nothing more or less than taking care of her clothes: she has a place for everything, and everything is kept in its place, her ribbons, gloves, handkerchiefs, veils, etc., are not all huddled together in one drawer, neither do they lie about on the tables and chairs until they are wanted. Every article of apparel is put away with the most scrupulous care, first being dusted, shaken or mended, as the case may be.

There is a great difference, too, in the way in which girls put on their clothes, and very often a girl dressed in a shirtwaist and plain skirt will look twice as neat as one clad in an expensive gown, the reason being simply and solely this: the one has put her dress on anyhow, the other has taken care that all shall be neat and fresh.

It is the duty of all parents to see that their children are taught from their babyhood to take proper care of heir wearing apparel, for the child who lets he clothes drop off her and lie in a heap on the floor invariably grows into the careless, untidy woman with whom we are so familiar.

Biscuit Dough.

When you have tea or baking powder biscuit dough ready for cutting, instead of making plain biscuit, spread the dought with butter, sprinkel with sugar and dust lightly with cinnanon, roll like a jelly roll and cut into slices an inch thick, and bake in moderate oven. These are excellent with tea or coffee for lunch or breakfast.

Unique.

"There's one thing I particularly admire about the Declaration of Independence," said Farmer Corntossel.

"What's that?"

$110,000 GRAND STAND FOR TRENTON GROUNDS

Magnificent New Structure, Combining Good Features of All First Class Stands.

Shortly after the conclusion of the Trenton fair of 1909 a great fire swept over the grounds, destroying the handsome and commodious grand stand, devouring a huge section of the speed horses' quarters, the judges' stand and some other buildings. To a majority of associations such a holocaust would have been a "knockout" blow, but the Trenton fair management gripped the situation with its habitual courage and determination, and instead of a misfortune the fire has proved a blessing in disguise for all patrons of the great exhibition.

A magnificent new grand stand has sprung up out of the ruins of the old one, more comfortable, roomy and more up to date stand in every particular. The seating capacity is 25 per cent greater and the view of the field at least one-third better. It is built of concrete and steel and is absolutely fireproof. The cost of this structure was $110,000.

Before the first step was taken in the direction of building this stand Assistant Secretary L. P. Randall made an extensive tour of the country, inspecting all of the grand stands that are famous for comfort and convenience. Mr. Randall gleaned the best points from many stands and had them incorporated in the plans for the Trenton fair structure, which is simply ideal.

There are almost innumerable comforts, particularly for the women and children. The retiring rooms will be found models of cleanliness and convenience, the seats are roomy and comfortable, the aisles wide enough almost to suggest a waste of room. In fact it can truthfully be said that the Trenton stand combines every good feature of every first class stand in the country, and the most powerful magnifying glass or the most captious critic could not detect one single flaw in the construction, arrangement and equipment. It is the perfection of grand stand building, and it is almost worth a visit to the fair just to see this one improvement.

The new judges' stand will be noticed as more artistic, more convenient and will obstruct the view of the race course and exhibition platforms and field less than the former one.

The speed stables are up to date, sanitary and models of architecture in this line. The aggregate expense of all of these new buildings will mount upward close to the $200,000 mark.

INDIANA CONGRESSMAN'S NOSE.

The Honorable W. A. Cullop, member of Congress from Indiana, has a long, long nose—one which would have made Cyrano de Bergerac's pale into insignificant flatness and general unobtrusiveness. What is more to the point, Mr. Cullop knows his nose.

He was standing in a crowded street car in Washington one afternoon, says a writer in the Popular Magazine, when he noticed a man staring at him in a fixed and unswerving manner. So frank was the stare that it peeved and irritated and ruffled Mr. Cullop—and reminded him of his nose. He stood first on one foot and then on the other, glared at the staring man, frowned and cleared his throat in a hostile tone. But the staring gentleman never batted an eyelid. He had evidently found something extremely interesting in the personal appearance of the member from Indiana.

"Look here, my friend," burst out Cullop in great indignation, "I know what you're looking at! You're looking at my nose and thinking how long it is. Well, I know it's long, all right, but you can bet it's never stuck into other people's business!"

Even Then.

Captain Kid—What's the trouble? Can't you make the prisoner walk the plank?

Lieutenant—No, cap; he absolutely refuses to be a part of the spectacle unless we guarantee him a percentage of the moving picture receipts.—Puck.

The Idiocy of Man

"H'm!" said Aunt Amelia as she turned with unnecessary fervor the heel of the stocking she was knitting.

The good-looking matronly woman who was watering the Boston fern turned quickly. "Now, Aunt Amelia," she exclaimed, "what have I done that's wrong? You used to make exactly that same disapproving noise when I was ten years old and stole cookies. I was merely telling Rosamund things for her own good. She's a pretty girl if she is my own daughter and I want her to be popular and worthy to be liked!"

"H'm!" said Aunt Amelia again. She poked a knitting needle reflectively through the lace at her wrist. "I don't know," she admitted, "that you said anything wrong. You were advising Rosie to be self-sacrificing and thoughtful of others and to get up early mornings so she could accomplish more. That's exactly what the proper sort of mother is expected to say. Still, if Rosie follows your advice she'll be left at the post, all right."

"Why, Aunt Amelia'" cried the matronly woman, sitting down in surprise at her relative's levity.

"I think I've picked up a bit of slang since the boys down home went to college," Aunt Amelia explained, with an air of pride. "I've kept up with the times since you were married, Anastasia' And you notice lots of things as you grow older.

"I was just thinking," went on Aunt Amelia "about two girls down at home and wondering why every human man is an exception to the rule. You give any man the sort of girl he ought to like and he backs away and loses his head over the other kind and then expects you to congratulate him on having succeeded in making his whole life miserable.

"There were the Green girls, Emma and Bessie, and when you married and went away they were making mud pies. Well, when they grew up if ever there was a selfish bit of humanity it was Bessie Green. She was not indolent, she was just plain, downright lazy. People didn't think much about her faults; though, because her eyes had a trick of sparkling through her lashes at you and she was always ready for any good time that was going.

"Emma was just as pretty as Bessie, but she was quiet and she didn't look at you through her eyelashes. She had great gray eyes as open and clear as lakes and a fashion of seeing down to the bottom of your mind where you had tucked away the disagreeable part of yourself and thought it hidden. Not that Emma was a prig—she was just an exceptionally lovely, sweet-minded girl.

"Their mother was delicate and Emma used to get up early and see that breakfast was right for father and the boys. Usually Bessie had her breakfast sent upstairs. She said that since Emma was up for breakfast there really was no sense in her getting up, too. Emma knew how to cook and Bessie frankly said she loathed the kitchen and all concerned with it and would rather live on toast and tea than burn her face and hands and get a headache.

"Emma made herself the prettiest sort of dresses and blouses and Bessie got hers ready-made or hired a dressmaker. She said she didn't know how to sew and wasn't ever going to learn.

"In short, Emma spent her time doing things for other people because she was naturally so generous and sweet she couldn't help it. She had all the virtues of a model woman besides plenty of good looks, and she was properly modest and retiring. When they went out anywhere there might be an older man or so who would hunt out Emma because they had sufficient brains to appreciate her, but you ought to have seen the young circle about Bessie.

"Well, after Bessie had driven two men to drink and two others had quarreled about her and several more had had the blues for months she got engaged to the cashier in a bank just because Emma liked him. Oh, no, she didn't marry him—she coolly threw him over when a rich man came along. She promptly married the rich man.

"You ought to see her house! She won't bother her head over it, because she says there are servants to do that. Her husband never got a decent meal at home and nothing in the place is ever put away where it belongs. Her husband sews on his own buttons and carries up her breakfast to her before he leaves in the morning. If she sheds tears about anything he buys her diamonds, and if she sulks he lets her go to Europe.

"Emma? She married the bank cashier finally and they are ordinarily happy. You see, like all men who marry good wives, he takes his perfectly run home as a matter of course. Sometimes when he meets Bessie she looks at him through her eyelashes in the old way and his heart thumps."

The good-looking matronly woman stared out of the window. "I'd better send Rosamund to a beauty shop for cultivation and tell her to stop thinking about anybody but herself, if she is to be happy in future—is that what you mean?" she asked with a little sigh.

"I believe you might as well," replied Aunt Amelia, "the world being so perfectly idiotic in these present times."

Chalmers MOTOR CARS

The Chalmers "Thirty" is the Only Medium Priced Car That Was Ever Awarded the Glidden Trophy

Never before has a car costing under $4,000 won the Glidden Trophy.

This year—the longest, the hardest, and most racking route ever undertaken—the Glidden Trophy was won by the Chalmers "Thirty" in competition with cars of more than twice its price, and rated power.

What more could you ask of any car, at any price?

With such a proof of its study and reliable quality, the demand for 1911 models is going to be even greater than last year, when the output was sold before the season was half over.

The increased demand will not effect the Chalmers policy of building cars of quality, not quantity, not how many cars, but how good, is our constant aim and effort, this is the principal reason for the fact that the Chalmers has never been defeated in any motoring event by any car of its price and power.

The 1911 Models are being delivered in order of purchase. Demonstration of new models by appointment.

FINAL IN TOURNAMENT HELD YESTERDAY

The finals in the men's singles at the Netherwood championship tennis tournament were won by John Uhler yesterday afternoon, when he defeated Ludlow Vandeventer on the Letcher court in three out of four sets, 2-6, 6-3, 7-5, 7-5. The women's singles, which were played Friday afternoon and yesterday, resulted in a victory for Miss Helen Cruikshank, defeating Mrs. O. P. Metcalf in the final round by the score of 6-1, 6-2.

At Traell Hall last night, the cups for the winners in the men's and women's were presented by Edmund L. Mackenzie, the refere in the tournament. A large number of the enthusiasts were present and a general social evening was enjoyed by the company after the speech making.

Proctor's Good Show.

"The Demon Within," a strong western dramatic sketch; Anderson & Evans, in a hard-luck sketch of stage life; the Lillian Sisters, a duo of clever talented girls, who are musicians, who can sing and play, and Barnum's circus, comprising cats and dogs and a clever mind-reading pony, make up the attractive vaudeville bill at Proctor's theatre. Capacity audiences were the rule yesterday afternoon and evening.

The Most Industrious Store in Newark---The City of Industry

Fifty-Second Anniversary Celebration and Sale

1858-1910

This Store as a Distributor of Merchandise

A great writer has declared that the first great industry is agriculture, second in importance railroading, and third in rank the big retail store, because of its great service in the distribution of manufactured goods.

Many more carloads of goods pass thru our hands, from the manufacturers to the people, than go thru any other retail establishment in the State—probably twice or three times as much. We employ in the neighborhood of 2,000 people in the distribution of this merchandise and 100 wagons and automobiles are required to deliver it. Far more than 25,000 deliveries are made every wek by wagon, freight, express, boat, mail and messenger. Goods are sent to every State in the Union. As many as 700 men have been employed at one time in our packing and delivery department.

If the quantity of goods we distribute to the homes of the people are measured in carloads, wagon loads or in dollars, every reader of this newspaper would be amazed at the figures.

The importance of a store like this to the community cannot be rightly estimated unless one appreciates the part it takes in facilitating the marketing and distribution of manufactured goods. Its great trade events, its liberal advertising, its persistent push, all aid immeasurably in marketing the manufacturers product—and the one event of all the year that helps most is this

Lanier of the Cavalry

Or, A Week's Arrest

By GENERAL CHARLES KING,

Author of "The Colonel's Daughter." "Foes In Ambush." Etc.

Copyright, 1909, by J. B. Lippincott Company

A romance of army life in the Indian country in Indian fighting days! Lanier, the self sacrificing hero who typifies Uncle Sam's military officers; Miriam, the sweet girl whose love he wins; Dora, the capricious little beauty who set a whole military encampment in a turmoil; Rawdon, young, misjudged, but honest, who was the rival of the evil officer Rafferty, a soldier of whom the service was well rid—these are only some of the characters that General King has drawn in the thrilling settings in the far west of bygone days when the Apaches and the Sioux waged war on the "pale-faces" in their last stand to save their hunting grounds. In this realistic narrative the humor compels laughter, the romance charms and the intrigue and tragedy thrill and grip the reader.

CHAPTER I.

THE sun was sinking low beyond the ford of the foaming Platte. The flag at the old fort on the neighboring height clung to the staff with scarcely a flutter, awaiting the evening salute of the trumpets and the roar of the sunset gun. The young girl flitted restlessly about the vine covered porch of the roadside cottage. She laid the big binocular aside, a wistful, longing look in the dark and dreamy eyes. Ever since stable call she had hovered about that shaded nook, again and again searching the northward slopes and ridges. Rawdon should have been here at her side—Rawdon, whom she had not seen for three mortal days—Rawdon, whom she had never set eyes on before the 1st of April and whom now she looked upon as the foremost soldier of the regiment, when in point of fact he was but a private trooper, serving the first part of his first enlistment.

This girl of seventeen, in her dainty white frock, plumped herself dejectedly down on the top step with two very shapely, slender, slippered feet displayed on the second below.

And then of a sudden the tears were dashed away and the girl sprang to her feet. A blithe voice hailed her from within.

"Dey's comin', Miss Dora—two on 'em, at least—like enough to be twin brudders."

Dora flew light as a bird to the other end of the little porch and was gazing out through the honeysuckles with all her soul in her eyes.

Coming up the slope at easy canter rode a young officer, with broad brimmed hat and dusty field dress, alert, slender, sinewy, of only medium height and not more than twenty-five years, with a handsome, sun tanned, smiling face, and behind him came what Aunt Chloe, in her "darky" dialect had declared "the very spit of him"—a young trooper in similar slouch hat and dusty field dress, younger probably by three or four years, but to the full as alert and active, his face now all aglow with a light that was sweet for girlish eyes to see.

The leader swung his hat and blithely shouted as he curbed his eager horse. "Howdy, Miss Dora? Bless your heart, Aunt Chloe, I knew you'd have the buttermilk ready! No, Rawdon, I shan't dismount"—this to the young orderly, who had sprung from saddle. "Father home, Miss Dora?" he went on cheerily.

"Over at the stables, Mr. Lanier," was the smiling answer. Trooper Rawdon had instantly swung once more into saddle and was reining back to his place.

"Stables going yet? I thought it supper time. Colonel sent me ahead to find him. Three of E troop horses act like they'd been eating loco weed."

"Colonel Button's always findin' some way of sendin' you 'ahaid, Marse Lanier," grinned Chloe. "Ah don't wonder dey says you can do anything you like an' never get hauled up for it."

"You're a gossip, auntie," laughed Lanier. "Rawdon, you dismount and wait for Dr. Mayhew in case I miss him. Give him the colonel's message and say the squadron should be in by 7.30." And, with a wave of his hand, he was off.

Then Chloe vanished opportunely. Dora, with glistening eyes and glowing cheeks, retreated within the shelter of the bowered porch. Then bounding up the steps and turning with outstretched arms, thither Rawdon followed.

Ten minutes later at swift trot came a third horse and rider, the horse all that a cavalry horse should be in gait and build, the rider well nigh as marked in build and proportions. In front of the little cottage of the veterinary surgeon he hurriedly dismounted and strode angering, through the gate. Dora, her face paling, met him at the head of the steps.

He brushed by, turned sharp to his left, and in an instant the two men were face to face.

"Rawdon," spoke the newcomer, his tone curt, domineering, insolent, "what do you mean by letting an officer lead your horse to stables? Go you to yours at once! Take my horse, too, and groom him!"

Rawdon flushed to his forehead.

"My orders were from Lieutenant Lanier, sergeant, and they were distinctly to stop here."

"Go you at once and do as I say," was the instant rejoinder, and the veins in the sergeant's face were swelled almost to bursting.

"Indeed, Sergeant Fitzroy," began the girl rebukefully, "those were Lieutenant Lanier's orders."

"Hang Lieutenant Lanier's orders! No stripling sub can give such orders in this regiment. How dare you delay there? Go, you town skip, or I'll kick you through the"—

But now, with blazing eyes, Dora Mayhew threw herself in front of him. "If you raise hand or foot against Rawdon, Sergeant Fitzroy, it's the last time you come inside our gate. No, I'll not stand aside! Before you strike him you'll have to strike me!"

And then and there Sergeant Fitzroy realized that the fears and forebodings of the past month were more than grounded. If angered before he was maddened now. Brushing her light form aside with one sweep of his powerful arm, he sprang forward at the young soldier's throat just as a tall, lean man with grizzled beard, but athletic build, bounded up the steps and caught his wrist.

"None of that in my house, Fitzroy!" came the order, stern and compelling. "In God's name, what does this mean?" And, still grasping the sergeant's arm, the speaker backed the raging Englishman against the wooden pillar and held him there.

"Let go, Mayhew!" raved the sergeant. "I've ordered that young rip to stables, and he refuses to go."

"He was ordered to stay, papa, until you came," protested Dora, her eyes ablaze. "Lieutenant Lanier—that man's superior officer—gave him the colonel's message to you."

"He was ordered to go by Lieutenant Lanier's superior, the officer of the day, whom I represent," was Fitzroy's answer, "and the longer he stays the worse 'twill be for him."

"No officer ever authorized you to come to my quarters and lay violent hands on a man behaving like a gentleman, which you are not," was the cutting rejoinder of the older man, and it stung Fitzroy to fresh fury. Was he,

"BEFORE YOU STRIKE HIM YOU'LL HAVE TO STRIKE ME!"

the model rider of the regiment, to be braved like this and in presence of the girl he loved?

"Let go! You must, Mayhew!" he hissed through clinched teeth. "You have no authority. You are only a civilian. You can be broke and fired if I report this—outrage—and what I know. Let go!" he shouted, freeing himself by furious effort. "Now, you, Rawdon, come with me. No. Stop! Corporal Watts!" he shouted to a non-commissioned officer swinging up the pathway toward the guardhouse on the bluff, four men of the guard at his back. "Come here and take charge of this man. It's the order of the officer of the day."

Corporal Watts slowly descended the incline, then, obviously embarrassed at the presence of Dora Mayhew, demanded further information.

By this time Rawdon, pale and silent, was standing at the foot of the steps. Too well he and other young soldiers had learned to know the weight of Sergeant Fitzroy's spite. Two officers were coming swiftly around the corner of the corral, Lanier foremost.

"I say again, Corporal Watts, this man is to be taken in charge at once. It is Captain Curbit's order as officer of the day. I came direct from him," was Fitzroy's final order. But it failed.

"Do nothing of the kind, Corporal Watts," said a quiet voice, at sound of which Sergeant Fitzroy whirled about and turned, if a possible thing, a full shade redder. There at the gate stood Lieutenant Lanier. There, a dozen yards away, but trudging fast as dignity would permit, came the officer of the day.

A jerk of the head to the corporal in response to his instant salute, and that young soldier, much relieved, strode away to join his men. Then Captain Curbit turned on Sergeant Fitzroy.

"You told me nothing of the facts in this case, sir. Lieutenant Lanier says he directed this man to wait here, with the colonel's message, while he rode to stables. Pardon me, Miss Dora. Come this way, sergeant."

And there was nothing for it but to obey. Abashed, humiliated, rebuked and, in her presence, where he had looked but a moment before to humble and humiliate his rival, Fitzroy could only lift his hand in salute, follow the captain out of earshot and there make his plea as best he could, leaving Lanier and the silent young trooper, Dora and her grave faced old father, in possession of the field.

For a moment they watched Fitzroy.

"He'll give you no more trouble, I fancy," said Lanier in low tone to the veterinarian. "I'll say good night again, Miss Dora." And he walked cheerily away, but Mayhew looked after him long and anxiously.

"Maybe not—maybe not," he muttered, with sorrowing shake of the head, "but few men can give more trouble than him when he's minded, and I reckon he's minded now."

* * * * * * *

Nearly six long months went the regiment a-field on the hardest campaign of its history. Then at last by way of reward it had been ordered into big Fort Cushing for the winter. The new station was blithe and merry with Christmas preparations. Half a dozen fair visitors had come from the distant east. The band was good, the dancing men were many, the dancing floor was fine, and the dance they were having on Friday night, Dec. 16, was all that even an army dance could be until just after 11 o'clock. Then something happened to cast a spell over everybody.

Bob Lanier was officer of the guard. Bob had asked the colonel to let him turn over his sword to a brother officer, who, being in mourning, could not dance, and the colonel had curtly said no. The colonel's wife was amazed. Six girls were sorrowful, and one was cruelly hurt. She was under parental orders to start for home on the morrow. She liked Bob Lanier infinitely more than she liked her father's dictum that she must like him not at all. As for Bob Lanier, the garrison knew he loved her devotedly even before she knew it herself.

Of course she came to the dance. As the guest of Captain and Mrs. Sumter, she even had to go up and smile on the colonel and his wife, who were receiving. She and Kate Sumter had been classmates, roommates, at Vassar, and Kate, born and reared in the army, had never been quite content until her friend could come to visit the regiment—her father's home.

A winsome pair they were, these two "sweet girl graduates" of the June gone by, while the regiment was stirring up the Sioux on the way to the Big Horn and Yellowstone. Everybody had lavish welcome for them, and to Miriam Arnold the month at Fort Cushing had been quite a dream of delight until there came a strange and sudden missive from her father bidding her break off a visit that was to have lasted until February and all relations with Lieutenant Robert Ray Lanier.

For reasons of his own Mr. Lanier had made no avowal of his love to her, even though he had disclosed it to every one else. Bob had his enemies—frank men generally have. He could hardly believe the evidence of his ears when just after sunset roll call he had confidently approached the colonel with his request and had received the colonel's curt reply.

Everybody by half past 10 had heard of it. Nobody was very much surprised when in the midst of the lovely "Lorelei" waltz a group of young officers near the doorway opened out, as it were, and Bob Lanier, officer of the guard, came gracefully gliding down the room, Miriam Arnold's radiant, happy face looking up into his. It was a joy to watch them dance together, but not to watch the colonel's face when he caught sight of them. Except Lanier every officer present was in full uniform, without his saber. Lanier was in the undress uniform of the guard, but with the saber—not the long, curved, clumsy, steel scabbarded weapon then used by the cavalry, but a light Prussian hussar sword that he had evidently borrowed for the occasion, for it belonged to Barker, the adjutant, as Barker realized to his cost when the commander summoned him.

"Mr. Barker, you will at once place Mr. Lanier in arrest for quitting his guard and disobeying my orders."

"I shall have to—get my saber, sir," stammered the adjutant, meaning the regulation item over at his quarters.

"There it is, sir, before your eyes. Mr. Lanier, at least, can have no further use for it until a court martial acts on his case."

"Good Lord," thought Barker, "how can I go up to Bob and tell him to turn over that sword so that I can properly place him in arrest."

But the colonel would brook no delay. "Direct Mr. Lanier to report to me in the anteroom," said he, marching thither forthwith.

"Miss Arnold, may I offer myself as a substitute for the rest of this dance? Bob, the chief wants to see you a second," was the best that Barker could think of. They praised him later for his "mendacity," yet what he said was true to the letter. It took little more than a second for the colonel to say:

Now, that was the first touch to spoil that memorable December night. The waltz soon ceased, but the colonel called for an extra and led out a lady from town, the wife of a future senator. "Keep this thing going," he cautioned his adjutant, but the piteous face of the girl he had left at the door of the ladies' dressing room and in the hands of Mrs. Sumter was too much for Barker.

Colonel Button was hopping mad, yet at what? Lanier's offense had not been grave. It had happened half a dozen times that the officer of the guard, making his rounds and visiting sentries in the course of a dance evening, would casually drop in by one door and out by another, taking a turn or two on the floor perhaps—"just waltzing in and waltzing out," as they said.

"Disobeyed his orders flatly," suggested Captain Snaffle.

"Disobeyed no order," said Sumter as stoutly. "Simply did what many another has done, and nobody hurt. Nor would Lanier have been noted, perhaps, if he had not first asked to turn over his sword to Trotter."

Not ten minutes after Lanier went out, and went silent, but in unspeakable wrath, Paymaster Scott came dawdling in, and though but a casual visitor at the post, just back that day from a tour of the northward camps and forts along the Indian border, he saw at a glance that something had gone amiss. The colonel was laboriously waltzing; three or four couples were mechanically following suit, but most of the men were gathered about the buffet, and most of the women huddled at the dressing room door, and Scott, marching over to pay his respects to the colonel's wife, noted instantly the trouble in her serious face. Captain Snaffle was speaking with her at the moment. Mrs. Snaffle was at her side. "Why did they tell her at all?" Mrs. Snaffle was asking, with much spirit and obvious effort to control a racial tendency to double the final monosyllables. "Sure they might have known 'twould sc—frighten the life out of her."

"Lanier? Oh, yes. I thought it was Bob I saw awhile ago streaking it across the parade. What's Bob got to do with frightening folk?"

"Something very unfortunate has happened, major," said Mrs. Button. "Mr. Lanier was officer of the guard and asked to attend the dance, Mr. Trotter offering to take charge of the guard. Colonel Button felt compelled to decline, and—he came anyway. You know, of course, that couldn't be overlooked."

"H'm," said Scott gravely and reflectively. "And who is so frightened?"

"Miriam Arnold, a very charming girl who is visiting the Sumters. Indeed, it looks as though she cared for him. It's no secret that he's in love with her."

TO SWAMP THE LORDS.

A Threat That Always Brings England's Upper House to Terms.

To override the veto of the house of lords by a wholesale creation of peers is a plan that has been often threatened, but hardly ever put into practice. It certainly places the king in a very unenviable predicament—so much so that in 1719, after a crisis of the kind, George I. caused to be introduced into the lords a bill for limiting the power of the sovereign to create peers, a sort of royal self denying ordinance.

The measure was twice passed in the lords, but twice rejected by the commons, which was lucky, for had it been carried it would have made the house of lords an almost unchangeable body, entirely beyond the control of king or minister or commons.

The nearest approach that was ever made to "swamping the lords" was in 1832, when the fate of the great reform bill trembled in the balance. Over and over again the measure had been passed by the commons, only to be rejected by the lords. The country was furious. Payment of taxes was refused. Riots broke out everywhere.

The prime minister, Lord Grey, went to the king and begged him to create new peers to carry the bill. His majesty refused, and the ministry resigned. The king, however, presently changed his mind and, fearing a revolution, agreed to the creation of a hundred new peers, "or more if necessary." Then, very reluctantly, the upper house gave way, and the bill became law.—London Family Herald.

THE DEATH DICE.

A Murder Case In Which They Returned a Just Verdict.

The German emperor some time ago presented to the Hohenzollern museum the "death dice" with which one of his ancestors decided a difficult case in the seventeenth century. The history of these dice is generally given as follows:

A young girl had been murdered. Suspicion fell upon two young soldiers, Ralph and Alfred, who were suitors for her hand. They both denied their guilt, and even torture failed to extract a confession from either.

Then Elector Frederick William decided to cut the knot by means of the dice box. The two soldiers should throw for their lives and the loser should be executed as the murderer.

The event was celebrated with great solemnity. Ralph had the first chance and threw sixes, the highest possible number. The dice box was then given to Alfred. He fell on his knees and prayed. Then he rose to his feet and threw the dice with such force that one of them was broken. The whole one showed six, the broken one also gave six on the larger portion, and the fragment split off showed one. This was a total of thirteen, one beyond Ralph's throw. The audience held its breath in amazement.

"God has spoken!" cried the prince.

Ralph, appalled by what he regarded as a sign from heaven, confessed his guilt and was sentenced to death.—Chicago Record-Herald.

Got What She Wanted.

"I can stand for some things, but not for everything," said the clerk as he watched a stylishly dressed young woman leave the store.

"What is the matter?" asked the proprietor, who had walked up unobserved.

"That woman who just left hustled up to the counter and asked to see men's shirts. I showed her every style and color we carry. After inspecting the entire stock she rose and thanked me sweetly, adding: 'I didn't wish to purchase any. You see, I am making my husband some shirts, and I wanted to be sure I was doing them right. My husband is very particular about the finish of his shirts.' And they say married women are so considerate."

The Sun.

It is computed that the temperature of the sun would be expressed by 18,000 degrees on Fahrenheit's thermometer, or about twenty times the temperature of boiling water. This is about five times the temperature that man is able to produce by artificial means. The light given off from the surface of the sun is reckoned as being 5,300 times more intense than that of the molten metal in a Bessemer converter, though that is of an almost blinding brilliancy, or, if we compare it with the oxyhydrogen flame, the sun sheds a light equal in brilliancy to 146 times the intensity of the limelight.

Plant That Feigns Death.

In South America there is a plant, a species of mimosa, which resorts to death feigning, evidently for the purpose of preventing grass eating animals from eating it. In its natural state this plant has a vivid green hue, but directly it is touched by a human finger or by any living animal it collapses into a tangle of apparently dead and withered stems. Among British wild plants the most sensitive to touch is the insectivorous sundew of English bogs.—London Globe.

Kind Critics.

"How did Jones get such a reputation both as a singer and an artist?"

"He sang before the Painters' club and painted pictures for the Musicians' union."—Cleveland Leader.

Reason Enough.

"Why does she think he has such a splendid future?"

"Because she has promised to marry him, I guess."—Houston Post.

A BRAVE GIRL.

Her Terrible Experience While on a Smuggling Expedition.

This tale of heroism displayed by a young woman engaged in smuggling contraband goods over the Swiss-Italian border comes from Geneva: "Mlle. Poretti, aged eighteen, and her brother, aged twenty-three, left Swiss territory to cross the Baldisco pass carrying contraband goods into Italy. On the summit they were overtaken by a violent snowstorm and were soon in deep snow. The Porettis roped themselves, the young man leading. They lost their way, and while attempting to find the path Poretti fell through the snow into a crevasse into which he nearly dragged his sister. The girl, however, planted her ice ax in the snow and withstood the shock.

"Early the next morning several smugglers crossing the pass from Swiss territory into Italian found the young girl near the ordinary route taken by smugglers and recognized her at once, as she belonged to a smuggler's family and lived at Chiavenna. The smugglers at once drew up the brother, but found that he had died during the thirteen hours his sister had held him by the rope. He had received severe injuries in the head, and his body was frozen.

"The smugglers carried down the brave girl, who was almost unconscious, as well as the dead body of her brother, and notified the Poretti family at Chiavenna. On reaching the valley the girl had recovered sufficiently from her terrible experience to explain that she and her brother had spoken for several hours after the accident and at last he had said that he felt nothing and wanted to sleep.

"A warm night followed the snowstorm, or two dead bodies would have been found. Under the great strain the rope had cut through the girl's clothes and her waist was bleeding when she was rescued."—Chicago News.

MISERY AIDING MISERY.

The Helping Hand Among the Beach Combers of Marseilles.

Harry A. Franck in "A Vagabond Journey Around the World" writes of the trying times when he was a beach comber in Marseilles: "Long, hungry days passed, days in which I could scarcely withstand the temptation to carry my kodak to the mont de piete (pawnshop) just off the sailors' square. Among the beach combers there were daily some who gained a few francs by an odd job, by the sale of an extra garment or by 'grafting,' pure and simple. When his hand closed on a bit of money the stranded fellow may have been weak with fasting, yet this first thought was not to gorge himself, but to share his fortune with his companions under hatches. In those bleak November days many a man ranked a 'worthless outcast' by his more fortunate fellow beings toiled all day at the coal wharfs of Marseilles and tramped back, cold and hungry, to the Place Victor Gelu to divide his earnings with other famished miserables whom he had not known a week before.

"More than one man sold the only shirt he owned to feed a new arrival who was an absolute stranger to all. These men won no praise for their benefactions. They expected none and would have opened their eys in wonder if they had been told that their actions were worthy of praise. The stranded band grew to be a corporate body. By a job here and there I contributed my share to the common fund, and between us we fought off gaunt starvation.

"In a dirty alley just off the place was an inn kept by a Greek in which one could sleep on the floor at 3 sous or in a cot at 6, and every evening a band of ragged mortals might have been seen dividing the earnings of some of them into three sou lots as they made their way toward 'L'Auberge chez le Grec.'"

Halley's Achievements.

Edmund Halley was a very great man. He was not only the first to predict correctly the return of a comet, that which is now known by his name, but also—before Newton had announced his results to any one—arrived at the conclusion that the attraction of gravitation probably varied inversely as the square of the distance. While these and other important achievements of his are well known it seems to have been forgotten that Halley devised a method of determining the age of the ocean from chemical denudation.—Dr. G. F. Becker in Science.

MAKING A BANK VAULT

How the One Being Installed in State Trust Co. Office was Built.

AN INTERESTING DESCRIPTION.

The Manganese Steel Vault Company is installing in the banking rooms of The State Trust Company, at Park avenue and Second street, one of the finest round door manganese steel vaults ever constructed by the concern, and when erected in position it will offer protection to valuables that will be absolutely fire, mob and burglar proof.

The tremendous material prosperity of the country in the last ten years has had an immediate reflection in the demand for increased facilities for banking, and safeguarding valuables. In localities where ten years ago a single bank more than sufficed for the needs of the community are now found three or four institutions, all of which are doing a good business. The man who ten years ago measured his worldly wealth by a deposit in the local savings bank has now become an investor in securities and demands proper facilities for keeping these safely.

Hardly a bank exists now that does not find it necessary not only to guard its own securities, but to offer protection for the valuable personal property of its depositors.

The evolution of the vault has been well defined, from the rock-hewn cavern closed by heaped-up stones, to masonry chambers with massive wooden doors studded with nails and locked with huge bolts or later with primitive keys, or the alphabetical locks of the seventeenth century. Wooden chests were displaced by those of metal, and with the development of the iron and steel industries the sizes of the chests increased until they became strong rooms with iron walls.

But as fast as the security increased, faster grew the daring, and skill of marauders, and so, keeping pace the one with the other, the race between security and attack has kept up to the present day. Iron walls gave place to those of steel, and when ordinary steel proved insufficient, the makers turned to hardened steel, though hampered always by the fact that the harder the steel the more brittle it became and the more susceptible to crack under shock. To avoid this and in default of a metal possessing the qualities of both hardness and toughness, alternate layers were used of tough soft steel and hard brittle steel, the combination being deemed sufficient to give hardness to protect from penetration and toughness to resist shock.

This type of vault, known as the laminated or plate vault, answered the purpose until the advent of nitroglycerine, whose power against such construction is well known, and later of thermit, the latter a substance burning with intense heat sufficient to draw the temper from hardened steel. This agency practically destroyed the efficiency of hard steel. The discovery of Manganese Steel, a combination of ferro-manganese and iron, provided a metal inherently hard enough to be impenetrable to a drill, and when properly treated so tough as to be secure from cracking. This discovery led to the introduction of solid-wall Manganese Steel vaults, which in the past few years have come more and more to be recognized as the most desirable form of security.

The solid vault came into being as a result of the discovery of a metal which could take the place of the combined hard and soft steels in the laminated vault, and was constructed upon the theory that if a wall three inches thick, composed of three separate plates, offered protection against attack, a solid plate of the same thickness, provided it was composed of a proper metal, would be stronger. The plates of a solid vault being cast, it was possible to make them of much larger size than the plates employed in laminated work, and we therefore find in the solid construction single pieces of metal three inches thick and as much as nine feet square.

Vaults composed of Manganese steel consist of a series of individual plates having a minimum thickness of two inches and of appropriate dimensions to suit the requirements of special contracts. The peculiarity of Manganese steel is such that it requires no treament to give to it the desired hardness, this quality being inherent. It is practically unmachinable. It is therefore essential that the separate plates should be cast so nearly to the ultimate dimensions that they may be finished by processes of grinding or abrasion.

JOHN KONESKY IN TOILS OF FANWOOD POLICE

Patrolman Logan of the Fanwood police arrested at 3 o'clock this morning John Konesky, of this city, and when arraigned before Justice Sheelen the latter sentenced the youth to thirty days in the county jail pending an investigation into last night's conduct of three boys, of whom Konesky was one.

Officer Logan surprised the three youths who apparently had designs on the Fanwood station and when he made a grab for two of them all three ran. Logan managed to capture Konesky who when searched turned over to the patrolman 121 pennies some of which were wrapped in the original bank packages. Konesky refused to account for the possession of the coins and likewise impudently refused to tell anything more about himself than his name.

Young Konesky has been in the clutches of the police of this city, and only recently was released by Judge William N. Runyon in the charge of vagrancy made against him by Patrolman Dobson. At the time Konesky was given a chance to behave himself and Judge Runyon made a personal appeal to his father to again receive the youth in his parents' home. Konesky promised to be good and he was allowed to go his own way. It is not known now who the two companions of the that their names will be reevaled when Konesky is questioned at Elizabeth.

No report of a robbery of slot machines or banks has been received nor has anyone reported the loss of packages of cents. Konesky would not tell where he obtained the coins.

SOME NOTES FROM BORO. POLICE COURT

Charles Van DeWorth, his wife Hannah, and daughter, Katie Smith, all colored and residents of Warren street, were arraigned in the borough court this morning on a charge of being drunk and disorderly. They were taken in custody by Chief Marshal Weiss and Marshal Keller yesterday afternoon. Charles had been arraigned several times on the same charge and his promises for reform have proved useless. Consequently Recorder Dolliver imposed a fine of $5 on each.

Patrick Simon, of South Second street, an Italian boy thirteen years old, and William Harrison, a colored boy of the same age, were arrested yesterday afternoon by Chief Marshal Weiss for stealing two bottles of milk from a milk wagon. The boys were caught after a long chase. In the borough court this morning J. Henry Crane appeared as counsel for the colored boy and Recorder Dolliver suspended sentence after giving the culprits a lecture. Both boys promised to be good and Mr. Crane said that he would look after young Harrison and see that he behaved himself.

RESCINDED AN AWARD OF STREET WORK BONDS.

Through a motion offered by Councilman Mygatt at the September meeting of the Common Council last night, a previous resolution awarding the City National Bank the $30,000 street improvement bonds, was rescinded, and bids will be advertised for according to law. After the bonds were awarded to the City National Bank, Mayor Charles J. Fisk called the attention of the members to the fact that the procedure was irregular and not in accordance the provisions of the law.

When the Council meets in adjourned session, September 19, this matter will be taken up. It may be that the city will issue bonds from time to time as it may need money for the street work, instead of issuing the entire $30,000 worth of bonds. This will be done if possible.

Accepts a Position in Manila.

Jack Douglass, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Douglass, of 676 West Eighth street, will leave tomorrow for Manila, P. I. where he will accept a position with the MacCloud Company, importers and exporters. Enroute he will visit relatives in Chicago and will also stop over at Denver, where his brother, William C. Douglass, is a student at the Colorado School of Mines. He will then go to Seattle and thence by steamer to the Philippines.

Grower of Fine Tomatoes.

Monroe W. Farnham, of 967 West Fifth street, is a grower of fancy Jersey tomatoes. In the rear of his residence he has a number of tomato vines, which by his care have grown tomatoes averaging a pound and a half in weight. His garden is to be imitated next season by his neighbors, who have become interested in the raising of tomatoes.

CITY FATHERS' ROUTINE

Many Minor Matters are Disposed of at the Regular Sept. Meeting.

RECEIVE SOME PETITIONS.

Reports Are Read and Resolutions Passed by the Common Council—To Meet Again on Monday, Sept. 19.

In the absence of President Ralph I. Tolles, who is ill at his summer home, Woodmont, Conn., Councilman Herbert Buxton presided at the September meeting of the Common Council, last night. It was a short session, most of the business being routine. Councilman Duncan W. Taylor and Frank Randolph were also among the missing.

Among the petitions was one from Solomon Mann, of Stebbins place, asking for an electric light on that street, between West Third and South Second streets. This was referred. E. L. Hand, clerk of Fanwood township, informed the Council that the township was willing to care for Cushing road, if the city would look after a portion of Woodland avenue, in accordance with a recent suggestion. This was referred to the street committee.

The Highland Park Realty Company, through H. R. Linbarger, secretary, communicated with the Council regarding the macadamizing of a portion of Leland avenue and the assessment thereof. This was referred to the finance committee.

T. F. Dunigan, of Woodbridge, who was the lowest bidder on the proposal to macadamize certain streets, asked for the privilege of withdrawing his bid as he had forgotten to include "filler" in his bid. The request was granted. Later resolutions were offered by Mr. Gloak, chairman of the street committee, awarding the contracts for macadamizing to John McNabb, of Bound Brook, and Mobus & Burke, of this city, the next lowest bidders on certain streets.

The attention of the members was called to the unsightly condition of the roadway fronting Hillside cemetery, by George P. Mellick, and he suggested that they take the matter up with the Public Service Corporation, whose trolley tracks run through that thoroughfare. The matter was referred to the committee on public affairs.

A resolution, offered by Mr. Mygatt and adopted, authorized the city treasurer to pay the city's share for macadamizing certain streets, the amount being $2,671.93, and a similar resolution offered by the same member and adopted, authorized the payment of the city's share of a sewer assessment amounting to $444.27.

Clerk Horace G. Adams, of the District Court, reported receipts for the past month to be $84.77 and the balance, $58.40, was turned over to the city treasurer. Overseer of the Poor A. D. Ayers reported total expenses of $449.56 for the past month.

Several resolutions were offered by Mr. Mygatt for the finance committee and adopted. One authorized the city treasurer to borrow $2,000 on account of sewer extension, and another authorized the borrowing of $1,000 for the fire fund, while a third resolution authorized the retirement of a $5,000 street improvement bonds, dated 1911.

Specifications for the proposed extension of the sanitary system of sewers were filed by Mr. Gloak, and he offered a resolution fixing Monday night, October 3, as the time when bids will be received for doing the work and furnishing the materials. In this connection Mr. Gloak offered an ordinance which was read for information, calling for an addition to the sewer system on East Front street, Randolph road, St. Mary's avenue and Watson avenue. The ordinance will be taken up later.

A resolution offered by Councilman Charles C. Randolph and adopted, authorized the installation of one two-way hydrant on West Eighth street, five hundred feet west of Grant avenue. The petition of F. B. Lawrence and others for two electric lights on Ravine road, was granted in accordance with a resolution offered by Mr. Montgomery, as was also the petition of H. B. MacDonald and others for a light on West Sixth street, near Lee place.

The ordinance previously adopted on two readings, which describes the manner and conditions to be followed in the future as to the dedication of streets to the city's use, was passed on third reading on motion of Mr. Holt, who introduced the ordinance. It was decided to hold an adjourned meeting of the Council on Monday night, September 19.

Fred E. Smith will have charge of the prayer meeting at Trinity Reformed church, tonight.

HEPTASOPHS' SOCIABLE

Meeting in Coward's Hall Attracts Large and Interested Gathering.

ORGANIZATION IS GROWING.

Fraternal Insurance Discussed by Officers—Speeches by Men Eminent in the Order—New Class Organized.

Friends and members of the Improved Order of Heptasophs gathered in Coward's Hall last night for the purpose of introducing the new members of the order to the old and to have a generally good social time. J. V. E. Vanderhoef, supreme committeeman, presided at the function, and several noted speakers were present and addressed the company.

Edward Sheffield, department organizer and one of the most eloquent men in the order, told of the progress recently made in the different States (27), and incidentally told of the fact that over $1,000,000 had been paid out during the thirty-two years of the existence of the order. Mr. Sheffield quoted from a speech recently made at a convention held in New York city at the Manhattan Hotel in which a man who is not a member of the order of Heptasophs, but who is interested in fraternal insurance, said: "The order of Heptasophs has been taken as a model on which to base future legislation on fraternal societies. It is certain that the Improved Order is one of the best organizations in existence today. The Knights of Columbus come second in the estimation of the insurance men."

During the evening H. H. Heath, deputy superior archon, of Asbury Park, and O. D. Bryan, of Philadelphia, one of the members of the legal department of the order, spoke on topics relating to their respective departments and aroused the enthusiasm of the local members.

A new class which is forming will soon have a membership of twenty-five, and when it is completed the degree team of Morristown will initiate the class. Nineteen new aspirants for membership in the order have been obtained, and when the other six have passed the rigorous examination the whole class will be initiated with an appropriate ceremony here.

After the speakers had concluded last night, Professor Davis gave some splendid piano music, and Jack Hallard sang. It was said last night that a movement was on foot among the various lodges of the organization to establish a sick benefit fund, which will prove an innovation in this order.

27 YRS. A PATROLMAN NOW TO BE PENSIONED

Doorman Thomas McCue, who has been employed by the city in the police department for twenty-six years and three months, resigned from the department last night, and he was placed on the police pension roll at an annual pension of $500, the same to be paid in monthly installments. Mr. McCue is the first member of the police department to go on the pension list, and this action was taken following the adoption of an ordinance several months ago.

Corporation Counsel Marsh instructed the members how to proceed in the matter, informing them that Mr. McCue must tender his resignation. The ordinance provides that members of the department may retire after twenty years' service.

Mr. McCue entered the police department nearly twenty-seven years ago as a patrolman, which position he held with honor until advancing age incapacitated him from active work on the street. He was then appointed doorman at headquarters and this position he has held until the present time.

Notice to Parents.

Mr. Lindsey Best will be in his office at the high school each morning during the rest of the week to interview those who wish to see him about school matters.

STEWART-KELLY NUPTIALS

Couple Wedded at Home of Bride by Rev. Dr. Charles E. Herring.

THREE HUNDRED PRESENT.

Numerous Gifts of Cut Glass and Silverware Are Received by the Couple—Will Reside in City.

Miss Eva Cossa Kelly, daughter of Mrs. Lillian Kelly, of Putnam avenue, was married last night to Leslie Raynor Stewart, of Lenox avenue, at the home of the bride, 1340 Putnam avenue. The wedding was attended by many friends and relatives of the couple from this city, New York, New Brunswick, Brooklyn and nearby towns. The decorations were in a scheme of green and white and were tastefully carried out with clematis, palms, ferns and other greens.

Promptly at 8 o'clock the strains of the Lohengrin wedding march were played by Clifford Braider, and the bridal party descended the stairs to meet the bridegroom, while Mrs. Chester Briggs sang the words of the march.

First came little Esther Neubrand, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Neubrand, of Tarrytown, who strewed astors from a well filled basket, in the path of the bride. She is slightly over two years old but took her part of flower girl with all the grace of an experienced social leader. Then followed the ushers, James Christopher, of Flushing, and Byard Naylor, of Bound Brook. The matron of honor, Mrs. Chester Briggs, of Cranford, was next in line; and she preceded the bride who was escorted by her grandfather, Henry C. Corsa, of this city. When Miss Susie Lowrie, of Dunellen, the bridesmaid, had descended, the party went forward to met the bridegroom and his best man, Charles M. Eoff, of Crescent avenue.

The bride met the bridegroom in front of a bower of hydrangias, clematis, palms and ferns in the parlor, where the double ring Episcopal ceremony was performed by the Rev. Charles E. Herring, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, of which the bride is a member. The bride was given in marriage by her grandfather, Henry Corsa.

Immediately after the ceremony the Mendelssohn wedding march was played by Clifford Braider while the guests crowded forward to offer their congratulations to the young couple. A collation by a local caterer was then served on the spacious piazza which was attractively decorated fro the occasion.

The bride wore a gown of white charmuse satin with Duchess lace trimming. She wore a tulle veil caught with a coronet of pearls and carried a shower bouquet of white bridal roses. The matron of honor was gowned in a white satin dress covered with a green chiffon tunic and trimmed with chiffon roses. She caried a shower bouquet of white asters. The bride's maid wore a gown of green crepe meteor satin with pearl and crystal trimming. She too carried a shower bouquet of white asters. The little flower girl wore a dress of white lingerie over green taffeta. She carried a basket of asters.

The gifts included cut glass, silverware and many other useful as well as beautiful articles. Among the gifts was a Japanese chocolate set from the class of 1908 of the city high school, of which the bride is the first member to get married. The bridegroom's gift to the bride was a LaValiere set with oriental pearls and a baroque pearl pendant. His gifts to the best man and ushers were wishbone stickpins set with pearl. The bride's gifts to her attendants were wishbone gold corsage pins; and the flower girl received a sterling silver bracelet.

Amid a shower of rice and confetti the young couple got into a large automobile which took them to Metuchen, where they boarded a train for Atlantic City, where they will spend a two weeks' honeymoon. On their return Mr. and Mrs. Stewart will go to housekeeping at 1219 Lenox avenue. Mr. Stewart holds a responsible position in the Corn Exchange Bank of New York.

The grandparents of both the bride and the bridegroom attended the wedding. They were Mr. and Mrs. John H. Stewart of New Brunswick and Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Corsa. Mr. Stewart is 86 years old. Another unusual circumstance was the fact that just a year ago today the matron of honor, Mrs. Chester Briggs, was married.

—Housekeepers should not lose the opportunity offered by Neuman Bros. tomorrow, when they will offer 200 baskets of fancy canning peaches, white and yellow; also Bartlett pears and fancy canning tomatoes.

ARTHUR MURPHY WANTS JUDGESHIP NOMINATION

Arthur Murphy, one of the aspirants for the position of city judge, to succeed William N. Runyon, is conducting a vigorous campaign and says he is receiving much encouragement from his many friends throughout the city.

Arthur Murphy.

Mr. Murphy is the youngest son of the late Rev. T. Logan Murphy, who was rector of the Holy Cross church for many years. He was born in this city and has always lived here. He attended the North Plainfield public schools and later attended the Franklin school and the city high school. After leaving the local schools, for five years he was employed by the Leather Manufacturers National Bank, of New York. At the expiration of that time he entered the New York Law School, completing the two year course. He has practiced law in this city since 1907, in which year he was elected a member of the Union County Republican executive committee. He is a brother-in-law of State Senator Ernest R. Ackerman, having married the latter's youngest sister, Miss Lydia Ackerman. He declares himself to be independent in Republican politics.

THREE BURGLARIES IN DUNELLEN LAST NIGHT

Three burglaries were committed in Dunellen last night. The Dunellen Lumber and Stone Co., the Dunellen Coal and Supply Co., and Clarence T. Voorhees' butcher shop were the places entered, and in each case the thieves were successful, but the booty was trifling.

At the Dunellen Lumber and Stone Company's office, the thieves got $1.50 in postage stamps and petty cash. Only a few cents was secured from the Dunellen Coal and Supply Company, this amount being taken from the cash drawer. At Clarence Voorhees' butcher shop the burglars got only 55 cents from the cash register.

In each case, entrance was gained by cutting a hole in a window and removing the glass. Marshal Benson believes that the jobs were done by novices, possibly that the robbers are residents in the vicinity of the borough.

On Monday night the home of William Clum, the architect, on Lincoln avenue, was entered in the same manner as the places entered last night.

Ring as a Memorial.

Mrs. Richard Gamble, of 420 Orchard place, who recently passed a Civil Service examination for the position of departmental clerk at Washington, has been presented with a valuable ring by Miss Frances A. Cowles, of New York, in memory of her sister, Helen, who died the latter part of July. Mrs. Gamble values the ring highly from its association with her friend, who wore it almost constantly during the thirty-three years of their friendship, as well as for its beauty and intrinsic value. The late Judge Walter S. Cowles, father of the Misses Cowles, was Mrs. Gamble's guardian for many years.

Carnival at New Market.

The residents of New Market held a carnival day on Monday and the town was a gay one from morning until sundown. The program of the day included a canoe regatta on the lake, speech making by some of the prominent citizens, and a large concert by a ten piece band. Dancing was enjoyed at the pavillion near the lake during the evening. The affair was held under the auspices of the Lakeside Social Club.

AMONG OUR NEIGHBORS

WESTFIELD.

While unloading some heavy telephone poles from a freight car in the freight yard Monday, the derrick pole broke and knocked two of the men off the car, one of whom narrowly escaped being crushed under the pole. Neither of the men, both Italians, was hurt beyond slight cuts and bruises.

On Saturday of this week the telephone system in the town will be changed from single battery system to the central battery system, which will do away with turning the crank to make a call. The new exchange is almost ready for occupancy.

Inspector Carney, of the Board of Health, has reported to the board that almost every house on Spring street is in an unsanitary condition owing to neglect to connect with the sewer or in allowing sewage to run on the ground.

Principal J. J. Savitz, of the Westfield schools, has issued a request that all High School pupils call at the principal's office before the opening day of school and get an enrollment blank.

The Board of Health is looking after two cases of typhoid fever in town, but in both cases the disease was not contracted here.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

At one o'clock Monday afternoon the married and single men of the borough engaged in a terrific struggle on the diamond in which the happy men came off victorious by the score of 12-1. This result is not authentic but it is the closest to a correct score that could be obtained up to the hour of going to press. Score or no score, the game was an exciting one and kept the fans amused and on the jump until the big show of the afternoon came on the program. There has been no reason given out as yet why the married men were defeated but every excuse has been issued except the old umpire story—and yet the name of the official has not been told.

The teams lined up as follows: Single men—R. J. Fisher, p and ss; Fred Kirschner, ss and p; Earl Ising, c; George Apgar, 1b; Byard Naylor, 2b; Peter Sanford, cf; Morgan Curl, lf; John Logan, 3b; Clarence Voorhees, rf. Married men—Hamley and Hurlick, p; Rinehart and Seery, c; J. N. Apgar, 1b; Henry Garretson, 2b; John Kenney, 3b; Arthur Vail, rf; Theodore Apgar, lf; John Fenner, ss; George Schenck, cf.

Although the borough fans were disappointed on Saturday, when the rain prevented the deciding of the championship between the Dunellen and Plainfield teams, they were more than delighted at the baseball on the Madison avenue grounds Monday. The borough boys played great ball against both the All Brunswicks and the strong Caldwell A. C., winning in each case. The second game was more of a walkover than anything else, for the Caldwell team was unable to get more than three scattered hits off Smiling Jimmie's delivery. McCroskey twirled in great shape in the morning contest but was hit more freely than the Dunellen stand-by. There was a large attendance at both games.

Miss Meta Pennock, of Madison avenue, leaves September 8 to take up a position as teacher in the school at Burbank, N. Y. Miss Pennock was graduated from the Plainfield High School last June, being the valedictorian of her class.

New Market was in gay attire Labor Day. The little village celebrated a carnival and old home day. A regatta on the lake, and dancing were the faetures of the day's entertainment.

Frank O. Nelson, of New Market, has sold his milk route to Nelson Giles, of the borough.

Miss Nellie Dodwell, of Jackson avenue, is enjoying a month's visit in Little Falls

To escape arrest on a charge of wife beating, William Dilts took refuge in Assistant Postmaster Marter's stable at Beverly and was found asleep at the feet of a horse Monday morning. He fled ~~on~~ being awakened and has eluded capture.

Hospital physicians now believe they can save the life of twelve-year-old Joseph Buzzella, of Atlantic City, who was badly injured Sunday night by the explosion of a gas tank which he was using to inflate toy balloons. Although his skull is badly torn, the doctors think he will pull through safely.

Death came suddenly to Mathew Rupert, sixty-five years old, one of the best known barbers of Atlantic City, and a former Philadelphia resident. Seized with racking pains about the heart while shaving a customer, Rupert stepped into the rear room of the establishment and dropped unconscious to the floor. He was dead before other employes reached his side. He leaves a widow.

Joseph Dashun, living at 854 Main street, Paterson, and employed as a machinist when he works, was placed under arrest by Officer Robert Walker Monday night, because he was acting in a strange manner. He had made several attempts to commit suicide by throwing himself under trains on the Newark branch crossing of the Erie Railroad. The man is sixty years old and acted as though slightly demented.

The big automobile in which Samuel Burguist, of Brooklyn, started out on a run to Gettysburg, Pa., Sunday morning and which collapsed at Burlington on the Pennsylvania Railroad tracks in front of an express did not get very near the wrecked auto, as he and his little daughter ran down the tracks after their machine had collapsed, and by frantic waving succeeded in stopping the train at a safe distance away.

In Jersey City more than 10,000 members of labor unions were reviewed by Mayor Wittpenn and other city officials Monday. Every union in Hudson county was represented. William J. Doherty, of the Brotherhood of Painters, was grand marshal. The turnout included plasterers, tile layers, engineers, asbestos workers, marble workers, plumbers, steam-fitters, sheet metal workers, electricians, lathers, painters, ironworkers, cement workers, laborers and carpenters. There was a separate parade of teamsters, more than 300 trucks and wagons being in line.

Little, But Oh My!

How important! There are plenty of low-priced Typewriter oils, but they are really dear at any price. Like Col. Sellers' Eye Water, the more you use the more you have to use. The carriage sticks—the wheels won't go round, the operator gets cross and work is delayed. Don't flood your machine with oil, only a very little is needed—but it must be the right kind. The LENOX kind absolutely will not gum, will make your machine run smooth and keep your temper unruffled—try it and be convinced—Price 50 cents a bottle sent by mail anywhere upon receipt of price.

KILLS HIS WIFE; THEN TRIES SUICIDE

After purchasing a revolver and six cartridges at David Buist's hardware store in Bernardsville about 8 o'clock yesterday morning, Julius Toth murdered his wife Rose, and shot himself in the breast. He is not expected to live.

The scene of the tragedy was in the kitchen of William Hegeman's home in New street, where Mrs. Toth was employed as a washerwoman. Toth came to the door and ordered his wife to come home. It is said she attempted to keep him outside but could not. After a few words Toth fired a shot and Mrs. Toth sank to the floor, seizing Mrs. Hegeman, who had just telephoned, after Mrs. Toth beckoned to the 'phone.

Finding that she could do nothing Mrs. Hegeman fled. Miss Nellie Hegeman and John Berrell, who also were in the room, rushed out. After this, it is thought, four bullets were fired.

When Constable Angelo arrived Toth was found lying over his wife and, it is said, was kissing her.

Dr. F. C. Sutphin was summoned and found two bullets had lodged in Mrs. Toth and one in the murderer's breast. The other two were fired wildly, striking about a foot apart near the sink. Mrs. Toth's body was left in the kitchen, and Toth was taken to Liddy's store to await the arrival of the coroner. It is reported that the couple had separated a short time ago.

Pianos & Player-Pianos

MATHUSHEK & SON PLAYER-PIANO is the most advanced instrument of its type on the market today, and in its capacity for individual musical expression and for the artistic rendition of music, whether popular or classic, it cannot be surpassed, for it places the control of tempo and phrasing entirely in the hands of the performer, enabling him to give expression to his moods and emotions quite as if he were playing the piano manually.

Our experts have spent a number of years in producing this instrument, and every detail has been carefully thought out and perfected so that it may, without exaggeration, be described as the most perfect Player-Piano Mechanism in the world.

Along the edges of each plate, and forming an integral part of it, are placed a series of lugs, located approximately nine inches apart, and so spaced that when the edges of two plates having been ground to true planes are placed together, the lugs upon one plate will register with the corresponding lugs of the other. These lugs are approximately four inches in width, and of the same thickness.

When the vault is ready to be assembled steel rings or links are heated red hot and when in the expanded condition, resulting from this treatment, are driven over and around each pair of lugs. These links are two inches in thickness, showing in cross section, therefore, approximately eight square inches of metal, having a tensible strength of about 90,000 pounds to the square inch. The total holding power of each of the links, therefore, is in excess of 720,000 pounds, and this strength is available to hold the adjoining lugs together.

The door of a Manganese steel vault consists of a single solid casting twelve or more inches thick on the edge or jamb. The door of this type of vault differs from the laminated vault door, in that the edge or jamb of the door is pierced by the necessary apertures to permit the use of the locking bolts. In other words, the door is its own bolt frame while in the other types of door the bolt frame is screwed to the back of the door. A perfect fit is accomplished by first grinding the door and the door opening to their approximate size, after which the door frame is laid upon its back, the door placed in position, and having been painted with a mixture of emery and oil, is rotated by powerful machinery until it gradually grinds its way into its permanent seat in the same manner in which a metal valve is manufactured. A slight depression will be noted in the circular door opening. Into this groove the bolts contained within the door project when the door is locked. The door bolts are controlled by combination and time locks, as in the case of the laminated vault. It will be seen how diametrically opposed to the laminated or plate construction is the solid form of vault.

Ten years ago Manganese steel, and vaults composed of it, were practically unknown. In a comparatively short time since their introduction, however, they have come to be recognized as the highest type of burglar-proof work. The State Trust Company vault is the only Manganese steel vault in Plainfield.

New Bed Covers.

The covers are made long enough to hang over the bed, almost to the floor, all round, and are drawn up over the bolster roll. Another good looking cover is in cream-colored embroidered net over a figured damask in all-over pattern. The toning is a soft ecru. This, too, is brought over the roll that is used by day.

IRISH POINT LACE

Good lace is so expensive that those who have it in their possession are anxious to keep it in good condition, for real lace cannot be bought every day. With care even lace that receives daily wear should last a lifetime, while the stronger kind may be passed on to another generation.

Much of the Irish point that is so much in vogue at present have been unearthed from boxes long laid by, the Dutch collars and rabats especially.

The average Irish lace is very strong, but the lighter baby Irish requires gentle treatment if it is to last a long time. The thread used is so fine that it is apt to snap at any time, and when a broken thread is discovered it should not be allowed to go further befre being repaired. Any amateur sewer can do the mending at this stage, but if the stitches are allowed to run then the lace must be sent to a professional.

A noted lacemaker says that the thread she uses for repairing Irish crochet is just the ordinary sewing cotton. No. 60 is a good size, but the very finest lace will probably take a higher number still. The torn lace is basted upon a foundation that is sold for the purpose, though this woman frankly admits that she finds several thicknesses of newspaper basted together make the very best kind of foundation and much easier to handle than the bought article.

Automobile Afire.

The fire department was summoned at 3:15 o'clock this afternoon to extinguish a blaze on somebody's automobile which took fire in front of the Martin garage. The firemen's services were not required.

FLANAGAN ADDRESSES THE RAHWAY VOTERS

Rahway gave Judge William N. Runyon, candidate for the Republican congressional nomination, a great ovation last night when he addressed its voters at the auditorium in that city. Former County Attorney C. B. Ward acted as chairman and other representative citizens on the platform were William H. Randolph, W. H. Madison, H. Gore Kelly, Peter Tillman and Silas K. Combs. The Rahway fife and drum corps helped to enliven the occasion.

For fully an hour the Judge addressed the voters, and in his usual forceful and eloquent manner discussed the political issues. He devoted some time to the consideration of the question, and explained just what the Republican party has done and intends to do to conserve the natural resources of the country. He paid a tribute to President Taft, and declared that if nominated and elected to Congress he would do his share in helping the President carry out the pledges of the party and advance the interests of the country. He stated that he supported the platform of the last National convention and for the fulfillment of all the pledges and obligations therein contained. Frequently during his discourse the judge was interrupted by applause.

Former Assemblyman Crowther, of Perth Amboy, had been announced to speak, but at the last moment he sent a telegram saying that he would be prevented from doing so by sudden illness in his family.

Today, Judge Runyon is touring through Morris county. He plans to devote his entire time during the remaining days of the primary campaign to meeting the voters in the three counties.

The first three days of next week, "The Man on the Box" will be the offering. The concluding performance of "The Three of Us" will be given this afternoon and evening.

PAPERING THE HOUSE

When a Weak Play Appears In a New York Theater.

PROPPED BY FREE TICKETS.

The Judicious Distribution of "Complimentaries" by the Manager Secures Well Dressed Audiences and Saves the Appearance of a "Frost."

Long before the curtain goes down at the end of a new production the manager has decided, nine times in ten, whether he has a success or not. But he does not mean to be caught napping in either event. If he believes the play is a "frost" or even a semi-success the house for the next few nights must bear every outward evidence of prosperity.

In other words, he must "buck the line" of adverse criticism by "papering the house." For a week at least he must make a "front" in the orchestra chairs, no matter if there is desolation in the box office. Let him make the public believe the new piece has attracted a large number of patrons for six or eight performances and there is a chance of enough business to prop up a forced run of a few weeks, which may help things on the road. This means that "paper" or free tickets must be judiciously distributed.

Every manager of a theater has a large circle of friends. This may be due partly to his possession of a genial personality, but undoubtedly the business he is in has in itself an attraction for many. A majority of these people will accept passes when they are offered; some are not above asking for them, while still others—but these are rare—will buy tickets when complimentaries are not tendered.

When the manager has a play that is in danger of going to pieces for lack of patronage he sends tickets to all these friends of his and whenever possible obtains a promise that they will be used by the persons to whom he gives them. It is not difficult to extract such a pledge. Being on terms of more or less intimacy with the manager, the favored ones know he will be likely to see them in the theater or if they are not there that he will take note of those who do not use the tickets. He keeps a record of the seat numbers opposite the names of those who should occupy those particular chairs and can tell at once when his hospitality has been abused.

Another class which sees many plays in New York city gratis is to be found in department stores. Nearly every director of a theatrical company—as distinct from a theater manager—is on cordial terms with the heads of departments in large retail mercantile establishments. Each of these heads will accept from six to a dozen pairs of tickets occasionally to distribute among his subordinates.

Often it is possible to get rid of 200 tickets or more in a day in this way, and when this is repeated in four or five stores the manager is sure of the attendance of an appreciable number of well dressed young women in the newest millinery and style of coiffure, each with a respectably attired cavalier and all on their best behavior. These people may not be ultra fashionable, but they will not disgrace their environment.

Unless the theatrical man is acquainted with the department heads, however, it is not an easy matter to give away tickets in such an establishment. The average clerk in a large store, especially of the feminine gender, is suspicious. She does not understand such open handed generosity, and there must be a lot of explanation to convince her that in offering something for nothing the manager has not some sinister design. As for the male clerks, if he gives them any directly they are sure to tell every one what a pull they have with the manager and pester him for tickets ever afterward, particularly when he has a success, with the free list absolutely suspended.

It is far less of an undertaking to buy a hundred dollars' worth of low priced goods than to make a present of two tickets apiece to a dozen persons behind the counter. The telephone girls, stenographers and manicurists look askance at free tickets from a stranger, although when their confidence is won they will generally accept them with due gratitude.—Theater Magazine.

Purdie's Panacea.

Tom Purdie, an old manservant in Sir Walter Scott's household, used to talk of the famous "Waverley Novels" as "our books" and said that the reading of them was the greatest comfort to him.

"Whenever I am off my sleep," he confided to James Skene, the author of "Memories of Sir Walter Scott," "I have only to take one of the novels, and before I have read two pages it is sure to set me asleep."

"Dear me, no. I have all I can do in taking care of his present and worrying about his future."—Boston Herald

Domestic Note.

"I've noticed one thing."

"And what is that?"

"When one gets loaded it's usually his wife who explodes."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

PERSIAN WEAVERS.

The Way the Carpets Are Made by the Hand Workers.

In describing Persian industries Mrs. Hume Griffith, in "Behind the Veil in Persia and Turkish Arabia," tells how the beautiful carpets of that country are made, of course without machinery of any kind. The warp is stretched on a loom, which is merely a frame. The woof consists of short threads woven and knotted by hand without the aid of a shuttle. When a row is finished it is pressed tightly to the rest of the web by means of a comb inserted into the warp.

"The weaver does not see the pattern as he works, for he sits with the reverse side of the web toward him. The looms are generally kept in an underground vaulted room, often with water running through the center. At each loom three or four workers sit, according to the size of the carpet. Sometimes the workers consist of one man and two children, and occasionally the owner uses boys and girls only for the weaving.

"I sat on the high stool by the side of a tiny girl, whose fingers were working away so fast I could hardly follow her movements. The overseer was walking up and down the room calling out instructions to the workers. To me it sounded a horrible, incoherent jumble, but the children seemed to understand it perfectly.

"The overseer held in his hand a paper, from which he was apparently reading out instructions. It was something like this:

"'To No. 1, three blue threads, one white, two green; No. 2, four yellow, one white,' and so on, each child repeating after the 'master' the instructions given. As it was all said in a high pitched monotone the result was confusing and deafening. But there the little weavers sit, day in, day out, week after week, in this dark, gloomy cellar, kept hard at it by the overseer."

WONDERS OF A WATCH.

Its Marvelous Mechanism and the Power That Moves It.

We hear much from time to time of the wonders of this or that complicated and intricate machine, but there are few pieces of machinery more marvelous than that of the common watch.

A watch, it may be stated as a general proposition, is the smallest, most delicate instrument of the same number of parts that has ever been devised. About 175 different pieces of material enter into its construction, and upward of 2,400 separate operations are comprised in its manufacture.

Certain of the facts connected with its performance are well nigh incredible when considered as a whole. A blacksmith strikes several hundred blows on his anvil in a day and, as a matter of course, is glad when Sunday comes, but the roller jewel of a watch makes every day—and day after day—432,000 impacts against the fork, or 157,680,000 blows during the course of a year, without stop or rest—some 3,153,600,000 blows during the space of twenty years, the period for which a watch is usually guaranteed to keep good time.

But the wonder of it does not cease here. It has been calculated that the power that moves the watch is equivalent to only four times the force used in a flea's jump. The watch power is therefore what might be termed the equivalent of a four flea-power. One horsepower would suffice to operate 270,000,000 watches.

Furthermore, the balance wheel of a watch is moved by this four flea-power 1 43-100 inches with each vibration, or 3.558¾ miles continuously in one year.

Not much oil is required to lubricate the little machine on its 3,500 mile run. It takes only one-tenth of a drop to oil the entire machinery for a year's service.—Harper's Weekly.

Duck by Duck.

An old farmer had brought twenty ducks to the market to sell and, after the usual amount of haggling inseparable from a bargain of that description, managed to dispose of the lot to a dealer.

"That's 30 shillings I have to give you," said the dealer as he proceeded to count it out.

But the old chap's strong point was not arithmetic, and he was not satisfied with this mode of payment.

"Noa, noa!" he exclaimed. "Ye bought them at wan an' six apiece, an' ye'll jist pay for them duck by duck."

And "duck by duck" it had to be.—London Scraps.

How It Is Done.

Returning from school the other afternoon, a little girl proudly informed her mother that she had learned to "punchtate."

"Well, dear," said her mother, "and how is it done?"

"You see, mother," explained the child, "when you write 'Hark!' you put a hatpin after it, and when you ask a question you put a buttonhook!"

In Doubt.

Visitor—So your boy is in college, is he, Mr. Corntossle? Farmer—I can't say exactly. He's in ther ball nine, an' in ther rowin' crew, an' in ther jimnayzeeum, an' in ther domytory, but whether he's ever in ther college is more'n I kin find out by his letters. —Harper's Bazar.

Time's Changes.

Father (meditating on time's changes)—Ah, yes, the fashion of this world passeth away! Daughter—Indeed it does, papa. I shall want a new hat next week.

Employment and hardships prevent melancholy.—Johnson.

Lanier of the Cavalry

Or, A Week's Arrest

By GENERAL CHARLES KING,

Author of "The Colonel's Daughter," "Foes In Ambush," Etc.

Copyright, 1909, by J. B. Lippincott Company

But at the moment Mrs. Sumter was seen coming forth from the dressing room. Half a dozen women were upon her at once with sympathetic inquiries. She came straightway to Mrs. Button.

"You will forgive my girls for not saying good night," she cordially spoke. "Miriam has been quite upset by a letter from home, and this little episode this evening, which she cannot understand as we do, has so unstrung her that Mrs. Foster offered to send them over home in her sleigh. The side door had been barred, but Mr. Horton pried it open for them, so they had no need to come this way and face everybody—and explain."

"You know how sorry I am," said Mrs. Button. "Of course they are excusable for leaving as they did. Why, where are the others going?"

The music had suddenly stopped. Some one among the women, with startled eyes and paling face, sprang up saying, "It's fire." Almost at the same instant the colonel and Scott reached the veranda without. A dozen officers were there, intent and listening. "I tell you I heard it plainly," said one of their number, "and the Foster sleigh isn't back."

"Heard what, sir?" demanded the colonel. "What's the trouble?"

There presently appeared round the corner of the building the sergeant of the guard, and with him a burly soldier, bleeding at the nose. One hand covered a damaged eye; with the other he saluted Captain Snaffle.

"Sir, I have to report Trooper Rawdon assaulting a noncommissioned officer."

Major Scott gave tongue.

"Trooper Rawdon!" cried he. "Why, he now has a month's furlough from General Crook. He's the best man of the escort."

"Refused to obey my orders to go to his quarters, sir, and assaulted me when I tried to enforce 'em. Sergeant Blunt says he won't confine him unless Captain Snaffle orders it."

"One moment, sergeant," interposed Colonel Button. "Has any disturbance—any cry for help—been heard at the guardhouse, or was this the explanation?"

"No. 5, sir, hasn't called off half past leven."

"No. 5!" cried two or three men at the instant, and without a word Captain Sumter hurried away.

"No. 5!" repeated the colonel. "That's just back of Sumter's quarters."

Afar across the glistening level a few lights glimmered faintly in the row of officers' quarters, but there was no sign of moving humanity. Only the hurrying form of Captain Sumter could be seen halfway across the parade. The Fosters' sleigh was nowhere in sight. Sumter's quarters were about the middle of the row, Lanier's were at the eastward end. All men stood waiting, watching. Then on a sudden two or three black forms darted from the shadow of the middle quarters. One came running out across the parade, hardly slackened speed at the hail of Captain Sumter, pointed back with one hand, shouted something that doubled Sumter's pace.

It was Conroy, corporal of the guard. "The adjutant orders me to report No. 5 sick, sir," he panted. "I found him all doubled up in the coal shed. They got the steward over from the hospital, but they want the sergeant and some of the guard to search the back buildings."

"Who wants them?" demanded the colonel.

"The adjutant, sir. Lieutenant Blake's with him. There has been some prowlers, and the young ladies were frightened."

"One moment," interposed the colonel. "Sergeant of the guard, take four of your men and report to Captain Sumter or to the adjutant. Now, corporal, when was this cry heard?"

"Was the officer of the guard over there?"

"Not the—new one, sir, but"— The corporal suddenly stopped.

"But what?" demanded the colonel. "Do you mean that Lieutenant Lanier was there—out of his quarters?"

"Out of his head if he was," growled the paymaster, who loved him well and was deeply concerned over his trouble.

"I—I didn't see him, sir," answered the young soldier, but in manner so confused that it simply added to the commander's suspicion.

"Come with me, Horton," said the colonel to his quartermaster, and turned back for his cap and overcoat. Then once again the voice of the aggrieved and importunate sergeant was heard, this time with convincing appeal.

"I beg the colonel's pardon, but if he wants to get the truth as to this night's business it would be well to arrest Trooper Rawdon or he'll be off for good and all."

"Find him, then, sergeant of the guard, and have it done," said Button.

CHAPTER II.

THAT ended the dance, but not the excitement. Not yet midnight, and in the space of less than one hour all Fort Cushing had been stirred by the news. A most popular and prominent young officer had been placed in close arrest. A prominent, if not most popular, sergeant had been pummeled. An alarming scene of some kind had occurred at the quarters of Captain Sumter. Mrs. Sumter had hurried away the minute she learned that her husband had gone. The colonel, sternly silent, led his wife to their door and there left her, saying he had summoned certain officers to join him at once, and she, who ruled him in all matters domestic almost as she managed the children, knew well that when roused he would brook no interference in matters [illegible], and Bob Lanier, a prime favorite of hers, had in some way managed to fall under the ban of his extreme displeasure.

At the office were presently assembled the colonel, the adjutant, the quartermaster, the post surgeon, and to them came Paymaster Scott. At the "store" were gathered half the commissioned officers. At Sumter's there kept coming and going a succession of sympathetic callers, who left even more mystified than when they arrived. Miriam had had a fright in the dark on their return home and screamed. No! Sumter thought Mrs. Sumter would need no help, yet he was so much obliged to the several who asked if they couldn't "do something."

Another house was virtually closed to question. To the disappointment of many and the disapprobation of a few, Bob Lanier had closeted himself with his classmate and most intimate friend, "Dad" Ennis; then, after a brief colloquy with Barker, the adjutant had caused a big card to be tacked on his door whereon was crayoned in bold black letters "Busy." But at quarter past 12 the assistant surgeon, Dr. Schuchardt, called, as was known, for the second time and entered without ceremony. When the officer of the day came tramping along the board walk at 12:30 and turned in at the gate he struck the panel with the hilt of his saber. Ennis came to the door, but came with gloomy brow.

"I am ordered by Colonel Button to ask certain questions of Lieutenant Lanier," said the official.

"How's that, doc?" called Ennis over his massive shoulder. "Can your patient see the officer of the day?"

"Not yet, with my consent," came the stout answer.

"Shout your questions, captain," sang out the patient, with much too little humility of manner, yet Lanier knew Curbit well and knew his mission to be unwelcome.

"Is Trooper Rawdop in hiding anywhere about your quarters?"

"He is not, if I know it."

"Have you seen him—tonight?"

An instant's pause then, "I don't know whether I have or not."

"You don't know?" exclaimed Curbit, puzzled and beginning to bristle.

"I don't know," repeated Lanier.

"Suppose the colonel tells me to explain that," began Curbit, but Dr Schuchardt set his foot down summarily.

"Here," said he, "this thing's got to stop. Lanier's in a highly nervous and excited state. He doesn't know whom he has seen since he got home in arrest."

"Well, the old man wants to see that young Rawdon forthwith, for many people believe he's skipped."

Curbit lowered his voice. "That's exactly the trouble, doctor. Go to the back of the quarters and see for yourself. His trail starts and ends here."

In all its history Fort Cushing had never known such a day of bewilderment as that which followed. Guard mounting was held as usual at 8 a. m. and Colonel Button, awaiting in his office the coming of the old and the new officers of the day, directed his adjutant to drop his own work at their entrance and give attention to what took place.

All eyes were on the two burly captains who entered at 8:30, fur capped fur gloved, in huge overcoats and arctics. The wind had begun to whine and stir.

"Blizzard coming," said Scott as he glanced at the sullen skies.

"I report as old officer of the day, sir," said Curbit, with brief salute, tendering the guard report book.

The colonel went straight to business.

"No sign of Trooper Rawdon?"

"No, sir."

"His horse and kit all right?"

"All right, sir."

"Police notified to watch all trains—and stages?"

"Yes, sir."

There was impressive silence in the office.

Eight men had gone with Sergeant Stowell as escort to the paymaster when, nearly four weeks earlier, he had set forth on his trip. Then the little iron safe was full of money. Seven men had come back with him, when, as the safe was well nigh empty, the paymaster said he hardly needed an escort. Of the eight who started, four were "casuals" who belonged to companies stationed at Fort Frayne, well up in the Indian country, and there they remained when the duty was over. Of the seven who came with Stowell, three belonged at Fort Frayne, a corporal and two men of Captain Raymond's troop, and they came fortified with the orders of their post commander, a copy of which was now in Barker's hands.

"What I don't understand," said the colonel, whirling his chair to the right about and addressing the paymaster, "is how or why those men should be down here."

"It seems simple," answered Scott placidly, he being entirely independent of the post commander. "From Frayne I had to go to the cantonments up along the Big Horn, and we doubled the size of the escort accordingly. When we got back there these three were permitted to come all the way, whether to buy Christmas things for the Frayne folk or for affairs of their own I didn't inquire."

"To whom did you assign them for rations and quarters?" demanded the colonel of Barker.

"Captain Snaffle, sir, C troop."

"Are they there—the others, at least?"

"Corporal Watts and Trooper Ames are there, sir. Trooper Rawdon, as you know, is not. He has not been seen about the quarters since some time last evening."

Again a pause. Then presently, "You arrested Kelly, I see, the man who was on No. 5."

"Yes, sir. Both Dr. Schuchardt and the steward said his sickness was due to drink. I believe he was doped."

"That he could get whisky anywhere along back of the officers' quarters," said the colonel reflectively as well as reflecting, "is not improbable. That it should have been doped, judging from the way one or two have misbehaved, is not impossible. The usual orders for the present, captain," said he to the new incumbent. "And you are relieved, Captain Curbit," to the old. "But I shall need to see you later, so do not leave the post."

"The man that leaves the post this day," said Major Scott, with a squint through the upper and unincumbered panes of the nearest window, "may need a seven days' leave."

"And that, colonel," said a quiet voice at the commander's elbow, "is what I applied for earlier. Pardon me, sir, but I need to know your decision."

It was Captain Sumter who spoke, and the colonel flushed promptly at sound of his voice.

Fifty-Second Anniversary Celebration and Sale

Hahne & Co. Store as a Gatherer of Goods

1858-1910

The importance of the Hahne & Co. Store as a gatherer of merchandise ought, at this time, to be manifested that the people of Newark and vicinity may fully appreciate the magnitude of our task. As many as twelve carloads of goods a day are taken into our big receiving-rooms, immediately unpacked, priced and displayed for selling, or stored away for future use. Almost every week-day of the year our own drays haul in the neighborhood of thirty-six loads a day from the freight depots, averaging about five loads to a car. Every day the express companies deliver to us no less than five great truck loads, besides the big automobile truck that comes laden from New York every morning.

Frequently we receive five carloads of furniture in a day. Two carloads of sugar or flour are common shipments. At the present moment four carloads of crockery, in one shipment, are on the way.

We instance these facts to give smaller merchants and the general public some idea of the immensity of this business.

Permanent resident buyers in foreign cities, those we send direct from here to Europe, those importers whose interests are our own, search every nook and corner of the globe for new, novel and beautiful things for us, and the big corps of managing buyers who cover the United States in their quest for the best product of the mills, factories and potteries, gather for Hahne & Co. and its allied stores millions of dollars' worth of merchandise annually, bringing the arts and fashions of the world to the doors of the people of this vicinity, establishing here a veritable museum, presenting the products of the people of every clime and country, using a quantity of manufactured products which, in the making, would give employment to many thousands of work people in field and factory, adding materially to the prosperity of the country at large, and, by making Newark an important base of distribution, adding to the prosperity of New Jersey's imperial city—"The City of Industry."

"GRANDMA" CELEBRATES HER HUNDREDTH BIRTHDAY

Hale and hearty and apparently enjoying the best of health, Mrs. Maria Whitenack, best known among her intimate friends and neighbors as "Grandma" Whitenack, is today celebrating the one hundredth anniversary of her birthday at her home in East Millstone. She has many friends here who will be interested in learning of the important event in Mrs. Whitenack's life; also that she is enjoying practically all of her faculties.

Mrs. Whitenack was born and always lived at East Millstone. She is one of the quaint women of 1812, and never forsook the good old customs for the new fangled ones of the twentieth century. Always regular in all her habits, she is today well preserved. She has been a faithful and consistent member of the Reformed church at East Millstone and has throughout the many years been a familiar figure at the services. Mrs. Whitenack has always continued the quaint style of dress so well known in the early days, even to the little bonnet and the hoop-skirt. She has survived three husbands and many children. There is one son living, Thomas Cooper, with whom Mrs. Whitenack makes her home.

Early in the coming winter, Mrs. George Schomp, of West Millstone, who is also well known here, will celebrate the one hundredth anniversary of her birthday. She, too, is a native of Millstone, where she has always lived.

LEAVE PORTO RICO TO WED IN SOMERVILLE.

To be wedded in Somerville next month Miss A. W. Matthews, of that place, who went to San Juan, Porto Rico, in June to become principal of the summer school of the University of Porto Rico, arrived by steamer Monday. She was accompanied by E. W. Judd, formerly of Somerville, who will be the bridegroom. After the wedding they will return to Porto Rico to spend their honeymoon.

Mr. Judd has been in San Juan for the last three years as legal representative of the Fajardo Sugar Company. He had made plans to return to this country this fall for a brief vacation. Then he met Miss Matthews, whereupon he decided that his vacation trip might prove useful in other ways. Miss Matthews saw the wisdom of this plan and so they came North together.

Planning for a Fair.

The ways and means committee of Hope chapel will hold a meeting at the chapel, tonight, with all the heads of various committees in charge of the Industrial Fair to be held later. It is expected that all the plans for the fair will be discussed, after which there will be a social and refreshments.

STORM SKY SCINTILLATED AT TWILIGHT YESTERDAY

What was said to have been the most peculiar and most beautiful terrestrial exhibition of natural pyrotechnics ever seen in this part of New Jersey took place last evening between 6 o'clock and 7. The sky, already overcast with fast approaching thunder clouds, suddenly assumed a yellow tint, changing shortly afterwards to an indescribable blue and finally turning to a green, only found on the printed post cards or other colored matter issued from the most effete printing establishments.

The shower which followed the sudden sky changes drenched the streets and the people, while the variegated forks of lightning cavorted through the heavens as though bent on destruction. So far as has been learned, no particular damage was done by the storm, which relieved the awful heat preceding it, but the display of lightning kept hundreds of people fascinated for nearly an hour. The more timid kept behind closed windows, but the venturesome enjoyed a spectacle which will remain in their memories for days to come.

The storm effected a welcome change in the temperature, as well as in the atmosphere, and many were thankful for the change.

PLAINFIELD PASTOR AT A "HOMECOMING" SERVICE.

"Homecoming Sunday" was celebrated at the First Reformed church, Grandville, Mich., on Sunday, August 22, and Rev. John Y. Broek, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, and his brother, Rev. Albertus T. Broek, of Newark, were privileged to attend the services. It was a notable event because six of the sons of the church attended the afternoon service, including Pastors Broek. The sermon was preached by Rev. Dr. John H. Karsten, of Holland, Mich.

The evening service was conducted by the four young men whom the Grandville church has sent forth into the ministry in the last eleven years. Rev. Albertus T. Broek presided at the service and an appropriate Scripture lesson was read by Rev. John Y. Broek and a prayer was offered by Rev. Benjamin J. Bush. The sermon was preached by Rev. Edward Kilder from the text, Cor. 1:28, "Whom We Preach," and was a beautiful and strong presentation of the Christ.

In a letter to Plainfield friends, Rev. Mr. Broek states that he preached in the First Reformed church, at Milwaukee, Wis., on August 28 and was most cordially received.

DIRECT TAXATION SUGGESTED BY HOSPITAL GOVERNORS.

The Board of Governors of Muhlenberg Hospital, through William C. Kinney, its president, communicated with the Common Council, at the September meeting last night, requesting that a resolution be adopted whereby the question of taxing the people for the maintainence of the institution be submitted to the people at the coming election, the amount so voted to be used for the care of indigent patients.

The Common Council has heretofore been permitted to appropriate $1,000 a year for the care of these people, but the Board of Governors are anxious to secure a larger sum toward the maintainence of the institution and therefore have asked the Council to submit the question to a vote of the people, according to law.

The matter was referred to the finance committee and will be taken up at a future meeting.

YOUNG NEGRO THIEF SENT TO REFORMATORY

William Connett, colored, who was caught at Honeyman Bros.' auto-supply store on Madison avenue, last week, by Patrolman Daniel McDonald, while in the act of stealing supplies, was sent to the Rahway Reformatory today by Judge Atwater. Connett, after his arrest, confessed to entering Cadmus Bros.' drug store three times, as well as a half-dozen other burglaries.

Lewis Kearns, who was arrested on August 16, on a charge of stealing furniture belonging to Mrs. Joseph E. Cheever, of Park avenue, was arraigned before Judge Atwater in the Union county court today, and entered a plea of not guilty. His trial was set for Wednesday, Sept. 14. The furniture which it is alleged Kearns took and sold about the city was valued at $50. He contends that Mrs. Cheever gave the furniture to him, while she denies the assertion.

G. W. V. MOY'S PLATFORM

"Progressive" Mayoralty Candidate Tells where He Stands on Public Matters.

HE OPPOSES THE FEE SYSTEM.

Favors "M. O." and Wants Laws Enforced Without Fear or Favor

Takes Stand on Lights Question.

As a candidate for the Republican mayoralty nomination, George W. V. Moy, today issued a statement in the nature of a declaration of principles.

George W. V. Moy, Candidate for Mayor.

He tells where he stands on the municipal questions of prime importance to the taxpayers and what policies of government he favors.

The statement follows:

"As a candidate for the office of Mayor, it is very proper that I state my views along certain lines relating particularly to matters of local interest, in order that no one shall be misled in voting for or against me.

"I am and have always been a Republican. I am not a standpatter and am not controlled by 'boss' or 'machine.'

"I believe that public service means to give freely the best service you can for the benefit of the people who trust public business in your hands.

"I am unalterably opposed to favoritism in the administration of public affairs. I stand for economy, recognizing, however, that it is impossible to stand still; that we must either go forward or backward, and therefore we must be wise in our economy, and not penurious. Wasteful extravagence, however, must be avoided.

"I am in favor of municipal ownership and control of the water supply system. Water is a necessity of life, and the lives of the community should not be left in the hands of the board of directors of a private corporation, who have the power (however remote the possibility) of shutting off our water supply at any time they may see fit to do so.

"I am opposed to the fee system; an official should be adequately paid for his services to the city, and all fees should go into the city treasury.

"We have laws relating to honest weight and measure, which should be enforced. Food stuffs should not be so exposed for sale as to subject them to contamination from any source, thus endangering the lives and good health of consumers. Automobile laws should be strictly enforced in the city.

"I favor all legislation that tends to the uplift, physically and mentally of the children of the community. We can't do too much for the children.

"The city is entitled to what it pays for from the lighting company, and should receive it.

"The laws on the statute books should be enforced without fear or favor. Graft in any sense official, semi-official, positive, negative or otherwise must be overcome.

"I oppose the use of money at the polls for the purpose of getting people to vote.

"The public are entitled at all times to information concerning all things relating to public affairs, and should be kept in touch therewith

A PECK OF TROUBLE IN A PECK OF PEARS

There is no fence around the property of Henry Weiss on Regent street and Miss Mary Moran, who resides on the same thoroughfare, claimed yesterday afternoon that the place was "commons" and she had a perfect right as a taxpayer in the borough to help herself to a peck of pears on Weiss's trees. Miss Moran as the story goes, went into the orchard, shook the trees, and gathered Mr. Weiss' delicious fruit. She was just on the point of taking the pears home with her, when the owner of the property called to her to stop. Mary dropped the bag of fruit and stood defending her rights against Mr. Weiss' arguments to the contrary. And then the feminine trespasser continued to shake the delicious fruit from the trees.

Harry Weiss, the son of Henry Weiss, appeared on the scene and politely asked the woman to leave the premises, but the determined neighbor insisted on what she said was her right. Young Weiss told her in sarcastic tones that he would help her take all the pears away that she wanted. With his remark, Mary became enraged and without any warning started to beat the young man unmercifully with the club which she used in knocking down the pears.

At this stage o. the trouble Chief Marshal George Weiss appeared and he told the woman to appear in the borough court this morning. But Mary informed the chief that she wouldn't go to court unless she was compelled to. Consequently Recorder Dolliver issued a warrant for her arrest. The hearing was called for this morning but Mary said that she was indisposed and would not be able to appear until next week. The case will be heard Monday morning.

BRUISED BY FALL FROM A BICYCLE.

While riding his bicycle on the sidewalk near the residence of Dr. Marcus Clawson yesterday afternoon John Gater, of Sycamore street, fell and received several bruises about the head and body. He was attended by Drs. N. W. Currie and Edward Rushmore, Dr. Currie taking the injured man to his home in his automobile.

It was rumored about town that Gater had been struck by an automobile, and that his son who was being carried on the handle bars of the wheel had been mortally hurt. The facts were that the boy was on the handle bars when Mr. Gater fell, but the little fellow escaped injury.

CHILDREN SURPRISE 'EM

Exercises at Stillman School Playground a Revela ion to Parents.

CAPTAINS ELECTED BY PUPILS.

Miss Childs, Supervisor, Pleased by Showing of Her Pupils, Who Are Commended by Commission.

A happy crowd of more than two hundred children joined in the exhibition at the Stillman School playgrounds yesterday afternoon and brought smiles of pleasure to the many mothers present as well as to Supervisor Miss Mary Leonard Childs, under whose careful tuition the children of at least ten nationalities have learned to amuse themselves in a way to carry joy into the homes of their parents.

The exercises were witnessed by several of the members of the playground commission who added their commendation to that of the mothers in praise of Miss Childs. Among the members present were Messrs. Mellick, Gavett, Best and Parker and they all agreed that the playground object has been attained and that it will grow.

The exercises in the afternoon consisted of the following: The Danish dance of greeting; a variation of the game of "Slap Jack;" Scamp in the Garden; whip tag, brick circle game, three variations of basket ball, dances by the smaller and larger girls, exercises on the slide, flag relay matches, and a match game of "Stealing Sticks."

It is due to the public that some explanation of the means of directing so many children of different ages and nationalities should be made. The group ssytem which has been in successful use in larger cities has been used, the children being arranged in lettered groups. They are thus classified. Each division elects its captain for the half day of play and the captain appoints his or her assistants who act as monitors, and strangely enough the discipline maintained is astonishing. The perfect control these masters have over the children amazes the onlooker.

During the summer months when the nervous and distrait youngsters do not know just what to do with their hands there is a system of tutelage which has accomplished much to prevent mischief. Many examples of the childrens' handiwork were on exhibition yesterday and excited the admiration of the visitors. As was said of the Bryant School exhibition, the playgrounds is a great institution.

BOROUGH DEMOCRATS MEET TOMORROW NIGHT.

The Democrats of the borough will open their headquarters at 83 Somerset street, tomorrow night, and from now on will conduct a vigorous campaign. The campaign will officially be opened with speeches by James E. Martine and S. S. Swackhamer, and they will talk on local, county, State and National issues.

Mr. Martine, who is a candidate for the office of United States Senator to succeed John Kean, will present his claims, while Mr. Swackhamer will touch on local option, as well as other issues of the campaign. It is expected that the borough and county aspirants for office will be present. Cigars will be passed around and everything is planned for an auspicious opening of the campaign.

Funeral of Mrs. A. D. Pope.

The funeral services of Mrs. A. D. Pope were held from the home of her son, George W. Pope, on New street, Tuesday afternoon, at 2:30 o'clock. Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson, pastor of the First M. E. church, officiated. There was a large attendance of relatives and friends, and many beautiful floral tributes. The burial was in Hillside cemetery, and the bearers were Edward Boyman, Andrew Stiglitz, Thomas Osment, Charles Holstein, William Mills and Walter L. Hetfield.

Received Many Prizes.

Benjamin Elliott, the well known chicken fancier of Scotch Plains, was awarded eleven prizes at the Interborough Fair being held at Dongan Hills, Staten Island, this week. The entries included Mr. Elliott's prize winning Buff orpington and Buff cochin stock. He received six first and five second prizes.

Raising Prize Produce.

Harry O. Bogert, of Bradford avenue, is raising some prize produce this summer. He has already picked tomatoes from his garden weighing nearly eighteen ounces, and he has cabbage, the heads of which measured seventeen inches across.

MISS MARGARET RICKET NOW MRS. GEO. CONSTABLE

Miss Margaret May Rickert, of the borough, became the wife of George James Constable, of Flatbush, at the home of the bride's aunt, Miss Margaret Rickert, 68 Fairview avenue, at 7:30 o'clock last night. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. Charles E. Herring, pastor of the First Presbyterian church. The bride was given in marriage by Dr. A. T. Roberts, of Elizabeth. There were seventy-five friends present. Miss Edna May Hyatt, of this city, was the maid of honor and Frank J. Gundrun, of Brooklyn, acted as the best man. The flower girl was Miss Olive Elizabeth Roberts, of Elizabeth.

Immediately following the ceremony, a supper was served by an Elizabeth caterer. The house was tastefully decorated with palms and cut flowers, the prevailing color schemes being white, green and pink. The guests were from New York, Long Island, Brooklyn, Newark, Elizabeth and this city.

The bride's dress was of white satin and chiffon, the gown of the maid of honor was of pink satin, and the flower girl wore a dress of white lace. The bridal party entered the room and marched to the altar while the Mendelssohn's wedding march was being played by Andrew G. Carpenter.

The bride is well known in the borough and this city, having been a student at the North Plainfield High Shcool and a graduate of the Plainfield Business College. After an extended honeymoon, the destination of which is being carefully concealed, the married couple will take up their residence in this city.

JURY SAYS WINGES SHOT MAYOR SANDFORD'S COW

In the Middlesex County Court at New Brunswick, yesterday, William J. Winges, of Dunellen, was found guilty of shooting a cow belonging to Mayor William Sandford, of Dunellen, on April 12. The case was tried before Judge Lyons. The State Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals brought the charge and assisted the prosecution.

Winges shot Mayor Sandford's cow when the animal was trespassing on his garden. According to the testimony, several witnesses swore that they had seen Winges shoot the cow and there were others who said that they had heard Winges boasting of his act to some friends. The case was first aired before Squire Wright and a jury at New Market, the S. P. C. A. being the complainant. Winges won, as he did at a subsequent trial in the same court.

When placed on the stand yesterday morning, Winges denied that he had ever shot the cow, had seen the animal, had heard a gunshot, or had ever talked with anyone about killing the animal. Miss Lurko, who resides in the vicinity of Winges, swore that she saw the defendant with a gun in his yard shortly before the cow was shot. The defendant denied this, saying that he owned no gun of any kind, and that he did not have a weapon in his hand at the time.

Mayor Sanford, who had testified for the State in the case, was called by counsel for the defence, this being done to admit a question, which Assistant Prosecutor Watson would not allow under any other conditions. Harry B. Cook was the counsel for the defendant.

The trial lasted for two days, the jury returning a verdict yesterday. Judge Lyons did not pass sentence on Winges as yet. It is expected that the defendant will make an appeal.

RUNYON'S FRIENDS.

Friends of Judge William N. Runyon, candidate for the Republican congresional nomination, who would like to be of assistance at the primaries on Tuesday are invited to assemble at the Republican City Committee headquarters, City National Bank building (third floor) tonight at 8 o'clock. The judge has received a number of letters as well as many personal assurances from friends that they are anxious to be of any service to help in his campaign. To these and to all his friends generally he desires to say that he will appreciate it if they will meet at the party's headquarters tonight. There is something for them to do and this will be explained at that time.

Minnie E. Gary.

Minnie E. Gary, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elwod Gary, of Dunellen, died this morning after a short illness. The announcement of the funeral will be made later.

REPUBLICANS TO MEET

Judge Runyon to Speak at Big Rally at Reform Hall Saturday Night.

HIS OTHER ENGAGEMENTS.

Makes Address at Garwood Tonight —Tomorrow Night at Roselle Park and Monday Night at Plainfield.

Plainfield's Republicans are invited to hear Judge William N. Runyon speak at Reform Hall on Saturday night, a big mass meeting having been arranged as the wind-up of the local campaign. The popular judge, who is making a manly fight for the congressional nomination, will give one of his characteristic talks and there will be no need for doubt in any voter's mind as to just where the judge stands on any question of national interest. As he is a rattling good speaker and has an army of friends, a rousing big time is expected.

The chairman for the meeting has not been announced. It was impossible to obtain either the Plainfield or the Proctor theatre for that night, and it was found that Reform Hall was the only centrally located building that would be large enough.

Tonight Judge Runyon will speak at a mass meeting at Garwood and tomorrow night he will make an address at Roselle Park. On Monday night he is scheduled to talk at Springfield. Friends of the judge who have been watching the campaign closely and are in a position to give a reliable opinion on the situation say that during the last ten days he has made great progress and will win by a safe majority at the congressional convention to be held here a week from tomorrow. Reports from Morris cunty state that he is gaining every day and that there is no doubt of his winning out there. Union county, which is his stronghold, will surely make a flattering showing for him.

MARTIN IS NON-SUITED POLYGLOT JURY ON CASE

The suit brought by Michael Martin, the twenty-three-year-old Italian who was struck by an automobile alleged to have been driven by John Slevin, of Franklin place, on July 2 last, was brought before Judge William Newcorn in the district court this morning, and the twelve jurymen decided there was no cause of action. Among the jurymen were a Chinaman, a Scotchman, a Swede, a Dane, five Yankees and three Irishmen.

The case has been postponed several times in the criminal courts and the present action is to recover damages which Martin alleges he suffered by loss of time from his work immediately succeeding the accident. Harry C Runyon represented the complainant, while W. A. Codington is caring for Mr. Slevin's interests.

At the time of the accident it is alleged by Martin, who by the way is an Italian, he was riding toward the mountains on Somerset street, and at Jackson avenue he was overtaken and knocked to the ground by the automobile driven by Mr. Slevin. Several witnesses testified that they saw the automobile overtake and knock down the wheelman, and as many others declared that the bicyclist was entirely at fault, having attempted to pass the automobile by sprinting.

On the day after the accident it was stated that the Italian was at fault. He was taken in an unconscious condition to Muhlenberg hospital, where his injuries were dressed and where he remained for several days. Mr. Slevin was arrested by Marshal Weiss and was later released in $1,000 bail, the bond being furnished by David Carney. After several postponements in the borough court, Recorder Charles M. Dolliver dismissed the case. The present suit interests the borough magistrate and he is in attendance to follow the procedure. In the direct testimony of Martin, Rev. Paladino, pastor of the Presbyterian mission, acted as interpreter for the two Italian witnesses.

The young Chinaman on the jury is Woeryuk Keueue, who has been studying law since graduating from a local school, where he perfected himself in the English language. Kueue has attended many of the sessions of the local courts, and has once acted as interpreter in the police court before Judge William N. Runyon.

Mrs. H. R. Batchelor and Miss Edna M. Batchelor, of this city, are having a delightful time at the Country Club, Hague, N. Y., and Lake George.

PLINY FISK DIES AFTER ILLNESS DUE TO FALL

Following a long illness, resulting from a fall eighteen months ago, Pliny Fisk, an uncle of Mayor Chas. J. Fisk, of this city, died at his home in Trenton, yesterday. He was eighty-three years old and had been in failing health for a number of years. The accident which brought about his last illness happened at his home, where he fell downstairs and fractured both wrists.

Mr. Fisk was born at Essex, N. Y., eighty-three years ago. He was a brother of the late Harvey Fisk, founder of the banking house which bears his name, and of the late Richard Henry Fisk and of Samuel C. Fisk, now of New York. He was an uncle of Mayor Charles J. Fisk, of this city; Pliny Fisk, of New York; Miss Fisk, of Wilburtha, and Mrs. John Gould, of New York. He is survived by a widow, the daughter of Rev. John Hall, of Trenton, and by five children: William J. Fisk, of East Orange; Mrs. C. E. Corwin, of New Haven, Conn.; Horace E. Fisk, of Chicago; Mrs. William S. Rogers and Miss Annie Hall Fisk, of Trenton.

Mr. Fisk went to Trenton a number of years ago engaging in the manufacture of pottery ware. He was formerly quite heavily interested in the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad and in coal fields in Pennsylvania. He retired from active business twenty years ago. The funeral will take place next Friday and burial will be made at the Ewing Presbyterian Church cemetery.

Miss Annie Hall Fisk, one of the younger daughters of Mr. Fisk, was to have been married next month to William Ewing Green, son of the late Judge Elmer Ewing Green, of the Court of Errors and Appeals. Arrangements had been made for a home wedding in order that Mr. Fisk might be present.

AIR RIFLES DANGEROUS IN YOUTHFUL HANDS

Two young boys were arraigned this morning before Judge William N. Runyon in the city court on a charge of indiscriminate shooting with an air rifle. William Stutz, a market gardener, of New Market, was the complainant and his only object in making the complaint was to have a long continued practise stopped.

Mr. Stutz said that on last Tuesday he was driving through Liberty street when he noticed that several boys were taking pot shots at passersby with an air gun. As he had had a similar experience he determined to try to catch the offenders. When he felt a sharp burning pain behind his right ear he knew that one of the youngsters had outwitted him and that the missile hurt.

Mr. Stutz jumped from his wagon and in the pursuit which followed the boys dropped their weapon and made good their escape. Some detective work by Patrolman George Dobson revealed the ownership of the air gun and it was then easy to round up the young offenders.

Judge Runyon ordered the weapon confiscated this morning and severely lectured the boys. They were warned to notify their companions that a repetition of the offense would entail considerable punishment and the younsters promised to behave. They were Holger Mortensen, of West Third street, and William Gray, Gray, of Pond Place. The boys claimed that their ammunition had been a burnt match and that they had been playing cowboy, adding dent.

FRANK HYDE'S SAD END

While Temporarily Deranged Prominent Man Takes His Own Life.

A GENEROUS HEARTED MAN.

Member of Many Clubs and Active in Business and Social Life—A Graduate of Yale.

More than two years of continued ill health and mental depression culminated last night when during temporary mental derangement Francis deLacy Hyde took his own life.

Mr. Hyde realized his condition, and about two years ago planned an extended trip through Mexico, in the belief that he could regain his health. The expected benefit, however, did not result from this trip. His family and friends thought they saw marked improvement during the past year, but it is evident Mr. Hyde knew his own condition better and concealed it out of consideration for his family, which was quite characteristic of the man.

Mr. Hyde was born in this city, at the old Charles Hyde residence on East Front street, where his mother now lives. He prepared for college at Leal's School in this city and entered Yale, from which university he graduated in 1891. Following his graduation, Mr. Hyde resided in Titusville, Penna., where he became director and vice-president of the Second National Bank of Titusville.

About fourteen years ago Mr. Hyde married Carolyn Knowland, daughter of the late Frederick Knowland, of this city. They have three children, Francis deLacy, Jr., Edward and Carolyn. Mr. Hyde came to Plainfield in the fall of 1901, and has resided here continuously since then. His handsome residence on Mountain avenue, North Plainfield, was completed about seven years ago. Mr. Hyde has been prominent in the business and social life of this community and conspicuous in his charitable undertakings. During his residence here he has been president of the Union County Investment Company and a director of the City National Bank of Plainfield. He was a member of a number of clubs, including the Plainfield Country Club, Park Club, Watchung Hunt Club and the Baltusrol Golf Club.

It would be hard to name a man who had gained more affection and esteem because of his qualities of heart and his sympathetic nature. His loss to this community will be deeply felt.

NEW STATE SUNDAY-SCHOOL SECRETARY ASSUMES DUTIES.

Louis H. Koehler, formerly the paid superintendent of the Sunday-school of the Congregational church, Hartford, Conn., has assumed his duties as general secretary of the New Jersey Sunday School Association. A luncheon was given to him at the Arkwright Club, in New York by the president of the association, George E. Hall, of this city. Others present included nearly all of the association officers.

The first work of the newly-elected officer will be to get acquainted with the workers in the various county associations and he will have the opportunity for doing this in attending the twenty-one county conventions, the first of which will be held today and the last November The State convention will be held at Atlantic City, November 15-17.

GEORGE W. MUNDY DEAD; WAS A RETIRED FARMER.

George W. Mundy, a retired farmer of Somerset county, died this morning at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. Peter Rose, of Belmont avenue, from the infirmities of age. He was eighty-four years old.

The dead man was one of the veteran farmers in Somerset county, having lived there all his life. Some time ago he retired from active work and went to live with his daughter. His wife died many years ago. Surviving Mr. Mundy are two daughters, Mrs. Peter Rose and Mrs. Josephine Waldron, and three sons, Israel P., Peter W., and George H. Mundy, all residents of this vicinity.

The funeral services will be held Saturday afternoon at the residence of his daughter, at 1:15 o'clock, and at the Springdale church at 3 o'clock.

Allen Was Disorderly.

Fred Allen, of Harrison avenue, was arraigned in the borough court this morning on the charge of disorderly conduct. He was arrested last night by Marshal Pope, who found him drunk and making a disturbance about his neighborhood. It was Allen's first offense and Recorder Dolliver suspended sentence upon the man with a warning.

M'ALPIN RIFLE MATCH ON AT SEA GIRT

State Rifle Range, Sea Girt, Sept. 8.—The ideal conditions that the officers of the Tri-State Tournament have been desiring since the tournament began, in order to secure the best results upon the ranges, prevailed yesterday morning when the signal was given for the five teams in the McAlpin Trophy contest to appear on the 200-yard range for the first stage in that competition.

Because of the value of the trophy and the high class of the men who composed the teams that were posted to compete in this match, there were present practically all the riflemen on the ground to see the work of the top-notchers who compose the teams.

AMONG OUR NEIGHBORS

DUNELLEN.

School has started in the borough and the vacation joys of the Dunellen younger set are no more. The opening of both schools occurred Tuesday morning, and now the work is in full swing and everything is running smoothly. There are two hundred pupils in the Whittier school and one hundred and fifty in the Lincoln school, these figures being a slight increase over those of last year. Principal Guy H. Rentchular says that the outlook for a most successful year is promising. The teachers in the schools this year are: Whittier, Guy H. Rentchular, Miss Rita G. Brokaw, Miss Daisy M. Brouard, Miss Edna Eckert, Miss Elizabeth Winters and Leon Zimmerman; Lincoln, Miss Jessie Rogers, Miss Fannie J. Smith, Miss Polly Higgins and Miss Helen Lindsey.

Marshal Benson is hot on the trail of the young thieves who burglarized the Dunellen Lumber and Stone Co., Dunellen Supply Co., C. T. Voorhees' butcher shop, and D. T. Heaume's grocery store, Tuesday night. The marshal has not given out any definite statement as yet, but it is alleged that he has several authentic clues upon which he is working. The fact that none of the safes in these places were touched and that only pennies and loose change were taken in each case has led the marshal to believe that the thefts were committed by novices.

The local delegates to the Middlesex County Sunday-school convention, which is being held today at the First Presbyterian church of Cranberry, left the borough this morning. Rev. Ernest Brown, pastor of the Dunellen Presbyterian church, will make an address to the convention this evening. The delegates from the borough are: Mrs. Lewis Snyder, Mrs. H. J. Swackhammer, Miss Jennie Campbell, Miss Musharod, Miss Pearl Dodwell, T. W. Day, C. T. Voorhees, A. F. Todd and Rev. E. R. Brown.

Since the burglaries were committed Tuesday night, Edward Pennock says that his drug store was entered last week, but the thieves were not successful in obtaining any loot.

The case against William Winches, of North avenue, for shooting Mayor Sandford's cow last spring, was brought up in the Middlesex county court yesterday. The prosecuting party was the S. P. C. A. of Middlesex county. The defendant was found guilty.

The Presbyterian church held its services Sunday in the Bible school room. The alterations and decorations, which are being done to the church, will not be finished until the latter part of this week. On Sunday the services will be held in the main auditorium.

The Hall Printing Press Company has shut down this week in order to take account of stock.

SOMERVILLE.

Frank Viola, a retired hotelkeeper, of Raritan, who was placed in the county jail recently on the charge of attacking a threee-year-old child, is believed to be feigning insanity. At times he is so violent that the keepers find it necessary to strap him to his bed. When examined by County Physician M. H. Long on Sunday as to his sanity, Viola answered all questions intelligently save those relating to the crime with which he is charged.

Judge Clarence E. Case, Captain Albert Case, of Company M, Second Regiment; Helen Case and Mabel Case have returned from Lake Hopatcong, where they have been spending the summer.

Taylor Brokaw, Karel Vanderveer, Ray Parramore and Shermer D. Brunt have returned from Camp Restless, Lake Hopatcong, where they spent the week-end.

William Woodruff, George Wilcox, Harry Ten Eyck, Howard Nevins and Judson Galpin spent last week at Camp Onaway, Lake Hopatcong.

Blanche Van Fleet, Earle Van Fleet and Margareta Brokaw have returned from a stay at Rockledge cottage, Lake Hopatcong.

Former Prosecutor John F. Reger and wife have returned from a two weeks' outing at Lake Champlain.

George Nevius and Bert Messler spent Labor Day visiting in and about the Delaware Water Gap.

Walter Camman spent the week-end at his cottage in Henderson's Cove, Lake Hopatcong.

Rev. William J. Soule was ordained pastor of the First Baptist church Tuesday evening.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

Benjamin Elliott has been attending the Interborough Fair at Port Richmond, where he has a number of his prize winning Buff Orpington chickens entered in the poultry show. Mr. Elliott's stock has taken blue ribbons at all the fairs and shows for several years past and is considered by chicken fanciers to be among the finest.

The primary election will be held Tuesday of next week in the town hall. Polls will be open from 1 to 9 o'clock. From present indications there will not be any contests.

Miss Adeline Williams, who has been spending a week with her sister, Mrs. Alfonso Sabitino, has returned to her home in New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Gere Paff, Jr., left yesterday for thier new home at Glen Gardner, where Mr. Paff will engage in farming.

The young people of St. Mary's parish held an enjoyable outdoor dance last night on the rectory lawn at Stony Hill.

Mrs. Henry Demarest, of Front street, has been entertaining relatives from out of town.

Twilight Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., meets tonight in the Library rooms.

WESTFIELD.

Residents of South Broad street and the south side of the railroad track are agitating the matter of depressing the Broad street roadway under the railroad tracks. The claim made is that the Broad street crossing is a dangerous one, and that the danger of this crossing keeps people from building on the south side of the track. Plans for doing away with this grade crossing were made several years ago, but owing to the cost to the railroad and the town, the matter was shelved. Now the residents are talking of taking the matter up with the Utilities Commission in an effort to have the roadway depressed and do away with the crossing.

The summer absentees are beginning to return home. This week will see many houses that have been closed during the hot season open again. The families of Wellington Morehouse, P. D. Collins, Albert Dixie, Walter Sloan and A. H. Meyer will be home this week.

The members from Westfield drawn to serve on the petit jury at the opening of court are Martin Snyder and Joseph Iannaccone. The latter is an Italian living on North street, who can speak but little English.

ENGLAND WINS MAIN POINT IN FISHERY CASE.

The Hague, Sept. 8.—The century-old fisheries dispute, the source of constant diplomatic friction between the governments of the United States, Great Britain, Canada and Newfoundland, was finally closed yesterday with the award of the International Court of arbitration largely in favor of the United States.

The American Government is sustained on points two, three, four, six and seven, out of the total of seven points in which the issue was framed.

Great Brita'n wins on questions one and five.

While the United States triumphs on five of the seven points, point five, decided in favor of Great Britain, has been held by Englishmen as the most important of those submitted.

The fifth point was stated in the form of this question:

"From where must be measured the three marine miles of any of the coasts, bays, creeks or harbors referred to in Article I. of the American-British treaty of 1818?"

United States fishermen claimed the right to take the measure from any part of the British North American shore, and therefore the liberty to fish in the middle of any of the Canadian bays or estuaries having a radius of more than three miles. The British contention was that the limit should be measured from an imaginary line connecting the headlands. The peace court sustained the British contention.

James Frawley, of the Proctor & Sanderson Stock company, is entertaining his brother, who holds a position in the Department of the Interior, at Washington.

Miss Elizabeth Weston, of 504 East Seventh street, and Mr. and Mrs. Warner Mulford, of the Netherwood section, have gone to Lake George, N. Y., for three weeks.

Well what did you think about those two games at the oval Monday?

The first one was O. K., of course—but the second—enough said.

But that Mr. Ward certainly did have those New Yorkers guessing there in that first game. Hits when hits meant runs were not allowed by Doerflinger's new box artist—and the result was a 3-1 victory.

When Pfeiffer clouted that first ball, which Mr. Ward threw, for a two-base wallop, it looked as though the new Plainfield twirler couldn't come back. Things looked even more dubious when Dowling kept up the cannonade with a clean single. But here the swatfest ceased for the next two batters were retired on strikes through Ward's clever pitching and the third out was a weak pop fly to Jack Martin. And then the fans breathed a sigh of relief and Ward smoked a cigarette.

Brit Martin was a little bit off his game Saturday. The steady second baseman made two errors in succession and at the bat he was minus.

Ward did the great stick work in the first game, making three safeties out of four times up. Manager Doerflinger thought that he was needed with his willow in the second battle and so the pitcher played right field. He made one hit out of four tries in the second game.

That Dunellen bunch was all there for keeps Monday. Two victories, and both over strong teams, was some record for the boroughites in one day.

Dunellen fans had a good laugh Monday afternoon before the Caldwell game. The married and single men of the borough engaged in a diamond struggle—and it was some fight too. The final score was kept secret but from all reports it was 12-10 in favor of the joyful ones or other words; the single men.

But what do you know about that Brooklyn Trolley Dodger team? Two games from the Giants in one day and then a 5-1 victory from Philadelphia Tuesday.

The New York Giants have purchased Walter Shontz, a pitcher, and Harry Cowrier, a first baseman, from the Dallas Club, which recently won the pennant in the Texas League.

That post season series between the Yanks and the Giants is practically a sure thing.

The West End A. C. and the Garwood Y. M. W. C. played a tie game at the oval Monday afternoon as an opener to the Plainfield-McNulty contest. The score was 2-2 after a nine inning fight.

Pfeiffer again distinguished himself Monday by some lightning work on shortstop. He made the fans sit up and yell when he grabbed Emery's hot liner which looked good for a single, in the seventh inning of the afternoon game. He stopped the ball with his bare hand and threw the runner out without changing his position.

Smiling Jimmie Montross was in all sorts of form Monday afternoon and the Caldwell boys could only manage to land three safe hits off his delivery. The Dunellen team batted at will and scored nine runs.

And some one said Monday afternoon at the oval that the umpiring gave him a pain! Oh, Myrtle how could you!

CYCLING.

Plainfield riders certainly showed up in great form at the meet Monday afternoon. The performance of William Drake in the ten-mile handicap, when he defeated some of the cracks of the country, was little short of marvelous.

Percy Haberle is following right along in his brother's footsteps as a speed artist. The way in which he won both the city and county championships Monday with comparative ease shows his true ability.

The slow times in the one-mile events for the city and county championships Monday was due to the French style of riding, which the competitors used. All of the entrants rode very easily at the start and when the tape was in sight they let out on the final sprint. In this case the man that is the quickest on the get-away wins the race. In both cases this man proved to be Percy Haberle.

Edward Simon did some great riding in that ten-mile handicap and second place against those well known artists is going some for the kid. His wonderful showing is due in a large measure to the constant and careful coaching that was given him by Harold Gloak. The trainer says that he knew his young flyer would get a place among the top-notchers in the race.

The fact that Carl Erickson started from scratch in the race is no excuse for his not winning the event. Drake, Simon and Jones had only three minutes handicap, and yet they beat out the famous rider by a good margin. Erickson made the best time for the course, doing the ten miles in 26 minutes and 40 seconds. Erickson won the time prize and fourth place.

* * *

By winning the time prize and first place in Sunday's ten-mile race, George Simon took a big jump in the point contest for the summer season, and climbed up to within seven points of Eddie McNee, who finished second Sunday morning. If Simon repeats his performance in the ten-mile handicap next Sunday morning and McNee fails to get placed, the two men will be tied in the point contest. William Drake, who won the ten-mile free-for-all handicap Monday afternoon, is third in the point race, with eleven to his credit.

The present standings:

	Pts.
Eddie McNee	25
George Simon	18
William Drake	11
Gifford Jones	8
Eddie Simon	6
Percy Haberle	4
W. Southard	3
Raymond Mantz	3
E. S. Burns	3
Jack Todd	3
Robert Guthridge	3
A. F. Miller	1
A. Brokaw	1

GOLF.

With regard to the foreign embargo against mallet-headed putters, a critic ventures the opinion that it bears all the ear-marks of having been railroaded through with indecent haste. Continuing, he says:

"The whole affair was sprung as a surprise on both sides of the Atlantic. What is the sense of this country having representation on the rules of golf committee if, as in the case under notice, we are not to be consulted at all in respect to matters of such far-reaching consequence? To be so ignored in this fashion is, to put it mildly, not very complimentary. And it would not be surprising if in the circumstances the decision arrived at, which bars all putters of the Schenectady type so commonly used here, were not ratified by the United States Golf Association."

"We have always been loyal to St. Andrews, even in the face of active internal opposition—which is now happily set at rest—and we hope always to retain the same loyal spirit, but—

"It's all very well to dissemble your love,
"But why did you kick us downstairs?"

George Sparling, the Brooklawn Country Club professional, is playing good golf at present, a case in point being his efforts the other day while playing in a four-ball match with the Wheeler brothers and W. J. Nichols. Sparling had rounds of 34 and 37 for a 71. The course is a nine-hole circuit, covering a length of 3,000 yards.

DUAL CANDIDACY.

When that noble type of public servant, Mayor Gaynor, was told yesterday that report had it that he was seeking the Empire State gubernatorial nomination, he said, "It's a lie." He has told his admirers that he had been entrusted by the people of New York city to administer their affairs and that he intended to faithfully perform that trust until his term expires.

When that vigorous executive, Governor Fort, was begged to become a candidate as President Taft's running-mate, and when his chances would have been excellent for success, he positively declined, declared that the people of New Jersey had elected him as their chief magistrate and that he intended to perform his duties for the term for which he was elected.

If Representative Charles N. Fowler should be re-nominated and re-elected to the Lower House of Congress, he would be willing to resign that office to accept a higher one should the Legislature select him. Both terms would be begun at the same time, but his action in resigning should not only be an insult to the people but would necessitate a special primary and a special election, both of which would be costly to the taxpayers.

THE YOUNGEST GRANDMOTHER.

Mrs. Herbert Wink, of North Jefferson street, New Castle, Pa., is believed to be the youngest grandmother in the entire United States. She has attained the honor before she was 32 years of age, when most women are only raising their own families. Now, at 35 years of age, she has two grandchildren. Mrs. Wink was Miss Anne Wymer, of Lowellville, O., and was married at the age of 15 years to Herbert Wink. She was a mother before her sixteenth birthday, when a daughter, Bessie was born. Miss Bessie followed exactly in her mother's footsteps. She was married at fifteen and became a mother shortly before her sixteenth birthday. She is the wife of Richard Linton. Her first baby is William Linton, now 3 years of age, while his little sister, Lillian Belle, is 4 months old.

NEEDLEWORK NOTES.

A large roll of twine can be attractively decorated for a gift in this way: A small, round piece of wood is slipped through the centre of the roll finished on each end with a small gilded knob. A bow of pink or blue ribbon is tied on each knob and the ribbon carried from one side to the other forming a handle. A piece of the ribbon doubled with a pair of scissors on it is fastened to one of the knobs for cutting the twine when it is needed.

A pretty tobacco pouch will always delight the masculine heart. Dull green leather or suede lined with crimson silk will be a pretty combination. The top can be pinked, and silk cord, with tassels on the ends, run through eyelets at the top for drawing the strings. The three initials, embroidered on the centre of the bag with shades of green silk and gold thread, will be sufficient decoration. Make the bag wide enough for the pipe to slip in easily to be filled.

To embroider a linen cardcase cut strips of linen two inches longer on each end than an ordinary cardcase when stretched open. Work front of case with elaborate design of scrolls and dots in solid embroidery. Turn back ends for two inches to form pockets, the ends finished in a quarter of an inch hem. Baste edges together, double thickness in a buttonholed scallop. In doing up a cardcase or purse the linen should be stiffly starched.

An attractive set of candle shades are made on water-color paper, decorated with a design of small medallions, a girl's head, either pasted or painted on, surrounded by a tiny red rose and leaves. Two medallions will be of tiny roses between and connecting them. The water-color paper under the medallions can be cut so that the light can shine through them. Finish the edges with gilding, either slipped or in a narrow band.

The Thrifty Vermonter.

The native thrift of the Vermonters was under discussion and a story was told that was held to illustrate it perfectly. There was a man in one of the interior Vermont towns who had an old horse, ringboned, spavined, with the heaves and every other horse ailment almost—a mere shadow of a horse. He used to drive to town every day and was jeered by his neighbors for using such a miserable beast.

One day he walked into the store at the corners. "Where's youh horse, Jim?" a friend asked.

"Sold him."

"Sold him! How much did you get?"

"Got a hundred dollars for him."

A hundred dollars. Who in thunder did you sell that horse to for a hundred dollars?"

"Why," replied the Vermonter, as he exhibited a roll of bills, "I sold him to mother."—Saturday Evening Post.

FAVORITE FADS IN COSTUMES.

The woman who would give a distinguished and individual air to everything she wears will cultivate a fad for dressing.

Let us suppose, for instance, she is devoted to one special kind of embroidery—the new ismit, for example. Then everything—on her lingerie, her gowns, her white hats, her parasols, even on her handkerchiefs and dressing-table accessories this embroidery will appear. If she will only choose an easily adaptable stitch, this is easy of accomplishment in whatever form of embroidery she especially favors.

Or perhaps leather is her dress fad. Leather then will appear on all her belts, her morning-hat trimmings, the buttons, lapels and cuffs of her linen or serge suits. She will display cut leather in her desk and bureau furnishings, and cling to a special form of kid gloves, bags and shoes. After a while her trig and tailormade appearance will be understood by all who know her to be the result of her fancy for leather.

Again, there is the woman with a passion for fringes and tassels, and the other who loves beadwork. Just now, when both of these are so popular, what opportunities they will have for artistic individuality! Without so overworking the thing as to make themselves conspicuous when the fashion goes out, they can achieve a small triumph, sartorially speaking, by their use and adaptation of their favorite trimmings.

Moreover, without absolutely confining herself to it, every woman should have some preferred color, which would appear on everything she wore. A touch of violet, perhaps—so becoming to either blonde or brunette — on hats, lingerie, gloves, stockings, belts, ties, dress trimmings—even the merest suggestion of it in plaids and dresdens; and soon she will become so daintily distinctive as was the lovely Miss Ainslee, in Myrtle Reed's "Lavender and Old Lace," in her charming lavender.

A Novel Tie.

A novel tie idea was seen in a shop recently. The tie was silk, green on one side and lined with red. When made into a bow the puffed knot showed red, the ends green. The suggestion may be applied to ties of other materials and of any color and will look well with a plaid or two-color frock.

The Man Who Must Not Criticise.

"Don't you think it is foolish for a country no richer than Brazil to buy a $14,500,000 battleship?"

"I'm not in a position to be critical. Fact is, I just bought an automobile myself." — Philadelphia Ledger.

No Ragtime for Her.

BEWARE OF YOUR TEETH.

A man is known by the teeth he keeps.

The worst thing that can happen to our teeth is for them not to have enough to do. It is the worst thing that can happen to us also. Spiritualized and cultured as we have become, we still fight the battle of life with our teeth, though we no longer chew our enemies' ears or throats. Boned cored, enamel coated and rock ribbed as the hills, our teeth are more absolutely under our control than almost any other structure of the body, says Dr. Woods Hutchinson in Survey. Neglect them and they decay at once. Give them proper attention and they will go on repairing themselves for forty, fifty, sixty years.

Give children plenty of roughening food to chew and they will get the pearly vigor of the savage tooth with the endurance of the Caucasian's.

HERE AND THERE.

A Surprising "Bag."

A Californian who was shooting quail in a large vineyard near Santa Rosa, had met with excellent success. Indeed, his "bag" was so fine a one that an element of mystery entered into the affair.

At first he thought he must be shooting tame quail, the birds behaved so strangely, refusing to fly until nearly trodden underfoot, and then fluttering through the air in a most unnatural manner.

The hunter's dog continued to bring in live birds, which he supposed at the outset he had wounded; but when their number began to exceed the number of his shots, the fact was borne in upon him that this was a very strange hunt.

Finally he came upon a bird lying upon its back and kicking. He picked it up. It appeared to be uninjured. Setting it upon its legs, he watched to see what it would do. It staggered and floundered a few feet further and then fell hopelessly on its back.

Then a suspicion of the truth came to the hunter, and he proceeded to investigate. It turned out that the quail had been feeding on frost-bitten grapes, which had fermented on the vines. They were quite drunk, and as completely incapacitated as human beings are in a similar condition.—Harper's Weekly.

The golden glow that enveloped earth and sky during the electrical rain storm of Tuesday evening was a phenomenon so remarkable that all who saw were filled with wonder and delight. The flaming sky, diffusing a roseate light everywhere and intensified by the flashing and quivering lightning caused more than one child to exclaim! "is the world coming to an end?" The scene was too beautiful for alarm, and "Jerusalem the golden" was suggested to many a beholder, who felt that Wordsworth's "light that never was on sea or land" was for once an actual reality.

POLITICAL TALK.

Congressman Fowler told two hundred listeners in the Lyceum theatre, Morristown, last Saturday night, that he is a regular in politics, and when it comes to seeking political office, he is.—Trenton State Gazette.

Colors to Be Avoided.

Women who are possessed of ruddy complexions should bear in mind that the light green now so fashionable is not suited to them because of producing an overheated appearance. A delicate green, on the other hand, is favorable to pale blonde complexions, because it imparts a rosiness to such complexions—red, its complementary color, being reflected upon green. Violet is an unfavorable color for almost every kind of complexion because, reflecting yellow, it increases that tint when it is present in the skin or hair; it gives to an olive complexion a jaundiced look. Blue, again, is unsuitable to brunettes because it adds to the darkness of the complexion. Yellow, orange and red suit dark people because, contrasting with the dark skin and hair, they not only show to greater advantage themselves, but enrich the hue of the black.

Proctor's New Show.

"Saona," a well known resident of this city, will appear at Proctor's theatre today, presenting his famous act of living portraits from the hall of fame. He is a genius of the make-up box and he has just returned from an extended trip of several months on the big circuit. Lionel Swift & Co., will present an act entitled "Ambition;" Burns & Clifton will give a refined singing and dancing act and Moyer & Co., novelty magicians, will complete the bill with the latest moving pictures.

Exemplary Patience.

A Sioux City physician had been out during office hours on an emergency call, and when he returned he opened the door of his consultation room and inquired:

"Who has been waiting the longest?"

A tailor who had called to present his bill rose and said:

I think I have, doctor. I delivered your clothes to you three years ago."—Lippincott's.

THE FORUM.

As to Water Hose Use.

Editor, The Daily Press:

I recall to the honorable mayor's mind that sometime ago he issued a proclamation addressed to the citizens, requesting them to use no more water for their lawns and gardens on account of the extreme drought the good and welfare of the city for, in case there was a fire, the water pressure would be insufficient. Now since that time we have had abundance of rain and it seems to me that if our rights are ever to be restored, we should have them at once. The public will naturally look to the this proclamation rescinded. Trusting he may see his way clear to do so at once, I am,

JEFFERSON'S PICTURES.

A Wonderful Landscape Painted Entirely From Imagination.

Marvelous were the products of Jefferson's inspiration. He had created a school of his own. He was prone to portray forest scenes, with tree trunks of wonderful size, in accurate military formation. Old mills were a favorite subject with him, especially old mills with water wheels, and in some of his paintings he actually accomplished the impossible, for to all intents and purposes he succeeded in making the water run uphill. This having been called to his attention by an overcritical friend, Mr. Jefferson responded that he was well pleased with the result, for "few men could have accomplished it."

When president of the Players club, a position he held for so many years before his death, Mr. Jefferson presented to the club a large canvas of his own. If the writer remembers correctly, there was a pond in the foreground, with rushes, a tumbledown house and a large and rather theatrical looking forest, all painted, the artist boasted, in the dead of winter in his own sitting room and entirely from his imagination. When it was first displayed on the walls—for of course none of the old gentleman's gifts was ever refused—it attracted much attention, and one day Mr. Jefferson, being in the club, seized a brother member, who happened to be a man whose pictures had on more than one occasion won prizes in the salon, and stood him before his own masterpiece. "Now, I want you to tell me," he said frankly, with his child-like and delightful smile, "what you think of it."

"Well," replied the painter, responding to the pressure on his arm, "I'd like to have one hung as well as that." And the old gentleman was delighted.

During his lifetime that picture remained in its prominent position, and whenever Mr. Jefferson entered the club he would manage to maneuver himself in front of it, regarding it from all sides and angles, and hardly ever did a picture receive so much praise and so little criticism as that marvelous landscape.—James Barnes in Bookman.

EQUATORIAL AFRICA.

Three Things a White Person Must Have to Live There.

Without a mosquito bar a white person would be unable to live on the equator, writes Ida Vera Simonton in the Delineator.

No matter how hot and stifling the night—and no other place can be so stifling as the equatorial African night during the long rainy season in the midst of the jungle—one must sleep under a closely tucked in mosquito bar, not the ventilated kind civilization knows, but one of closely woven stuff through which no air circulates.

When the mosquito bar was let down it took in almost the entire room, but it proved especially useful in sickness and convalescence. It permitted existence free from insect bites. As malaria is the white man's most insidious foe and comes from the bite of the mosquito, every precaution must be taken against it. Three things are absolutely necessary in Africa—a mosquito bar, a water filter and quinine.

The bed was made by a native carpenter. The frame was of wood, the slats of bamboo ribs fitted closely together with the pith side uppermost. They didn't give a bit and were an excellent dancing floor for the dried plantain leaves which made the mattress. The leaves were confined beneath ticking tacked to the four sides of the bed, but they matted easily, and every night it was continuous leaf turning for me. The bamboo was slippery, and insomnia kept me and the leaves on the move, so that most of the time I slept on a hard surface. My pillow was of dried sweet smelling grass. Whoever says that hard beds are beautifiers should sleep upon an African bed.

Gold Heated Water.

Over 4,000 years ago an elaborate system of filtration was established by the Egyptians to purify the waters of the Nile. In both Rome and Athens hot water was drunk in preference to cold by the small minority who used water for drinking purposes. Champier, writing in 1500, notes that the habit of drinking hot water was spreading among all classes in France. "Some warm it by holding it over the fire. Others dip burning bread into it. Rich people plunge a bar of hot gold into their water before drinking it, and the less wealthy a bar of hot iron, while the very poor are content to warm their drink with a live coal."

Got His Number.

Uncle Zeph had had some trouble getting about on the cars and complained of the employees. "When a conductor is uncivil to you take his number," said his nephew.

Two days later uncle came in somewhat battered, but looking triumphant. "I got the number," he said, with a satisfied air, "but I had to grab the hull cap too."—Buffalo Express.

Had a Proxy.

"Have a drink, old man?"

"No; I've cut it out."

"Aw, be sociable."

"Well, my companion here will take a drink with you. He's my social secretary."—Kansas City Journal.

Entirely Capable.

"Is your new maid capable?"

"Yes, indeed. She can tell callers I don't want to see that I'm out and make them believe it."—Detroit Free Press.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Sept. 11, 1910.

Topic.—Proud—of what?—Jer. ix, 23, 24; I Cor. i, 18-31; Rom. xii, 3. Edited by Rev. Sherman H. Doyle, D. D.

The Bible has a great deal to say about pride—our undue self esteem, personal exaltation and a feeling of superiority over others—which leads to a haughtiness and a lordliness over others that are contemptible and despicable. No Christian Endeavorer should ever possess such a spirit, for it is one of the most conspicuous of faults and at the same time one of the most unconscious after it has been allowed to fully develop itself in us.

There are many things in life of which men are proud that, instead of showing them to possess a noble spirit, only prove that they are unworthy. Jeremiah quotes the Lord as saying, "Let not the wise man glory in his wisdom, neither let the mighty man glory in his might; let not the rich man glory in his riches." And yet how many are proud of these very things—wisdom, power and riches! But why should they be? Why should a wise man be proud? He inherits his wisdom or the ability to accumulate wisdom, so why should he be proud of what cost him little or nothing? Moreover, in comparison with God, who alone is all wise, their wisdom is foolishness, and "the foolishness of God is wiser than men," says the apostle. The heathen nations, declares the apostle, "thinking themselves to be wise, became fools." Thinking themselves wise, they forgot God, to whom they should have glorified God, and thereby they became fools.

Why should men be proud of their physical strength? They should not, answers the apostle, because "the weakness of God is stronger than men." How uncertain physical strength is! Who gave it to man but God, so why should the strong man be proud? And one who only normally strong develops great strength shortens his days—certainly a poor cause for pride.

Why should the rich be proud of their riches? Much of it is inherited from others and is no sign of any unusual talent possessed by the heirs. Moreover, when personally acquired there is no room for pride. Nothing is more uncertain than riches. They fly from us, or we die and leave them. The rich fool in the parable of Christ said, "Soul, thou hast much good laid up for many years," but the Lord said: "This night thy soul shall be required of thee. Then whose shall these things be?" What a contrast between "many years" and "this night!" But how often history has repeated itself in this respect! Men toil and labor to lay up well, neglecting God and the higher aims of life. Gold is their God. When they have enough they expect to give up business, become religious and live comfortably for many years. But who ever gets enough, and if here and there a man does and settles down how long does he live to enjoy it? The least thing in all the world of which to be proud is money, and yet here it most exists, and the rich are proud and haughty and use their money to trample underfoot the poor.

Why should men be proud of their birth? Yet how many are! They may have lost fortune and everything else but high birth, and yet how haughty and proud they remain! It is bad enough to be poor in this world, but to be "poor and proud" is about the limit.

Why should men be proud of their personal morality? Yet many are. They are so strictly good that they have no need of repentance or of Christ to save them. They expect to be saved on their own merits, but there "is no other name under heaven given to men whereby we must be saved" except the name of Jesus.

If we should not be proud of our possessions or talents, what should we do? Thank God in deep humility for the extra bliss which all men do not possess. Glorify God and the crucified Saviour. God forbid that I should glory save in Christ and Him crucified.

Spurgeon and Belfast Union President.

"Herries, you'll do."

Herries was a student in Spurgeon's college, London. Mr. Spurgeon wished to test the ability of the senior students to make an impromptu speech in the presence of the professors and the whole college. He wrote a number of subjects on slips of paper and asked the students to draw one each. Each student was allowed two minutes to collect his wits, and then he was expected to get up and make a speech on the subject he had drawn. Mr. Herries drew "Zaccheus." He rose and said, "The subject that has fallen to my lot is Zaccheus, and no subject could be more fitting to me—firstly, Zaccheus was a little man, so am I; secondly, Zaccheus was up a tree, so am I; thirdly, Zaccheus made haste and came down, so shall I." "Herries, you'll do!" cried Spurgeon. Mr. Herries was recently appointed president of the Belfast and district Christian Endeavor union. He comes from Yorkshire, England, where Christian Endeavor is very strong, and he will be a power in his new field.—Christian Endeavor World.

Lanier of the Cavalry

Or, A Week's Arrest

By GENERAL CHARLES KING,

Author of "The Colonel's Daughter," "Foes In Ambush," Etc.

Copyright, 1909, by J. B. Lippincott Company

"I had intended sending for you, Sumter," said he, "but these rather engrossing matters had to be taken up first. I—have your application," he continued. "It is an awkward time and these are awkward circumstances. It will leave your troop without an officer."

"Mr. Lanier will be here, colonel."

"Here, but in close arrest," frowned the colonel, "and you haven't had a first lieutenant since I have been in command."

"My misfortune, sir, but hardly my fault," answered Captain Sumter tersely, yet respectfully. "General Sheridan selects his aids-de-camp where he will, and last month you thought it a compliment to the regiment and to my troop. Our guest, Miss Arnold, is in no condition to travel alone," added Captain Sumter gravely. "My wife and I desire to accompany her to Chicago."

The colonel bit his lip and bowed. "I see," said he. "Miss Arnold was very much shaken by what happened after she got home?"

"Rather by what happened before she got home," was the calm yet suggestive reply.

"Captain Sumter," said he, flushing angrily, for no one of his officers held he in higher esteem, "your attitude is that of opposition, if not of rebuke, to the official acts of the post commander."

"Then let me disclaim at once the faintest disrespect, Colonel Button, but—as Mr. Lanier's troop commander and personal friend, I beg leave to say that, so far as I know, his offense is one which his comrades have often committed without rebuke."

"Which simply goes to show, sir," responded the colonel, with glittering eyes, "that you do not know the twentieth part of his offense."

"If that be true, Colonel Button, of course I cannot think of going. I withdraw my application." And, turning slowly, he left the office.

Instead of carrying three enlisted men present as "casually at post," the "return" of Troop C had but two. Trooper Rawdon, whose horse, horse equipments and field kit were safely stored in the troop stables since noon the previous day, was himself accounted for nowhere. In view of the fact that he had not been seen and could not be found there was nothing remarkable about that. With the morning report book, however, there was handed in a copy of an order duly submitted by Corporal Watts to Snaffle's first sergeant, and by him to his captain, which read in part as follows:

3. On arriving with his detachment at Fort Cushing and in compliance with the telegraphic instructions from department headquarters Trooper G. P. Rawdon, Troop L, —th cavalry, is granted thirty days' furlough, at the expiration of which he will report to the commanding officer of Fort Cushing for transportation to his proper station.

Just as the paymaster predicted, the wintry storm broke with the early afternoon. A genuine blizzard came shrieking down from the mountain pass to the northwest. Veteran first sergeants told off a stout squad in each troop and sent them with a sack load of rations to re-enforce the stable sergeant and grooms, there to stay to feed, guard and water the horses.

But the telegraph wires went with the first hour. The stage, of course, couldn't be helped to return from town, and, so far as getting news from the surrounding universe was concerned, Fort Cushing might as well have been in Nova Zembla. And the Sumters, three, with Miriam Arnold, had set forth at noon, intending to intercept the eastbound express, and the colonel's spirit was raging in sympathy with the storm and in spite of his wife, for some one had started a tale that Sumter and his household had ostentatiously called upon Robert Ray Lanier, in close arrest, in utter disfavor and inferential disgrace.

Now, while an officer in arrest may not quit his quarters under seven days and may not even thereafter visit his brother officers unless authorized, there is no regulation prohibiting other officers or their households visiting him. Nevertheless, they who publicly do so lay themselves liable to the imputation of sympathizing with the accused at the expense of the accuser.

And so resolved Colonel Button, a brave soldier, a gentleman at heart, a kind if crotchety commander and a lenient man rather than a disciplinarian. A vain man was Button, and dearly he loved the adulation of his comrades, high or low. Veteran Irish sergeants knew well how to reach the soft side of "the old man." Astute troop commanders, like Snaffle, saved themselves many a deserved wigging by judicious use of blarney. Sterling, straightforward men, like Major Stannard, like Sumter, Raymond and Truscott, of his captains—men who could not fawn and would not flatter—were never Button's intimates.

Button believed it of Sumter that he and his on the way to the railway station went in and condoled with Bob Lanier and doubtless vituperated him, the commander, when in point of fact no one of their number had seen or spoken with Bob.

Then came the storm and then a Sunday and Monday in which no man went either way between the fort and town. And then a third in which the gale went down and the garrison dug itself out.

It was barely 9 o'clock. Guard mounting, the first held since Saturday, was just over. The morning reports, the first rendered since Saturday, were just in, and the staff and company officers for the first time since Saturday were beginning to gather at headquarters and to compare notes. All had much to tell. Stannard's wood pile, Snaffle's storm shed and Barker's cow had blown away. Somebody had just reported Sumter's north dormer window "torn out by the roots," which moved Button to say to Sumter, who had returned:

"I hope your quarters sustained no damage in your absence."

"I do not know, sir. I came direct to the office to report."

"Ah, true. Your household started before the storm."

"Only started, sir. They went no farther than the surgeon's quarters, where we learned the train was six hours late. I had—business—in town, and went on. They remained."

"Then the ladies have not gone east?"

"Neither they nor any one else since early Saturday morning. The road is blocked."

"The paymaster too? He went in right after luncheon."

"I cannot say, sir."

The captain withdrew.

"Can I have a sergeant and twenty men at once, sir, armed and mounted?" cried Quartermaster Horton, hurrying in. "The ambulance with the paymaster never reached town."

"Order them out at once, Mr. Barker," was Button's instant answer, turning to his adjutant, who went out like a shot. "What time did they start?"

"About 2, Saturday afternoon. It was blowing a gale then and the snow so thick we lost sight of them within a hundred yards. Major Scott declined an escort; said he and the clerk and the two men inside were more than enough. He had only $3,000 left and thought that too little to tempt anybody."

The silence in the office was oppressive.

"How did you learn they hadn't reached town?" demanded Button.

"Sergeant Fitzroy just came out. He'd been in there with Sergeant Stowell to help find Rawdon, he said. Major Scott had a section engaged in the Pullman for Omaha, and Fitzroy says he never claimed it—says he searched every stable for the ambulance, but there was no sign of it, and he says there was a gang of half a dozen toughs that had been hanging about town for a week, and they've cleared out. I'd like to go and get into riding rig, sir."

"Go, and I'll have a troop out after you if need be." Then, turning to his adjutant, "Barker, have Sergeant Fitzroy sent for at once."

CHAPTER III.

ANOTHER moment and a trig, well groomed soldier, florid faced, muscular, yet burly in build, stepped briskly in and "stood attention." His right eye and cheek were still heavily bruised and discolored. His nose was somewhat swollen.

"How did you happen to be in town, sergeant?" was the abrupt demand.

Fitzroy colored to the brows, but the answer was prompt:

"I understood the colonel to say 'find him,' referring to Trooper Rawdon, Friday night, and I went in Saturday morning thinking to help. Then we couldn't get back, sir."

"My order was to the sergeant of the guard, not to you," interposed Button curtly.

"Sergeant Stowell was looking for a man in uniform, sir, and had never seen Rawdon except in trooper dress and would never perhaps have known him."

"Then how should you?" was the sharp query.

Fitzroy started. "I had known him longer, sir, and much better. I had occasion to reprimand him once or twice and knew him and his—pals, if the colonel will pardon me—as none of the others knew him. There was that young civilian Lowndes that went along with us and got into trouble, and—there were others. In fact, if the colonel will pardon me again, sir, I do not hold a high opinion of Trooper Rawdon, and"—

"No more of that, sir," broke in the colonel angrily, "unless you are ready to prove your words."

"Give me two days and half a chance, Colonel Button," was the confident answer, "and I'll show he had something to do with the paymaster's accident or—whatever it was!"

As Captain Sumter said, the ladies had gone no farther than the surgeon's quarters that memorable Saturday, and with Sumter's full consent they had not gone even that far. Friday afternoon he had wired his protest to the father of Miriam Arnold, and with startling emphasis the reply had come early Saturday morning, "I repeat that I desire my daughter to return at once." The tone was abrupt if telegrams can be said to have either tone or manner, but that wire settled the matter. Miriam said she must obey, and nothing short of Dr. Larrabee, senior surgeon of the post, had prevailed against her decision. He himself had met the covered vehicle at his gate and had insisted on their alighting. "Your train is half a day late," said he. "You'll be wiser waiting here than at the frowsy station. Besides, I wish to see this young woman again." So saying he fairly lifted Miss Arnold from the fur robed depths of the dark interior and deposited her on the wind swept path. "Run in," said he, then similarly aided Mrs. and Miss Sumter.

Less than half an hour the trio spent under the doctor's hospitable roof. Before 2 o'clock the wind had increased to a gale. The snow was driving swift and hard. "I checked you just in time," said he. "There'll be no train either way this night." And so by 2 o'clock and just as the paymaster was driving away down the front of officers' row Mrs. and Miss Sumter, with Miss Arnold, escorted by the two medical officers, were struggling across the open space between the surgeon's house and the rear fence of the long line and presently entering the back gate at Sumter's.

The Most Industrious Store in Newark---The City of Industry

Fifty-Second Anniversary Celebration and Sale

Hahne & Co. As An Economical Factor

1858-1910

Few people, unless intimately acquainted with the doings of this establishment, can appreciate its importance to the community as an economical factor. Perhaps no other industry or institution in Newark employs so many full-time workers. Perhaps no other has so many high-salaried people on its rolls. In no other institution in Newark is so much done that is free to the public. We are almost constantly providing free art for the populace. Within the year paintings aggregating in value close to $100,000 have been exhibited here, free of charge, and during the year we have given no less than eighty-two free band concerts with twenty-five skilled musicians, rendering classical music to the delight of audiences averaging one thousand—eighty-two thousand people entertained without cost. No less than twenty other concerts, vocal and instrumental, were given during the year, all without admission being charged.

More than fifty thousand gifts are given out every Christmas time to the little folks who come to see Santa Claus.

Our extensive advertising, kept up thruout the year, has been the life-blood of many a newspaper and has contributed largely to their success, making it possible for them to supply the news cheaply to the public. In a hundred ways we effect great economies for the public, saving you from trashy goods, saving you time, saving you money.

It would be quite impossible to handle anything like the quantities of goods we do did we not have direct sources of supply, if we were not able to buy without stint at opportune times, if we did not generously advertise. Nor could we effect these economies were we not linked with thirty other great stores in as many cities in the United States. Dividing as we do some of our larger purchases with these other establishments we secure for you goods at lower prices than would be possible working single handed, bearing all the expense of a powerful globe-circling organization. Furthermore, we make it possible to bring to Newark goods of the highest character, such as cannot be handled successfully by small concerns.

We are saving money for the people every day in the year, and just now more than ever, while there is in progress the biggest trade event of the year.

After last night's meeting refreshments were served.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Brown, of Newark, have returned home after a visit of several days in this city.

PENNS. TERMINAL WILL SOON BE OPENED

The new Pennsylvania station is so large that it is difficult for a person standing within it and looking about him to gain an adequate idea of its size. It is still less easy to give a descriptive notion of its largeness.

To say that it is the largest building of its sort does not do it justice in point of structure in the world, it is at least the largest, by all accounts ever erected at one time, without intervals, and on a single contract.

It covers what in many districts would be considered a good-sized farm. The area sheltered by its roof totals eight acres of the much-sought soil of old Manhattan. There now stands one building where formerly some 500 city structures, some of them considerable in size, formerly stood.

So much for area. If the hugeness of the pile may be measured by its cost, the fact that the building, apart from the real estate that it covers, was erected at an expense of $12,000,000 may give some idea of its magnitude. The labor of erecting it went on for six years.

Yet in spite of its dimensions the building does not give an adequate suggestion of its size. There is too much to be seen for all to be seen and realized at once. Moreover, the plan of the place is not devised so as to make size its main impression on the beholder. The station is too large to need to parade its magnitude.

Moreover, the size of it is no greater than what is necessary. Instead of being merely a building of magnificent spaces and distances, the station is a very full building. Its entrances, its waiting rooms, its dining rooms, its train platforms, carriage ways, baggage rooms and concourse; its kitchens, shops and stands; these would seem enough in themselves to fill the vast space. Yet in addition the station is an office building, containing acre upon acre of office space housing the general offices of the great railroad system.

The location of this city under one roof is an area bounded by Seventh and Eighth avenues and by Thirty-first and Thirty-third streets. The dimensions of this great rectangle are 430 feet by 784 feet. The lesser frontage is on the avenues and the greater is on the streets. The general view of the building covering all this ground can, owing to the masses of surrounding buildings, be had only from high points in the vicinity. This is the state of things natural in a much-built-up city, where great surrounding spaces and wide approaches are out of the question.

Seen from a sufficient height, the building is discovered to be laid out on a seemingly simple plan. Around the four sides extends a low building of more or less the same classic lines familiar in the public structures at Washington. The facades are lined with pillars, and in part with pilasters, so as to give an impression of one-story height. The number of actual stories is four.

This building is not deep. It is scarcely more than a thick wall enclosing the interior. In this heart of the station building are the most important portions of the structure. Straight across the middle runs the long, high superstructure of the waiting room. West of it is seen the curved roof of the train shed, with its skylights.

The greater part of the whole structure rises to an even height of seventy-six feet. The more elevated central structure bearing the roof of the waiting room rises to 150 feet. The arched roof of the train shed rises slightly higher than the top of the greater part of the structure.

The Seventh avenue facade may be considered the main front of the building. It is distinguished by a Doric colonade. Each Doric column is four and one-half feet in diameter and thirty-five feet high. A row of thirty of these columns screens the entire front facing Seventh avenue. At either end of the Seventh avenue frontage driveway entrances give admittance to a carriageway which leads behind the columns and downward into the lower level of the station.

Return From Long Auto Trip.

Drs. F. F. and N. S. Wilcox, of No. 8 Crescent avenue, have returned from a three weeks' automobile trip to Catskill, N. Y., Lake Erie and Meadville, Pa. The route covered more than 1,400 miles and it was made in the doctor's Buick without a mishap.

MR. FOWLER DECLARES IT IS A 'CONSPIRACY'

Another letter addressed "To every Republican in the Fifth Congressional District," charging United States Senator Kean and State Treasurer Voorhees with having entered into a conspiracy with Speaker Cannon to defeat him, has been prepared and will be mailed to voters throughout the district under the signature of Representative Charles N. Fowler.

The letter is of the same variety as that attacking Speaker Cannon issued some time ago, and the more recent one attacking Senator Kean and the Republican organization. It reads:

"My Dear Sir—You will have the opportunity next Tuesday, the 13th, between the hours of 1 and 9, to declare by your ballot whether you are for the things for which Theodore Roosevelt stands, or, are for the things for which Joseph G. Cannon stands.

"By every State heard from so far, California, Idaho, Kansas, Nebraska, Iowa, the Dakotas and Minnesota, Cannon has been repudiated; his particular henchmen have been defeated everywhere and now President Taft has thrown him overboard.

"In the Fifth District of New Jersey Cannon has taken his last stand and here entered into a conspiracy with John Kean and Daniel S. Voorhees to defeat a Republican Congressman and not to elect one. And yet they claim to be loyal Republicans!

"The eyes of the whole country are now rivited upon this district because your representative had the courage to lead the fight against Cannon and Aldrich and what they represent; and now your condemnation of these two men is awaited with expectant interest because they are universally regarded as enemies of the people.

Question is Moral One.

"The question is distinctly a moral one though of a political character.

"If you wish to destroy political feudalism in this country and wipe out boss rule, its foundation principle; if you wish to destroy political slavery and to establish personal liberty and true representative government, you now have an opportunity to do so.

"I sincerely hope that you will attend the primary on Tuesday afternoon and do your part to protect New Jersey from the blight, the shame, the stigma that must necessarily fasten itself upon this district from a vote of approval of Joseph G. Cannon.

"His repudiation by an overwelming majority is expected. Let us make the victory a signal one.

"Very truly yours,
"CHARLES N. FOWLER."

"'A declaration of principles, must from its very nature, be general in form, even as this is; but the questions involved and touched upon are of vital interest, in my opinion to the voters of Plainfield."

Mr. Moy is a member of the bar and has practised in this city since 1898. He is a native of Brooklyn, N. Y., and for twenty years practised pharmacy. He is vice-chairman of the Republican City Committee and occupies a similar office in the Plainfield Protective Association. Besides being president of the Mono Investment Company and being identified with other business interests, he is president of the board of trustees of the Park Avenue Baptist church; past worshipful master of Anchor lodge, F. & A. M. For many years he has taken an active interest in political affairs and is affiliated with that wing of the party known as the "progressives." He has resided here for twenty-three years.

Mr. Moy will make an address tonight at the Y. M. C. A. auditorium at 8 o'clock on "municipal affairs." Former Mayor L. V. F. Randolph will preside.

Funeral of Mrs. B. C. Clayton.

The funeral service of Mrs. Britton C. Clayton, mother of Mrs. David S. Dunavan, of this city, was held from her late home, 746 Woodland avenue, yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock, and was largely attended by relatives and friends. There were also many beautiful floral tributes. Rev. C. M. Anderson, pastor of the First M. E. church, of which Mrs. Clayton was a member, officiated. The burial was in Freehold, the former home of Mrs. Clayton.

SEEKING TWO OFFICES; FOWLER'S PRECEDENT

The candidacy of Congressman Fowler for Congressman and United States Senator at the same time, is exciting general interest among the politicians of the State.

The terms of both offices commence March 4, 1911, and one man cannot fill both places.

Mr. Fowler originally announced his candidacy for re-election to Congress. Thereafter, having received the endorsement of the progressive wing of the Republicans for United States Senator, he filed a petition for that office, with a certificate of acceptance in this language:

"Certificate of Acceptance of Endorsement by the Voters of the Republican Party for United States Senator.

"I hereby certify that I am qualified for the office of United States Senator mentioned in the foregoing petition and that I consent to stand as a candidate for the endorsement by the voters of the Republican party as their preference for United States Senator at the ensuing primary election.

"CHARLES N. FOWLER,
"618 Salem avenue,
Elizabeth, N. J.

1261 signers.
Filed Aug. 23, 1910.
S. D. Dickinson,
Secretary of State.

It was generally supposed that the filing of the acceptance of the Senatorial nomination, meant a withdrawal from the Congressional race, and newspapers generally took this view.

But Mr. Fowler thereupon came out with a statement asserting his continued candidacy for Congress, justifying the double candidacy on the ground that Senators have frequently been elected from among the Congressmen. This is undoubtedly true, but as the politicians point out, the election to the Senate in such cases, has been a thing by itself, the candidacy not arising until after the election to Congress was over.

Congressman Fowler undoubtedly enjoys the distinction of being the first candidate in American politics to go before the people, asking to be endorsed for two prominent inconsistent offices at the same time, with the expressed purpose in advance of discarding the lesser office if chosen for the greater.

Shou'd he win out, it would require a special primary election, and thereafter a special election at the pools to fill the Congressional vacancy.

Conservtive Republicans, neither for nor against Mr. Fowler as a personal proposition, are taking the position that as he has accepted the Senatorial nomination, and expressed a purpose to take that if he can get it, he should be held to that in the primary, as a vote for him for Congress is liable to mean a vote for a vacancy, with its atendant trouble and expense.

FASHION'S LATEST. THE HOBBLE SKIRT.

For all the fun that has been made of hobble skirts, and for all the fact that they are soon to vanish in the influx of empire gowns, for the rest of the summer and part of the fall they are still with us, and it behooves us still to observe the different forms which the abhorred "shackle" may take.

There is the broad tucked flounce, cut straight and with the full skirt gathered into it. Sometimes there is a straight vertical band down the front of the skirt also, reaching from the belt to the "hobble."

Then there is the stitched band into which the skirt is gathered, with double rows of buttons down its five or six lines of stitching.

Shirring, moreover, is in favor and makes the very easiest way of gaining the shackle effect. Two or three rows are all that are necessary, and the style is very good on a thin wash gown.

Quilling, ruching and fringing all come in for their share of work as shackle producers. They are stitched below the knees, so as to give the effect without the discomfort, and are, therefore, hailed by the maiden with the athletic stride.

Finally, there is the absolutely plain, straight flounce, falling from the gathered skirt, with only a row of silk or soutache braid to mark the limits of the "hobble ruffle," as it has been called, though, of course, it is not really a ruffle at all.

Pastor Will Return Saturday.

Rev. John Y. Broek, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, will return Saturday from his summer vacation spent at his former home, Grand Rapids, Mich., and will occupy his pulpit on Sunday morning and night. The morning topic will be "Glad to Go to Church," and special reference will be made to the improvements and decorations of the church. In the evening the topic will be "The Preacher's Experience."

A DARK OUTLOOK.

When the Sky Will Be Obscured by a Cloud of Airships.

The airship means not the gain but the irretrievable loss of the sky—the trivial physical conquest, indeed, but the tragical spiritual loss.

In the few years that remain before aviation is an accomplished commonplace of our lives man is literally looking his last on the sky. All too soon it will be impossible even for a rich man to enjoy the peace which is mine this afternoon as in the heart of an old wood I lie upon the fern and contemplate the mystery of the boundless sky. Soon that flawless infinite will be feverishly alive to ear and eye with all the temporal traffic of the world, all the turmoil and vulgarity of any other earthly thoroughfare. Solitude will be utterly and forever destroyed, and wearied town tired folk that had been wont to flee into the country to rest their eyes and feed their nerves on tranquil spaces may as well remain in the city and will least of all turn their eyes on the sky, which will then be as suggestive of peace as Broadway at noontide.

All the old peace and prayer of the world will have gone. The air, once so pure and tranquil, will be filled with the sound of gongs, the flash of signals and undreamed of forms of noise and colors. Man will have placed a cloud of gigantic gnats between him and the infinite, and, howsoever high he may ascend in the swiftest airship, never will he find again the same sky that blessed him with its blue peace, its beautiful old dreams of better worlds and fantastic fairy isles and seas and laid the consoling hand of the eternal upon his troubled human heart.—Richard Le Gallienne in Smart Set.

BURBANK THE GRAFTER.

A Number of Long Felt Wants With Which He Might Wrestle.

Luther Burbank, the wizard of plant life, has, it seems, perfected a new poppy of titanic dimensions and brilliantly variegated coloring, together with a primrose of vestal whiteness five inches in diameter. He has proved that he can do almost anything with plants and flowers. It has been suggested that he might devote his energies to producing a bachelor's button that can be sewed on so that it won't come off and a sagebrush to go with the cockscomb. But there are a great many other horticultural needs to which he ought to devote his attentions. Some persons are urging Burbank to give them a cantaloupe without a hole in the middle, raspberries and blackberries without seeds and odorless onions.

Other folk want Burbank to devise a mushroom that will yield a superior grade of mush, and they hope that by crossing lemons and watermelons a plant may be evolved that will contain lemonade, just as some varieties of cactus are reservoirs of water. They fully expect that by grafting apples on pine trees he can produce pineapples, and they look to him with confidence to get prunes by properly pruning the hedges. But, while all of us wish Burbank would give us the best kind of thyme, some people wish the thyme were shorter, and others want it longer. Others object to Burbank's activities in general on the ground that he is a grafter. It is impossible to please every one.—Philadelphia Ledger.

School Children and Swimming.

Leaders in the Young Men's Christian association of Chicago have started a movement that they hope will result in every boy and girl in the public schools learning to swim. They have offered through one of the branch associations to teach all the pupils in eight north side schools how to take care of themselves in the water. From this beginning it is expected that the instruction will be extended to all schools. "The need for instruction in swimming is demonstrated by the fact that over 4,000 men and boys in the United States and Canada are accidentally drowned each year, and the records show that most of these persons could not swim," says one of the Young Men's Christian association teachers.

In Changing Manhattan.

On a site in the Wall street district a record has just been made in the tearing down of a skyscraper of the older class. In Forty-second street the lately massive Grand Central station is melting away almost like a house of snow under a hot sun. In midcity a ten story business house of a square block has reached exterior completion in two-thirds of a year. These are some of the marvels of the transformation period in New York. Between the various rapidities of destruction and construction old residents feel now and again like strangers in a strange town. Yet there are things that linger. The cross-town horse car and the uncompleted public library are still faithful to tradition.—New York World.

The Queen Mother's Crown.

One of the many matters of detail that King George will have to settle will be the style of the crown to be worn by the queen mother. The crown she used at the coronation was broken up almost immediately after the ceremony for the very simple reason that the bulk of the diamonds of which it was composed were only hired for that purpose. The queen's crown, reserved with the regalia and made for Mary of Modena, is not at all liked to be taken into use, and the small diamond crown which Queen Victoria had made at her own expense was her private property. By her will she devised it as an heirloom to belong to the queen consort for the time being.

MR. MOY GIVES HIS VIEWS

Mayoralty Candidate Talks to Voters at a Rally on Public Affairs.

NO FAVORITES FOR HIM.

He Opposes Extravagance in Local Government—Mr. Randolph Acts as Chairman of the Meeting.

Progressive Republicans and some Democrats gathered last night at the Y. M. C. A. auditorium to hear George W. V. Moy, as a candidate for the Republican mayoralty nomination, discuss "Municipal Affairs." Mr. Moy rapped the administration, and had something to say about the water question, the gas tank nuisance, extravagance, taxation, favoritism, the policy of an official drawing both a salary and fees and many other incidental matters in city affairs. Former Mayor L. V. F. Randolph acted as chairman of the meeting and made some remarks about municipal government.

In advocating municipal control and operation of the water supply, Mr. Moy said:

"Some reasons are advanced against municipal ownership. Somebody says bonds-debts; we have enough of bonds and enough of debts, which I grant you, but let us not forget that water and a water plant is not like sewers and brick pavements, which furnish no monetary return. The sale of water must be a paying proposition, if not, why should this company be so anxious to continue its hold upon it. Do you think that it is for love of Plainfield, a consideration for the health and happiness of yourself and your family, or does it strike you that they may be making money. If a private corporation can make money, the city may also make money at the same rate, or it may sell the water for a less rate. In either case it is to our advantage to own and control the supply. The next objection is graft, the common cry being that no municipality can successfully handle business of this nature. My answer to that is, that the city, that is the voters, have it in their power, under their control, to place in office men who will see to it that honest men are employed to look after the interests and welfare of the city equally as well as would the servants of a private corporation.

"Another resource of the city is our streets, now apparently dedicated and perpetuated to the health, happiness and general welfare of the Public Service Corporation. I don't think we have good trolley service, and I don't think we have good trolley cars, and I don't think we have particularly good electric lights. The city pays for full service and should have full service; and I feel that it would be quite refreshing to see a new car on our strictly city lines.

"Another resource of every city is light and air. We have the biggest and the reddest skyscraper, and of steel construction at that, for its purpose of any city of its size in New Jersey. It may be that it wasn't possible to prevent its erection, although I am free to confess that I regard it as a public nuisance, and if such should prove to be the law it would be subject to removal. I refer to the gas tank. Strong language might be used in handling this subject. But perhaps I have said enough to make myself clear to you. Spite fences we don't want—I saw one yesterday on I think Johnson avenue twelve or fourteen feet high of solid board construction, and certainly within three feet of the line of the neighboring property. Why the erection of such a fence should have been permitted, or why it should have been allowed to remain after it was erected is a question that I am not prepared to answer, I don't know.

"The subject of extravagance requires very delicate handling. Have there been any, if so what are they? Does it seem reasonable that the tax rate should have advanced 42 points within twelve years from 252 in 1897 to 336 in 1909. Does it appeal to you as good business for the city to spend $30,000 to house and try its drunk and disorderly citizens and the police who arrest them, and let all the other city officials be housed in make-shift quarters. If we needed anything it was a City Hall, to my mind, which with a moderately reasonable increase in outlay would have provided quarters for the Mayor, the Common Council, the District Court, the City Clerk Street Commissioner, City Collector, Overseer of the Poor, Board of Health, Police, Jail, etc. I raise the question as a fair question and leave to you to answer. A great many citizens, perhaps the majority, favored the brick pavement, it cost I think, approximately, $30,000. If washed daily it is cleaner than macadam, but unless this is done it is really more dusty than macadam; it is certainly

CARED FOR MORE THAN 2000 CHILDREN

At a special meeting of the City Union of the King's Daughters held at the Charity Organization Aid rooms, Wednesday, annual reports of the baby camp and day nursery work were received. The camp on the mohntains was closed on September 1. The reports showed that 2,048 children were received at the camp from June 27 to August 29, and in nearly every case an improvement was noticed.

The union desires to thank its many friends for contributions of money and useful articles, including foodstuff. It was reported that the city nurse made sixty-nine visits to the camp. Anyone in need of the services of the nurse are requested to notify Mrs. Anna M. Most or the Y. W. C. A. The day nursery work is now in full swing again under the direction of Mrs. Bird, the matron.

SPECIAL GOLF TOURNEY STARTS SEPTEMBER 17

Stuart H. Patterson has presented a cup for competition at the Plainfield Country Club, to be known as the "Swatfest or Elimination Contest," which should interest every golfer of the club. The competition is scheduled for Saturday, September 17. It will be for both classes, each player receiving two-thirds of his regular handicap, strokes to be taken at holes as indicated on "Table of Odds," and upon turning in score cards at the end of the round a certain number of players will be dropped at each hole according to the number of entries.

For example, if nineteen players are entered one player will be dropped at each hode, namely, the player having the highest score on the first hole after applying his handicap will be dropped. The same operation will be repeated at the second hole for the eighteen men remaining in the contest, and so on at each hole so that only one player will remain after playing the 18th, which player shall be declared the winner.

If twenty-two players are entered, two players will be dropped at the first three holes and one player thereafter, if should there be thirty-eight players, three will be dropped at the first hole and two at all other holes. In case of a tie at any hole the score at the suceeding hole or holes will determine the winner of the hole upon which there is a tie. For example, a player with a 4 at the first hole, 5 at the second and 4 at the third, would win over a player with 4 at the first, 5 at the second and 5 at the third. In order to make this contest successful all members must return score cards irrespective whether cards are complete or not, or whether round is finished, as any player's card may change the result on some hole for other players competing for the entire round. A score sheet will be posted at the clubhouse showing the net score of each player and the hole at which he dropped out. In the event of a tie at the 18th hole the two tied shall continue until one is eliminated.

On the following Saturday, September 24, play for the club championship begins with a qualifying round at 18 holes, medal play, the first sixteen to compete in match play for the championship, and the second sixteen at 18 holes, match play, handicap, for a special prize. There will also be a prize for the winner of the defeated eight in the first sixteen. In past years a great many players have not entered for the championship event on the ground that they thought they had no chance, but this year with the second sixteen to be played off on a handicap basis there should be a chance for even the high handicap player. Therefore, every golfer is urged to read the condition carefully and if possible enter the event.

Tomorrow's event at the club will be an 18-hole handicap, with prizes for both Classes A and B.

Linen Shower for Miss Clark.

Miss Nettie Bauersachs, of Grandview avenue, gave a linen shower at her home, last night, in honor of Miss Lucetta Clark, also of Grandview avenue, whose marriage to Russell Harden, of the borough, will take place in the near future. There were a large number of friends present and Miss Clark was generously remembered. Both Miss Clark and Mr. Harden are active members of Grace M. E. church and they have a host of friends.

The amount involved was $60, and costs were added to the judgment. The stone company was represented by Martin B. Stutsman.

BURLINGTON WINS GAME

Local Elks Royally Entertained by Their Brothers in South Jersey.

TWO BANQUETS ARE ENJOYED.

Blame for Loss of Game Laid to Chowder and Thirteen Errors—Locals Couldn't Bat.

Plainfield Elks returned from a trip to Burlington last night, after one of the most pleasant trips to the southern Jersey town they have ever had. Of course, they went there to play baseball, but that was merely an incident. The ball game was won by the Burlingtonites by a score of 6 to 2.

The local team played good ball up to the time MacNaughton tried to throw the ball over the fence with two men on the bags. That settled it, and Mac declares he will never play again. His resolution is all wrong! Even the best of them will err at times. Didn't Merkle make a mistake which cost the Giants the pennant in the National league?

Well, this story has nothing to do with Merkle or the Giants, but it will serve to show that Burlington went some when it put up two high-class feeds and besides entertained the local boys with some amusing vaudeville stunts. When the train pulled out of the station yesterday morning the special car contained at least forty of the locals, all bent upon having a good time. They had it. On their arrival at Burlington a delegation of the Burlington men met them at the station with coaches and automobiles and accompanied them to the club rooms. After the usual ablutions following a train ride the boys were conducted to the hall prepared for their reception and sat down to a repast which the Burlington men called "a lunch", but which our fellows designated as a "repast."

Some mention has been made since their return of a clam chowder. It was stated positively by the men that this particular chowder never had its equal in this State. In fact, it was so good that most of the Plainfielders absorbed double portions of it. Somehow or another the satisfaction expressed by the consumers of this particular chowder had the effect of putting ginger into the Burlington baseball players and taking it out of the locals. Thirteen errors made by our team must be charged to chowder.

But then, there is another sad tale to relate—our fellows couldn't hit the ball. And there you are!

PATROLMEN'S CONVENTION ELECTS J. J. BEGGANS AGAIN.

The annual convention of the Patrolmen's Benevolent Association, which is in session at Atlantic City, declared itself in favor of John J. Beggans, of Jersey City, for president of the organization for another year, yesterday. Opposed to Mr. Beggans was James O'Brien, of Elizabeth, who had a numerous following. Beggans was elected by a vote of 65 to 24. Ledmond Latchoff, of Passaic, was elected vice-president.

Five of the local patrolmen, Messler, Flynn, Culver and two others represented the Plainfield department. Mayor Wittpenn, of Jersey City, and Mayor Stoy, of Atlantic City, addressed the assembled patrolmen.

They are Friends Again.

At the Dunellen Council meeting on Wednesday night, Mayor Sanford announced that he had received a letter from Wilson Frederick withdrawing his aspersions on the mayor and that his Honor accepted the apology in the spirit in which it was made. Mr. Frederick is alleged to have stated that ever since Mr. Sanford had been mayor he had been selling out the borough.

Returned from Canoe Trip.

Gardner Bristol and Frank Clarke have returned from a trip through the lakes of Maine with Professor Henry R. Hubbard, of the Plainfield High School faculty. The entire trip was made in canoes and the party slept at night in a tent, which was pitched in suitable places. John Zerega, also of this city, was a member of the party, but has not come back yet.

GARWOOD HEARS RUNYON

Enthusiastic Reception For Candidate For Congressional Honor.

TWO ASSEMBLYMEN SPEAK.

Messrs. Schwartz and Thompson Make Addresses—The Judge to Speak at Reform Hall Tomorrow Night.

Garwood's Republican voters gave Judge William N. Runyon, candidate for the congressional nomination, a hearty welcome last night when he appeared at Becker's auditorium to address them. The hall was filled and the audience was an enthusiastic one. Assemblymen Augustus W. Schwartz, of Elizabeth, and Lloyd Thompson, of Westfield, candidates for renomination, also spoke briefly.

Judge Runyon in the course of his speech said that if the voters saw fit to nominate and elect him, he would be faithful to his trust and that he would constantly work for the fulfillment of every pledge made by the Republican party. He declared amid cheers that he would always be found supporting the policies of President Taft. He pledged himself to serve the people, having in mind at all times their best interests and the welfare of the country.

Both Schwartz and Thompson told what had been accomplished at the last Legislature and how they had worked and voted for measures framed for the common good. Following the meeting the voters gathered about Judge Runyon to pledge their support at the primaries on Tuesday.

Tonight Judge Runyon speaks at Roselle Park and tomorrow night he will make the chief address at the Republican mass meeting to be held at Reform Hall, West Second street and Central avenue. The chairman for the local rally has not been announced.

WANTS $10,000 DAMAGES

Thorn Seeks to Recover For Injuries Received in Auto-Cycle Collision.

SUSTAINED MANY BRUISES.

Accident Happened Last May—Alleged That Hansen Ran Away From Scene After Running Down Thorn.

Harvey R. Thorn, of East Second street, through his counsel, Judge William Newcorn, has instituted a suit for $10,000 damages against Harold Hansen, of West Front street, seeking to recover for injuries received on May 13, last, when he claims he was run down by the defendant in his automobile while he was riding his motorcycle. The accident occurred at East Front and Richmond streets in the early part of the evening. Thorn was thrown a distance of several feet from his motorcycle, and was picked up in what was thought to be a dying condition and taken to his home where he lay in a serious condition for several weeks.

Mr. Hansen, who was driving his machine, it is alleged, did not stop to inquire into the facts of the accident or render any assitance to Mr. Thorn, but continued on to his home. It was several hours later when the police learned that it was Mr. Hansen who was implicated in the accident. When first questioned about the affair, the defendant, it is alleged, denied that he had figured in any accident, or in fact that he had had his machine out that evening. Later, the police secured additional evidence to convince them that Mr. Hansen was the man wanted and he finally admitted the fact.

Mr. Thorn's injuries were of a serious nature. He sustained several fractured ribs, and there were general bruises and contusions over his entire body. He was confined to his home for nearly two months, during which time it is alleged he was under the constant care and attention of his physician, Dr. T. S. Davis.

It is alleged that Mr. Hansen violated one of the most important provisions of the State automobile law, which specifically states that in case of an accident of this character the parties involved must bring their machine to a full stop and furnish all necessary information, including the names of the occupants of the car. A heavy penalty is provided for violations of this law.

Mr. Hansen later appeared before J. B. R. Smith State superintendent of motor vehicles. His automobile license, which had been taken away from him, was returned. Owing to a heavy court calendar, the case will probably not be tried before the January term of the Supreme Court.

EIGHTY VOLUNTEERS TO HELP AT PRIMARIES

As a result of a brief announcement in yesterday's local papers, more than eighty voters responded to the call for volunteer workers for Judge Runyon for the Republican primaries on Tuesday. They assembled at the Republican city committee headquarters last night and were all anxious to give their services freely to help the judge's candidacy.

City Chairman Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., explained to the volunteers what they could do at the election to help get out the vote for the judge. Men were assigned to each of the ten districts, and they promised to work from the time the polls were opened until they were closed. Today, Mr. Hetfield received many more offers of assistance. There is plenty of work for all who wish to help poll up a rousing big majority for the popular Plainfield candidate.

TWO GAMES ON THE OVAL TOMORROW

The two games at the Oval tomorrow afternoon are sure to be exciting ones from the start to the finish. The main attraction will be the second game between the Plainfield team and the strong aggregation from High Bridge, which is scheduled to start at four o'clock. The West End A. C. and the team from the Gesang and Turn Verein will settle a diamond dispute as the opener to the big contest. These teams have been playing the speediest kind of ball this year for their class and considerable rivalry has sprung up between them as to which is the better nine of the two. The question will be settled tomorrow afternoon.

High Bridge comes here with a bunch of lightning ball tossers and a record of only one defeat this season, and that one a 1-0 shut-out, Blackwell, who is considered to be one of the best yet most erratic pitchers in the State will be on the mound for the visitors. It is said that Blackwell is liable to strike out the majority of the batsmen one day and then the next day be slammed to all corners of the lot by the same team. The Plainfield nine, of course, is determined to make this a bad time for Mr. Blackwell, but that remains to be seen.

Ward, who has been doing such effective twirling for the locals of late, will be on the slab with his usual assortment of twisters and good control, when the first batters step up to the plate tomorrow afternoon. Nelson will be on the receiving end for the locals.

The teams will line up as follows:

High Bridge—Blackwell, p.; Titus, c.; Magan, 1b.; J. Walton, 2b; E. Walton, ss.; C. Walton, 3b.; J. Greenfield, rf.; Apgar, lf.; Blaine, cf.

Anderson—Clifford.

Mrs. Charlotte Anderson, of North Plainfield, and Charles Clifford, of Baltimore, both colored, were married last night by Rev. Dr. G. W. Baily at the home of the bride, 94 Manning avenue. S. D. Cary, a brother of the bride was best man, Mrs. J. D. Hampton, matron of honor, and Bessie L. Hampton, flower girl. A supper was served after the ceremony and the evening was spent in an informal way.

Linen Shower for Miss Lewis.

Miss Ida Lewis, of Grandview avenue, was given a linen shower, yesterday afternoon at the home of her sister, Mrs. Frank W. Jones, of Mountain avenue. Miss Lewis was generously remembered by a large number of friend s present. The event was planned in anticipation of her marriage to William S. Eddy, of New York city, which will take place on Wednesday, September 14.

Leaves the P. S. C.

George W. Pope, of New street, who has been employed in the electric department of the Public Service Corporation for several years, has tendered his resignation and on October 1 will take a position at The Men's Shop on Park avenue.

Small Fire in Cellar.

At 6:18 last night some charcoal in the cellar of Mrs. Thornton's hair dressing parlors, on East Fifth street, took fire. A still alarm was sent into fire headquarters and the blaze was quickly put out with two extinguishers.

Funeral Will Be Private.

Announcement is made that the funeral service of Francis deLacy Hyde, son of Elizabeth and the late Charles Hyde, will be held from the late home on Mountain avenue, and will be private.

HIGHWAYMEN SENTENCED

Jerolaman Gets Two and a Half and Wade One and a Half Years.

THEY WAIVED INDICTMENT.

Both Pleaded Guilty and Sentence Was Passed by Judge Case in Somerset County Court Today.

William Jerolaman and Frank Wade, who waylaid and attempted to rob Mr. and Mrs. John Witwroth, of New York, on Greenbrook road three weeks ago, were sentenced this morning by Judge Clarence E. Case in the Court of Special Ssessions at Somerville, after waiving the indictment of the grand jury and pleading guilty to the charges. Jerolman was given two years and a half in the State's prison and Wade received a sentence of one year and a half. They had each pleaded guilty to the charges of assault and attempted highway robbery.

The court decided that both men were equally involved in the crime, but as Jerolaman had fled and put the county to considerable expense, he was given an extra year in prison. They will be taken to the Trenton prison next week.

A. M. Beekman, the counsel for Jerolaman, made a plea for his client, alleging that Jerolman was not a desperate character when sober and that the highway robbery was resorted to by him when under the influence of liquor. Wade was not represented. He is a rough looking character and from his statements to the police it appeared that this was not his first experience in highway holdups. But the fact that he had submitted to arrest and had given the authorities very little trouble made the court lenient. The maximum penalty for this crime is a fine of $3,000 and twelve years at hard labor.

On the night of Saturday, August 20, Mr. and Mrs. John Witwroth, of New York city, were held up by these two men at the point of a gun on Greenbrook road. The police of the borough were notified by people living in that vicinity and when they arrived on the scene, Wade and Jerolaman were both taken into custody after giving battle. While on the way to the borough jail, Jerolaman gave Marshal Keller a shove throwing him from his bicycle. The policeman went sprawling. Jerolaman ran through a cornfield and escaped. He boarded a freight train on the Lehigh Valley R. R. and went to Deansboro, N. Y. He was located and brought back. Wade was given a hearing before Justice of the Peace Thomas H. Snape, of the borough, and pleaded not guilty. He was held for the grand jury. During the past week, both prisoners asked to have the indictment of the grand jury waived and be brought up for sentence, promising to plead guilty.

Funeral of Miss Rink

The funeral service of Miss Clarissa Rink, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Rink, of 966 West Fifth street, was held at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon, from the late home. There was a large attendance of relatives and friends, including many young people. There was also many beautiful floral tributes. Rev. C. S. Kemble, of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, of which Miss Rink, was a member, officiated. The burial was in Hillside cemetery.

Struck by Falling Pole.

Dennis O'Brien, a hackman, of 442 West Fourth street, was injured early this morning by a falling telephone pole, which struck him on South avenue, Fanwood. O'Brien was found by Marshal Logan at 2:30 o'clock, lying unconscious under the wreck of his vehicle. Apparently the hackman was not badly hurt, as he has been about the city this morning following his usual vocation.

Will Take an Extended Trip.

Juge and Mrs. William Newcorn will leave tonight for an extended vacation trip, which will also include a stop at Toledo, where Mr. Newcorn will attend the annual session of the Great Council, Improved Order of Red Men. Before their return, Mr. and Mrs. Newcorn will visit the Thousand Islands and enjoy a trip on the St. Lawrence.

Funeral of Mrs. Henry Miller.

The funeral service of Mrs. Caroline O. Miller, wife of Henry Miller, was held this afternoon from the home on Putnam avenue, and was private. Rev. Morgan Ashley, rector of St. Stephen's church, of which Mrs. Miller was a communicant, officiated. The burial was in Greenwood cemetery.

Little, But Oh My!

How important! There are plenty of low-priced Typewriter oils, but they are really dear at any price. Like Col. Sellers' Eye Water, the more you use the more you have to use. The carriage sticks—the wheels won't go round, the operator gets cross and work is delayed. Don't flood your machine with oil, only a very little is needed—but it must be the right kind. The LENOX kind absolutely will not gum, will make your machine run smooth and keep your temper unruffled—try it and be convinced—Price 20 cents a bottle, sent by mail anywhere upon receipt of price.

THE LION'S ROAR.

An Appalling Sound That Brings Terror to the Traveler.

Once in the lion country you learn the real reason why he is termed the king of beasts. He looks it. Besides, there is the terror he casts over all the brute creation about him. And as for terror, there is one feature of life in East Africa that the traveler never forgets—the lion's roaring. To me no other sound in nature is more awe inspiring, more appalling, especially if heard at really close range or among hills, where the echo resounds in its rolling double bass. Contrary to the common idea, lions do not confine their thunderous calls to the night only. Frequently in open daylight one may be startled by a sudden outburst. They are a noisy lot too. At night I have heard a band keep up the dire chorus for hours at a time, a blood curdling concert that brings to mind every tale, fanciful or true, of their daring, of their fierce rapacity and might. It seems still further to have an added dreadfulness when one is lying within the frail walls of a tent, with only its canvas between one and the formidable musician.

Listen now! There goes one booming in the distance, a roaring obligato that breaks into from six to a dozen calls. From the first to the fourth the volume usually increases; then it dies down. At very close quarters one hears the roar melt gradually into a purr, itself diminishing to a growling, discontented mumble that lasts for about half a minute, or there is the other sound, equally menacing—a soft and suggestive crunching noise, as though the beast had already settled to a grewsome meal. The lion's voice is mighty, as mighty as his strength. Forget his habits, his love of carrion and his daylight turn of cowardice and you have the impression of a king of beasts—a real royalty along the brute creation.—Everybody's Magazine.

BUILT ON DISCIPLINE.

Big Department Stores Are Managed Like an Army.

"This is like an army," the manager explained when I went to him to ascertain by what system he handled the big department store. "The assistant managers are the generals, the department heads the colonels, the floorwalkers majors, and so on down the line. Only matters which are out of the ordinary routine are brought to the commander in chief.

"The organization is built on discipline. Each individual knows what work he has to do, and if he fails the failure reacts directly upon him. Thus each in turn is responsible to the one above him until the responsibility reaches this office. In the final analysis I am responsible to the firm. If a girl ties a bundle wrong or there is a dispute with a customer I am directly responsible, although I have probably known nothing of the incident. I pass the actual administration of authority and responsibility right down the line until the person who is at fault feels it personally. Doubtless hundreds of things happen in this store every day of which I have no knowledge, and I don't need to know about them. So long as the man to whom I have delegated the authority delegates it in turn to some one who knows how to use it properly there is no reason why I should interfere.

"This is the way it should be. I should not consider that we had an effective system if it were otherwise. A system must be so perfectly organized and every man must know and live up to his responsibilities so sincerely that I could walk out of this office today and not return for six months."—Interview With Manager of New York Store in Bookkeeper.

Eating Away an Island.

Strength is not a thing usually connected with maidenhair fern, yet if its roots have not sufficient room they will break the pot in which the plant grows. Blades of grass will force the curbstones between which they spring up out of their place, and in a single night a crop of small mushrooms have lifted a large stone. Indeed, plants have been known to break the hardest rocks. The island of Aldabra, to the northwest of Madagascar, is becoming smaller and smaller through the action of the mangroves that grow along the foot of the cliffs. They eat their way into the rock in all directions, and into the gaps thus formed the waves force their way. In time they will probably reduce the island to pieces.—London Globe.

The Judge's Error.

"Then I can't naturalize you, my man."

"But I was born here, judge. I don't want to be naturalized. I'm after a bailiff's job."—Kansas City Journal.

AMONG OUR NEIGHBORS

WESTFIELD.

A novelty in Westfield politics is the organization of the Fourth Ward Democratic Club. The organization of a Democratic club is not the novelty, but the fact that the club is composed entirely of colored voters and they declare that they mean to vote the Democratic ticket. W. D. Robinson is president and F. D. Ross secretary. This organization is partly counteracted by the Italian Republican Club of the Third Ward, which has its clubroom on North street.

Harvey K. Trumporee, who has conducted a grocery business in Westfield for several years, succeeding Clark & Hall, made an assignment for the benefit of his creditors Wednesday. The amount of assets and liabilities have not been made up, but it is expected that the business will make nearly a par settlement.

A special school election will be held September 29, to decide whether to build an addition to the Washington schoolhouse or erect a separate building on North Broad street.

Westfield valuations for assessment as just compiled by the Board of Assessors is $7,056,652, an increase of $468,000 over the valuation of last year.

The council of the Central New Jersey Baptist Association held its business session in the church parlors at 3 o'clock. The guests were entertained among the members of the congregation. The public ceremony of ordination took place at 8 o'clock in the evening, when a special ordination sermon was delivered by Rev. Dr. Edwin P. Farnham, of Richmond Hill, Long Island.

The new memorial rectory of St. John's church is now completed and has been turned over by the donors, Mr. and Mrs. J. Harper Smith, to the vestry of the church. The structure is in memory of their only son, Harry Atwater Smith, who died several years ago. The church officials are now furnishing it for occupancy by the rector, Rev. Clarence C. Silvester, who is expected home the latter part of the week from Europe.

The Lincoln Chemical Engine Company has disposed of its two teams of horses and purchased another new team. The new horses are stationed with the Consumers' Supply Company, but will be taken to their new home when David Dunn, who purchased the other teams, takes them to his farm at North Branch.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

The festivities will take place in the Jr. O. U. A. M. hall. All sorts of good things are to be sold and dancing will be a feature of the program every evening. A good orchestra has been engaged for the occasion and also the best dancing floor in the borough. Punch cards are now being circulated by the order throughout the borough. The punches are one cent each and the prize to the person, who gets the most punches before the time of the fair, is a five dollar football. The committee in charge of the arrangements for the fair is composed of Clarence T. Voorhees, chairman; Benjamin A. Vail, Melvin Fritts, A. C. Giddes and William Shiveley.

The Dunellen football team held its first practise on the Park grounds last night. There was a large number of candidates, who responded to Captain Dodwell's call. The time was taken up for the most part with explanations of the new rules and practical experiments with them. The boys seemed to catch on to the new laws of playing readily and they did some fast work with the pigskin.

Burglars attempted to enter the McGuire property Wednesday night but were frightened away by the barking of Mr. McGuire's dog. The glass in a front window was broken and the vandals tried to gain an entrance in the same manner that was used in the three burglaries a few nights ago.

DROWNED MAN ON HOOK.

Perth Amboy Angler Makes Ghastly Catch in Bay.

Perth Amboy, Sept. 9.—While fishing in Raritan bay, opposite this city, yesterday afternoon, Charles M. Lynch, manager of a local pool parlor, pulled the body of a drowned man from the bed of the river.

Lynch threw the line over, and the hook caught in the suspender of the drowned man's clothing. The body has not been identified.

Rev. F. St. John Fitch, of this city, will occupy the pulpit at the First Eaptist church on Sunday.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

James E. Dunham, who has been engaged in the contracting business as a mason in Salem for sixty-one years, is critically ill at his home there.

Louise, the five-year-old daughter of Thomas Wilson, of Franklinville, pulled a bucket of boiling water over her, and was so badly scalded that she died late Tuesday evening.

Jacob House, vice-president of the Salem National Banking Company, and his wife celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary Wednesday at their home, in Alloway. Both are enjoying excellent health.

At an inquest into the death of Michael Tames and Michael Kiss, who were killed on September 1 by a fast freight at Roebling, the jury returned a verdict censuring the Pennsylvania Railroad for failing properly to safeguard the crossings in the vicinity.

The Methodist Episcopal parsonage, which adjoins the church at Monmouth and Willow streets, Gloucester, was entered by thieves Tuesday night, who carried off nearly every piece of silverware owned by the pastor, Rev. J. L. Roe, and family.

Asked in the Camden police court Wednesday what became of a dozen pies he admitted stealing from in front of the store of Leslie Weeks, 1014 South Fourth street, Hobart Shafer, fourteen years old, replied, "Why, I ate 'em." The boy was committed in default of $300 bail for his appearance in the criminal court.

Atlantic City's police have been asked to find Minnie DaCosta, whose parents are wealthy residents of Havana. The young woman went to Atlantic City from Philadelphia to visit a married sister, and has not been seen since. The case is complicated by the fact that the whereabouts of the sister are also unknown to those in charge of the search.

Members of the Atlantic City County Board of Freeholders, stirred up by charges of automobile clubs that narrow bridges on the Meadow boulevard, joining Atlantic City with the mainland at Pleasantville, were "official death traps," voted Wednesday to widen the bridges to a uniform width of sixty feet to conform with the roadway, and to straighten a dangerous curve at the Chelsea Heights end of the boulevard.

About to shoot a supposed mad dog, Alfred Kerins, thirty-four years old, of 304 Sharp street, Millville, slipped with a revolver in his hand and was taken to Cooper Hospital, Camden, Wednesday, with a bullet in his abdomen, the weapon having accidentally discharged. The injured man walked into the hospital apparently unconcerned, and said he would like the physicians to probe for the bullet as soon as possible. After an X-ray examination physicians announced that the injured man would recover unless there are complications.

Bitten by a mad dog, William Lickfield, fourteen years old, of 930 Newton avenue, Camden, was taken to Pasteur Institute, New York, for treatment Wednesday night by Dog Warden Smith. The boy was attacked at the Camden terminal last Friday, and his hands were badly torn. After the dog was shot its head was sent away for examination, and when word was reecived last night that the animal suffered from the rabies it was decided to act at once in order to save the boy's life.

Told that he would have to furnish $300 bail or go to jail to answer a charge of assault and battery on his wife, Martin Huda, thirty-five years old, of 1838 Salem street, addressing Justice of the Peace Rouh, in Camden, Wednesday afternoon, said: "I won't do either." He then made an effort to escape, but was stopped and turned over to Constable Roberts. Huda also made unsuccessful attempts to escape on Ferry avenue, and as he was leaving a trolley car in front of the courthouse. When he was placed behind the prison bars he declared he would not be around when called to plead in court.

Two more games on the Oval tomorrow if it is clear.

And that High Bridge bunch is a speedy one, too, while the pitcher is considered to be one of the best but most erratic twirlers in the State.

Giles, the Dunellen second baseman, did some great batting in the game against the All Brunswicks. He wielded his willow for four clean safeties.

The West End A. C. and the Gesang and Turn Verein teams will be the attraction in the opening game at the Oval tomorrow afternoon. And there is some rivalry between these nines too.

At last the physicians have discovered that the injuries to Ty Cobb's right eye are only trifling and will not keep the great batsman out of the game very long. It was also discovered in the examination that the premier swat artist uses only one eye when batting. The left optic is normal but the right one is near sighted and partly closed when the great Tyrus stands at the plate.

And again we ask—who can stop them Cubs?

It is reported from Indianapolis that Frank Bowerman, one time catcher on the New York Giants, and who has been doing backstop work for the Indianapolis team this season, has quit the great game for good and retired to his farm at Romeo, Mich. It is said that Bowerman is well fixed with the filthy lucre and is taxed upon $100,000 worth of property.

New Orleans is the winner of the Southern Association and will fly the pennant this year.

The Newark and Rochester teams are about to engage in a series of games, which will undoubtedly decide the championship of the Eastern league.

GOLF.

Four additional entries have been received for the national amateur golf championship tournament which will begin over the links of the Country Club of Brookline, on Monday morning. They are James R. Hyde, of the South Shore Field Club, Bay Shore, Long Island; R. W. Small, of Brae Burn; Oscar Woodward, of Montclair, and S. C. Mabon, of Ardsley. E. F. Hunter, of Midlothian, has withdrawn, thereby making a net gain of three and raising the total to 214.

If it had not been for irregular entries the list would be even larger. A case in point was a telegram from G. V. Rotan, of Houston, Tex., who said: "Enter me from Texas." As that did not comply with the conditions, the committee found it impossible to accept the entry.

Otto Pickhardt wanted to enter from the Hanhansett Golf Club, but as the organization is no longer on the United States Golf Association list, Pickhardt's application was rejected. He is taking a course at Columbia and expects to play in the intercollegiate championship tournament at Manchester, Mass., the week following the big fixture.

Fred Herreshoff, the metropolitan champion, left Wednesday night for Brookline, while Charles B. Macdonald and James A. Stillman started yesterday in an automobile. R. C. Wilson, the secretary, expects to leave today. Several Westerners are also on the way.

KILLED RETURNING FROM P. B. A. SESSION.

Jersey City, Sept. 9.—John Whalen, a policeman of this city attached to the Central avenue station, while returning from the convention of the Police Benevolent Association at Atlantic City, fell from the train near Trenton last night and was picked up dead from a fractured skull.

The accident happened shortly before 9 o'clock when Whalen stepped on the platform of a car to get fresh air. He was seen to stumble and pitch head foremost to the ground. Immediately the signal to stop the train was given. Searching parties went back to where the accident happened.

For over an hour the train was held. The body of the unfortunate man was found lying across the freight tracks. Head and face were crushed and life was extinct.

The body was picked up by Edward A. Ransom, Policeman Edward Harry and Assemblyman Charles P. Olwell, and carried to an engine which took it to Trenton, from where it was later shipped to this city.

Whalen had been a member of the police department for the last twelve years. He was married six years ago and leaves a widow and one child.

Mustn't Monkey With Saw.

Westfield, Sept. 9.—When the Westfield schools reopen next week only the manual training instructor will be allowed to use the 31-inch band saw in the Washington School basement, where pupils are taught to make many useful things of wood. The band saw has always been considered a dangerous article in the school by School Trustee Edward F. Low, who fought the movement to place it in the school and followed up his action until he succeeded in preventing pupils from using it.

Patrolman John Kelly, who was recently operated upon at the hospital, has been discharged and returned home. He will return to duty within a short time.

Plainfield, N. J., September 9, 1910.

Charles N. Fowler is telling the people that two years before the Republicans came out in favor of the gold standard he was one of three men in Congress advocating that principle. But he does not tell them that he sat up all night with the committee on resolutions at the State convention in 1896 pleading for a straddle on the currency plank. Neither does he tell them that he went to the National convention at St. Louis the same year to fight for a straddle there also.

Just contrast the campaigns being waged by the rival candidates for the Republican congressional nomination by the rival candidates. On the one hand you see Mr. Fowler ranting about bosses, throwing mud at every conspicuous leader in the district, indulging in vainglorious language and giving vent to an hallucination about "conspiracies". On the other hand you have Judge Runyon saying not an ill word against a single foe, talking not of himself but of the issues; at all times dignified and irreproachable in his deportment.

much more noisy. Was it necessary, was it advisable; it helped the tax rate.

"Is it right and proper that the Chief of Police of this or any City should be permitted to go touring about the State on matters of no immediate concern to Plainfield leaving his duties to take care of themselves during his absence; I say is was wrong. It smacks of favoritism, it looks as though a pull was being used, every official of the City who is paid by the City should understand his duty and perform it at all times fully to the best of his ability without fear or favor, and if he doesn't do it he should be removed.

"Just a word more about taxes. Do you want them to continue to increase? When shall it stop and where? I trust we are not like the man in the auto, who couldn't stop the machine after he had started until he struck a brick fence. It seems to me that the taxes of this city are not fairly proportioned; are not fairly assessed. The increase in values should more than take care of the increase in expenses, and there should not be this constantly increasing rise in the tax rate.

"Automobiles are as much of a necessity today as any other modern vehicle, we can't get along without them and we don't want to. But I certainly feel that the law relating to their use and particularly in the City should be rigidly enforced. The man on foot or the baby on foot has just as much right to the use of the streets as the man in the automobile, and I know that every right thinking man that runs an automobile, agrees with me. The trouble is that we have to make provision for fools.

"No City official in receipt of a salary should receive fees for the performance of any duty in connection with his office. All purchasers are entitled to full weight and measure. Great strees is being laid on this subject in New York city, Rochester and elsewhere, and every honest dealer will be glad to see that the dishonest dealer is forced to obey the

"All foodstuffs should be so exposed for sale as to avoid contamination. Our milk supply is now carefully guarded. The price of milk is high enough, still it seems to be good milk. I favor the enactment of all legislation which shall look to the protection of the people by guaranteeing them full weight and measure, and pure food. I heartily approve of the children's playgrounds, and it must be a delight to the heart of every father and mother to see the little tots enjoying themselves."

I want to say just a word to the mother who believes in dressing her children's feet comfortably, stylishly and economically. It's a very wrong conclusion to think that such a desire is unobtainable. It may be true that the first cost of a pair of children's shoes here is a few cents greater than in some places, but it is a fact that more than enough additional wear and service is gotten out of them to offset that. Hundreds of Plainfield mothers will tell you this. We do not ask a cent for the "class" and style, that is in our children's shoes—it doesn't cost any more to make them that way if you know how and it is just as easy to fit a little foot correctly if you have the knowledge and the material to work with. If we sold inferior shoes—shoes of the same grade as some stores—our prices would be lower than their's for we have an output many times greater. If you will shop around a little next time you buy children's shoes you will know why a Van Arsdale shoe is preferred by so many thrifty parents.

The Summer Argument.

She wants to go unto the shore,
And pack her trunk,
With gowns no one has seen before,
And all such junk.

But I would seek some far off place
Where I'm unknown,
And let my whiskers deck my face
And be alone.

She sighs for parties and for teas,
They are her wish,
I merely want to take my ease
And loaf and fish.
She wants to lead a life that's grand,
In silken skirts;
I want to wear old trousers and
My outing shirts.

"Saona" at Proctor's.

Mark Twain, Andrew Carnegie, Generals Grant and Lee, and many other notables are faithfully portrayed by "Saona", the impersonator, at Proctor's theatre, this week. "Saona" is a Plainfielder, but has been on an extended tour over the big time route. The makeup and costuming of the characters are absolutely perfect. Lionel Swift & Co. present a comedy sketch, "Ambition;" Moyer & Co. are clever magicians, introducing good tricks, while Burns & Clifton are exceptionally good as singers and dancers.

SENTENCE SERMONS.

Too many think that square living must mean sour lookings.

Many reformers get switched off on to reforming one another.

Turn your face to the sun and you will never fear the shadows.

People who live in a bread and butter world are always hungry.

No prayers were ever long enough to lengthen a short yardstick.

You cannot make live saints by denouncing the ways of dead sinners.

Aseptic charity is more than keeping your tainted money to yourself.

Many preachers mistake pounding the people for expounding the truth.

There is no naturalization for heaven without good citizenship here.

A peculiar phenomenon in Vermont is noticeable in old cider barrels. The hoops on nearly all the 40-gallon barrels have been driven down so many times to squeeze out the last drops of the precious fluid that the barrels don't hold over 33 gallons anyhow.

JAPANESE HEROISM.

Subjoined is the translation of a message written by Lieutenant Tsutoma Sakuma, who was in command of the Japanese submarine No. 6, which foundered while maneuvering in Hiroshima bay. The message was found in the conning tower of the submarine after she had been brought to the surface:

"It is with the deepest regret that I write this message to describe the loss of this boat with my fellow officers and men, due to my own fault. I would here specially mention that all steps have been taken to raise her, my comrades and men working earnestly and calmly till the end. I ordered the ship to dive with the engine running, but as I found she went down too far I tried to shut the valves which admit the sea water to the ballast tank, but unexpectedly the chain working these valves broke, and I was left helpless, unable to control the boat. Meanwhile the tanks filled with water, and the boat went down at an incline of about twenty-five degrees. After striking the bottom the water began rushing in, the switchboard was immersed in water, all electric lights went out, the fuses burnt away, and the boat was filled with poisonous gases, so that we experienced the greatest difficulty in breathing.

"Under these conditions we worked our very utmost with the hand pumps to empty the main ballast tank, which, I believe, we succeeded in doing, although we could not read the gauges owing to darkness. No electric current was available, as I mentioned before, and our last hope of rising to the surface lay in working the hand pumps only.

"I write this in the dim light coming from the conning tower—11:45 a. m.

"I earnestly beseech his majesty to grant me forgiveness and to succor the families of my comrades and men who have lost their lives in this perishing boat. This is my only wish. 12:30 p. m.

"It is with the utmost difficulty that I can breathe, though I am sure we must have blown out the gasoline entirely from the tanks. I cannot continue any more. 12:40 p. m."—London Times.

A DOMESTIC TRAGEDY.

She Tried to Fascinate Hubby and Was Rudely Shocked.

She had been reading that a titled Englishwoman advises married women to flirt with their husbands. As she finished the article her husband came home to dinner.

She ran to meet him.

"A little late tonight, duckydoozelum," she said, with a dimpling smile.

"What's that?" he growled.

She looked at him archly.

"Don't you dare to kiss me!" she tittered.

"Gee," he cried, "I don't intend to! What put that in your head?"

She half closed her eyes and coyly surveyed him through the drooping lashes.

"Don't you want to sit here by me on the sofa?" she cooed.

"No, I don't. Why, you told me only yesterday that the springs were getting weak. Aren't you feeling well?"

She laughed softly and shot him a side glance and drew in her cheeks and flashed her white teeth and perceptibly winked.

He drew back suddenly.

"What's the matter with you?" he demanded. "Who are you imitating? Can't you make your face behave?"

She picked up the paper she had been reading and flung it into the decorated wastebasket.

"There's nothing the matter with me," she coldly replied.

"Just mugging for fun, eh? Glad of that. Stimson was telling me today about a lot of trouble his wife is having with her facial nerves, and I was afraid you'd caught it. Ain't that confounded dinner ready?"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Popular Jokes.

The most popular joke which has been published in any language in the history of the world is stated to be that which appeared in an obscure corner of the Punch almanac for 1845. It read, "Advice to persons about to marry—Don't!" It would be interesting to know who was its author. Another, founded on a similar subject, was the "Advice to persons who have 'fallen in love'—Fall out!" One of the most brilliant things that ever appeared in our contemporary was the brief dialogue between an inquiring child and his impatient parent: "What is mind?" "No matter." "What is matter?" "Never mind."—Westminster Gazette.

The Parting.

"Benson was a good friend of mine, and I hated to lose him. He always wore a cheerful smile and seemed in the best of spirits. It will be hard to find another fellow so genial, so full of the joy of life."

"What's the matter? Has Benson left town for good?"

"No."

"Surely he isn't dead?"

"No. He borrowed $5 from me this morning."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Then He Made a Home Run.

To maintain oneself on this earth is not a hardship, but a pastime, if one will live simply and wisely.—Thoreau.

Settling Their Nicknames.

"A traveler from Liverpool got hopping mad the other day because some one called him a Liverpudlian," said the city salesman. "I couldn't blame him, but the man who unwittingly offered the insult declares that that is the proper name for people who live in Liverpool.

"He pointed out that it isn't easy to designate the inhabitants of all cities by euphonious names. New Yorker, Londoner, Parisian, Chicagoan, are so obvious that it would be difficult to say anything else, but how about cities that do not affiliate so readily with 'er,' 'an' or 'ite?

"Those are the suffixes most commonly used to designate a set of natives. Take Cork. A man from Cork may be a corker, but that doesn't apply to a whole city full of people; neither does Corkite nor Corkan sound right.

"Then there is Memphis. What do you call a man from Memphis, anyhow, or from Amsterdam, or Dallas, or Bruges, or Bath? By the time you have studied out the proper appellations for inhabitants of all cities you will be apt to strike something that sounds funnier than Liverpudlian."—Washington Post.

Grim Music.

"On one occasion," said a London actor, "I decided to take a house in the suburbs and after a good deal of hunting about found one that suited my purse. Indeed, it was so excessively cheap that I was on the point of signing the lease at once, when it occurred to me that I had better take another look at it by gaslight. That night I was making a second tour of inspection and went into the dining room. It was a balmy summer night, and as I threw open the window I heard a peculiar tapping sound.

"Knock, knock, knock.

"I pricked up my ears to listen. There was silence for a moment, and then the noise continued. I turned to the caretaker and laughingly said:

"'See here, my friend, I know why this house is cheap. There's a ghost on the premises.'

"'Oh, no, sir,' he answered by way of reassuring me. 'That's only the noise from the coffin factory hacross the way, sir. They often works there nights.'"

He did not sign the lease.

Caught the Jury.

"Oratory is, indeed, a lost art," said a Cleveland man the other day. "I used to go down to the courts just to hear the lurid speeches. Nothing doing in that line any more. The lawyers do not talk about flowers, rainbows and sunbeams any more.

"There was a lawyer in Cleveland years ago—Bill Robinson was his name—whose addresses to a jury always attracted a crowd. I will forever remember one of his sentences. The man he was fighting in the suit had a reputation as something of a miser.

"'Who is this man, who is he?' thundered Robinson. 'You know and I know that he boils his potatoes in widows' tears.'

"This phrase caught the jury, and Robinson won his case, but one doesn't hear any such 'oratory' as that nowadays."

The Barebone Family.

The celebrated name of Praise God Barebone was borne by a member of the Cromwell parliament called together after the dissolution of the long parliament in 1653. The royalists called the assembly "Barebones parliament." At the time when General Monk was in London Barebone headed the mob that presented a petition to parliament against the recall of Charles II. Of the Barebone family there were three brothers, each of whom had a sentence for a name—Praise God Barebone, Christ-came-into-the-world-to-save Barebone and If-Christ-had-not-died-thou-hadst-been-damned Barebone.

Poison In Young Rattlesnakes.

Observations on live rattlesnakes show that the poison glands become functionally active as soon as the snakes begin to shift for themselves, which must be very soon after birth. Experiments on the young ones six days after birth proved the presence of venom in small quantities. Experiments made three months after birth showed that considerable venom is secreted, as a pigeon innoculated at this time died in two hours with the usual symptoms of chronic poisoning.

The Value of Doors.

When a man is cross there isn't anything in the world more aggravating than a house with all the connecting doors down or one that has doors that close noiselessly. A man likes to slam a door. He gets more good out of slamming a door, in his opinion, than any one could get out of religion. It is his protest against everything in the world that is wrong, and it means that he isn't much older than the child that beats its head on the floor.—Atchison Globe.

Hard on Him.

"Hello, Ned, old boy! Writing home for money?"

"No."

"What are you making so much fuss over? You've been fuming over that letter for two hours."

"I'm trying to write home without asking for money."

Great Custom Tailoring Offer

We will make to your measure sack suits; Prince Albert coats and vests; fall and winter weight overcoats and raincoats for $13.80. This is our regular half-yearly sale and every man who appreciates custom-made clothes should aim to take advantage of it.

A year ago last Spring we held a sale of custom-made clothes. This sale was so successful and our customers were so well pleased that we determined to make a regular half-yearly feature of it. We made arrangements with a large and well-known custom designer to do our cutting and we also made arrangements with the best people that we could gather together to do our tailoring. We sold more suits and coats last fall than we did in the spring, and we sold more last spring than we did the fall previous. This season we have made greater preparations than ever before, and we feel assured that we will do a record business. Think of having a suit or coat made to order—fit and finish guaranteed—for $13.80! Think of being able to choose from scores of different patterns—not from samples, mind you, but from the full piece! Think of the comfort and satisfaction you will get out of a suit cut according to your own measurements and properly made. Those who have been used to paying higher prices for made-to-measure clothes will appreciate this sale. Blue and black unfinished worsteds, thibets and serges; also fancy worsteds, cassimeres and tweedes in all the new fall colorings and patterns. Overcoatings of plain black and oxford and many handsome mixtures. Better goods and a broader variety of patterns than last season. This offer ends next Thursday

A WOMAN'S LOGIC.

It Helped Her Out When the Customs Officials Bothered Her.

On one of the recently arriving transatlantic steamers was a young woman whose extreme economy had not permitted any lavish expenditure abroad. But she had repeatedly referred with commendable pride to the material for two silk dresses she had purchased at a bargain which she was bringing home for her mother and sister. Even the suggestion of one sympathetic listener that she would have to pay duty produced merely a temporary restraint.

Finally when the liner approached New York and the custom house officer received the somewhat plain woman at the cabin table her fellow passengers were curious. Being asked the usual questions about dutiable property, she replied stoutly and defiantly that she had the material for two silk dresses.

"Are they for yourself?" the inspector wanted to know.

"No, they are not," she declared. "I am bringing them home for presents."

"Then since they are not for your own use I shall be compelled to charge you duty," and he figured out for her the required amount.

Taking the pencil from his hand, she figured for a moment and then said: "Well, I declare! That has made those dresses cost me so much that I simply can't afford to give them away now. I'm just going to keep them for myself; that's what I'll do!"—New York Tribune.

LET THE YAWN COME.

A Good One Is a Splendid Thing For the Whole Body.

A good, wide, open mouthed yawn is a splendid thing for the whole body. A yawn is nature's demand for rest. Some people think they only yawn because they are sleepy, but this is not so. You yawn because you are tired. You may be sleepy also, but that is not the real cause of your yawning. You are sleepy because you are tired, and you yawn because you are tired.

Whenever you feel like yawning just yawn. Don't try to suppress it because you think it is impolite to yawn. Put your hand over your mouth if you want to, but let the yawn come. And if you are where you can stretch at the same time that you yawn just stretch and yawn. This is nature's way of stretching and relaxing the muscles.

Don't be afraid to open your mouth wide and yawn and stretch whenever you feel like it. Indeed, if you are very tired, but do not feel like yawning, there is nothing that will rest you so quickly as to sit on a straight back chair and, lifting your feet from the floor, push them out in front of you as far as possible, stretch the arms, put the head back, open the mouth wide and make yourself yawn.

Those tense nerves will relax, the contracted muscles will stretch and the whole body will be rested. Do this two or three times when you are tired and see what it will do for you.

First English Horse Races.

Chester possesses plausible claims to be the birthplace of the British turf. It was one William Lester, who about 1600, "being mayor of Chester, did cause three silver bells to be made of good value to be run for upon the Roode Dee." This seems the earliest definite establishment of a horse race. From the nature of the prize was derived the proverb "To bear the bell," though the bells in this case existed long before the "ring." Our ancestors being more easily satisfied in the matter of amusement than their degenerate descendants, there was apparently only one contest. The "Chester cup," which has been substituted for the "best bell," is now worth £2,500, to say nothing of Cheshire cheeses for the three placed horses.—Westminster Gazette.

Had a Mere Trifle.

A doctor calling on a patient who had been very ill, but was now convalescent, said to the latter's wife:

"You must be careful in regard to his diet for a few days."

"Yes, I know that," was the reply. "He has just had his dinner, and I didn't give him anything but a cup of coffee and two or three warm biscuits and a piece of pie and a couple of doughnuts and one slice of bread with gooseberry preserves on it. I have just been telling him he couldn't have anything very substantial right away until his stummick was stiddier."—New York Tribune.

Pretty Much Alone.

In a rather rabid discussion in parliament a member of doubtful ability and power twitted Disraeli for having deserted his camp.

"I did not know that the honorable gentleman had a camp," Disraeli replied in a tone of mock surprise. "I have always looked upon him as the solitary sentinel of a deserted fortress."

No Chance For Leniency.

"Can't you be merciful and love me a little?" he pleaded as they sat in their steamer chairs.

"I can't show you any mercy at all," she whispered. "This isn't the quarter-deck."—St. Louis Star.

The Skeptic.

"Pa, what does 'skeptical' mean?"

"Well—er—did you ever see a man taking in the washing for fear of rain in spite of the weather prediction 'fair?'"—Buffalo Express.

Ought to Cheer Him.

Figg—What's the matter, old man? You're looking wretched. Fogg—I'm not myself at all today. Figg—Oh, come; that's nothing to feel wretched about.—Exchange.

LOOKS IMMACULATE; PRESSES OWN GOWNS.

A young woman on a limited income, who rarely wears anything but white in summer, yet always looks immaculate, says the secret of her daintiness is knowing how to press her own clothes.

"Of course, I could not wear white constantly, nor even linen suits, if I could not keep them in condition myself," she remarked to a friend who expostulated on extravagance.

"I have trained myself to rapid pressing so it takes but a few minutes to freshen up a gown. Thus I rarely wear anything more than once without pressing out the wrinkles."

"Often it is enough just to dampen the piece slightly. Sometimes just running a hot iron over the wrinkles answers. It does not take five minutes.

"When a gown is really mussed, I use a little starch water for sprinkling. It is applied with a soft rag to a small surface of the gown at a time and quickly ironed. This will make a dress as fresh and crisp as if just laundered."

"Doesn't it stick? No, for I use hot water in mixing, which reduces the possibility of sticking greatly. By the way, any cold starch will stick less if mixed with hot water."

HOUSEHOLD CONVENIENCES.

A place for everything and everything in its place describes the domain of a good housekeeper. As much attention should be given the kitchen as any other part of the house. A busy housewife spends a large amount of her time in that room, and she should strive to render it a pleasant and not a dread to enter it.

A great convenience in a kitchen is a large, roomy wall pocket, a large pocket at the top and two smaller ones at the bottom for dusters, towels, strings and cut rags for cuts or wounds; another bag on the closed door saves many steps on wash day to find dirty towels. Always have a match safe and a scraper, as it saves disfigurement of the walls.

Have tin or glass (airtight) boxes for tea, coffee and spices, as it preserves the flavors.

And the best servants in the kitchen are ammonia, borax and washing soda.

Lyonnaise Potatoes.

Two cups of cold potatoes, one-half teaspoon salt, one teaspoon chopped onions, two tablespoons butter or beef drippings, two tablespoons chopped parsley. Cut the potatoes in slices and season with salt and perper. Melt the butter in the frying pan and fry the onions in it until it is brown; then put the chopped potato in it and cook until it has taken up all the fat. Put on a platter, garnish with parsley and serve.

Mr. and Mrs. John S. Johnston, of Westervelt avenue, who have been sojourning at Camden, Maine, have returned home.

Ways of the Alligator.

Late one afternoon, when the lagoon was aglow with the wonderful copper hues of a Papuan sunset, some one pointed out to me a long dark streak moving swiftly across the water 200 or 300 yards away, and in the streak just the slightest speck of black. It was an alligator at last!

"Now you see why you can't go swimming in the lagoon," I was told. "They are worse than sharks. They don't show themselves and give you a chance. They just come down underneath you and pull you down, and that's all you or any one else knows about it. They don't eat you at once, only hold you under the water until you are drowned or half pulled to pieces and then store you away somewhere under a bank or in a hole till you are 'high' enough to be savory—just as you would do with a pheasant, you know. He's a knowing beggar, the alligator. The shark isn't in it with him for brains and savvy."—Wide World Magazine.

The Spider.

Of all the solitary insects I have ever seen the spider is the most sagacious, and its actions to one who has attentively considered them seem almost to excel belief. The spider is formed by nature for a state of war, not only upon other insects, but upon its fellows. For this state nature seems to have formed it with singular perfection. Its head and breast are covered with a strong natural coat of mail, which is impenetrable to the attacks of every other insect, and its lower parts are enveloped in a soft, pliant skin which eludes the sting even of a wasp. Its legs are terminated by strong claws not unlike those of a lobster, and their vast length, like spears, serves to keep every assailant at a safe distance. Not worse furnished for observation than for attack or defense, it has several eyes, large and transparent, covered with a horny substance, which, however, does not impede its vision.—Scotsman.

Not What They Seemed.

A marquis who was in residence for a few days at a Parisian hotel discovered that her pearl necklace, worth $15,000, had disappeared from her room. Suspicion fell on a messenger boy, who admitted his guilt, but declared that the necklace had been taken from him by his mother. The mother corroborated her son's statement, expressing astonishment that so much trouble should be made about "a trashy little trinket," which, she explained, looked so cheap and tawdry that she had given it to her daughter-in-law. This young woman, in her teens, displayed an equal contempt for the "bits of things." She told the police that she had given the necklace to her little girl to wear, but she had removed about half the beads. All the missing pearls were found in a box among buttons and hooks and eyes.

A Gleam of Hope.

They were evidently from the country and had wandered into the first place of amusement they found. A performance of "Richard III." was in progress, and after buying tickets they went squeaking down the aisle, led by the usher, to seats well toward the front.

They watched the stage at first with hope of some excitement, but with steadily decreasing interest. At last the young woman touched the young man.

"Let's go out, Jim," she said. "It's more interesting out in the street."

"Let's hold on a minute longer," returned her escort. "It cost considerable to get in, and, besides, that clown has just called for a boss. I shouldn't wonder if the show's really going to begin now, Emma."—Youth's Companion.

When Cricket Was a Crime.

Under a statute of Edward IV. England's great national pastime, cricket, was declared a crime, owing to the game having become so popular that it interfered with archery, the then sport of kings. The law was rigorously enforced, and every person convicted of playing the game was fined £10 and sent to prison besides. It was not until the formation of the famous Hambledon Cricket club in 1749 that the statute was repealed.—Dundee Advertiser.

The Retort Direct.

"See here," cried the artist who had come to complain about the materials he had bought, "I can't imagine anything worse than your paints."

"That's strange," replied the dealer. "Don't you ever use your imagination on your painting?"—Catholic Standard and Times.

Followed the Leader.

Master—Who can tell me what useful article we get from the whale? Johnnie—Whalebone. Master—Right. Now, what little boy or girl knows what we get from the seal? Tommy—Sealing wax.—London Scraps.

Cautious.

"What's a' yer hurry, Sandy? It's no 10 o'clock yet."

"Well, ye see, Ah've changed ma lodgin's, an Ah'm no vera weel acquaint' wi' th' new staircase."—London Bystander.

Prostrated.

"Poor thing! Did she take her husband's death much to heart?"

"Why, she's prostrated with grief! She can't see a soul except the dressmaker."

Improving.

We think the world is growing better. There seems to be an increasing determination to make the other fellow do what is right.—Puck.

ANOTHER VOTING MACHINE OUSTED.

Cranford, Sept. 9.—The only voting machine in the second district of this township was knocked out yesterday at a special election by a vote of 133 against and 19 for. There is a total of 450 voters in the district. This is about the last of the voting machines in this section. Westfield has already ousted the machines, as has Plainfield and Garwood.

There is still a machine in Roselle. A special election will be held in that place to determine if it shall be retained or rejected. The date for the election has not yet been fixed.

In Elizabeth there is only one of the devices in the Eleventh Ward. This machine, it is predicted, will be ousted before the election a year hence.

As far as this place is concerned there has been dissatisfaction with the device since it was installed.

ELIZABETH IMPROVEMENTS.

Board of Trade Takes up Important Subjects.

Elizabeth, Sept. 9.—Increased interest with regard to the cleaning of the Elizabeth River, the tuberculosis hospital and express rates was manifested at the first fall meeting of the Board of Trade last night.

Charles H. K. Halsey, president of the board, spoke on the three subjects and advised the committee to continue agitating the projects. The publicity committee reported progress. Albert A. Snowden, of Rosedale, was elected a member of the board.

The board declared itself in favor of a movement to deepen the channel of the Elizabeth Sound to thirty-five feet. The Deep Waterways Association, of Staten Island, advocated the measure. A committee composed of H. A. Raismes, Charles H. Moore, James MacMasters and William T. Cox was appointed to represent this city at the next meeting of the association.

—Neuman Bros. will offer for tomorrow's trade 200 baskets of fancy white and yellow peaches, finest flavor, and low in price.

Lanier of the Cavalry

Or, A Week's Arrest

By GENERAL CHARLES KING,

Author of "The Colonel's Daughter," "Foes In Ambush," Etc.

Copyright, 1909, by J. B. Lippincott Company

TWO STORM BEATEN SOLDIERS SHOVED THEIR WAY THROUGH LANIER'S BACK GATE.

It was an odd arrangement, somewhat peculiar to frontier stations of the day. The inclosure of Fort Cushing was diamond shaped. The entrance gate was at the eastern apex. The hospital and surgeons' quarters stood on a line with this gate, their front perpendicular to the long axis of the diamond. Their rear elevations, therefore, were not far from officers' row. From the front of Sumter's house, around by way of the main gate to the doctor's door—the first to the left (north) of the post trader's—was quite a walk. From back door to back door, however, it was less than 200 paces. "We are near neighbors," Dr. Larrabee had been saying, "though my wife thinks it a long walk on a windy day. I could reach you day or night almost in a minute."

"Is Mr. Lanier sitting up?" Mrs. Sumter inquired. "I thought Dr. Schuchardt was trying to keep him in bed."

"He won't stay," was the answer.

"Dr. Larrabee," finally said Mrs. Sumter, "Miriam says she believes it was all a mere delusion—a dream. She blames herself bitterly and—begs us to think no more of it—to forgive her, but"—

"But why should I attempt to conceal it? You know, and we have reason to know, she did see some one there in her room who went out like a thief, through the window and away in spite of sentries. Captain Sumter had the snow swept off before reveille. What was the use of advertising it further? Mr. Barker and Mr. Blake saw it, too. They hold it was some garrison sneak thief, looking for jewelry. Yet not so much as a ring, or a pin, was touched—only her desk."

"Did she tell of that?"

"No; Kate was the first to see it. She flew upstairs when she heard the scream, found Miriam a senseless heap on the floor, the desk open on the little table by the window, the contents scattered, the window up and somebody bounding and slipping away in the moonlight. Then she heard the challenge and scuffle outside and thought the guard had him and gave her whole attention to Miriam until Mr. Barker shouted from the lower hall."

"And nothing is missing?"

"Nothing. But Captain Sumter wished to have it all kept quiet until he could confer with the detectives in town."

"Miss Kate has a level head," presently spoke Larrabee. "What does she say?"

"Doctor, that is what troubles me. Kate won't say—anything. It's the first time she ever kept a secret from me." And now tears of genuine distress were welling in Mrs. Sumter's eyes.

It was half after 2, and the wind was shrieking through the open space back of the line when Dr. Larrabee, bending almost double, managed to fight his way homeward. Schuchardt, occupant of the adjoining set to his own, had not yet returned. At Sumter's gate the senior surgeon encountered the corporal of the guard, nearly blind and well nigh exhausted. He was searching for sentry No. 5.

"You will probably find Dr. Schuchardt at Lieutenant Lanier's quarters," shouted Larrabee at the corporal, with kindly intent. "Take No. 5 in there and get thawed out. Tell him I think a nip of whisky advisable under the circumstances."

And thus it happened that two storm beaten soldiers presently shoved their way through Lanier's back gate and banged at the kitchen door. Nobody answering, they presently entered, passed through that deserted apartment, and, hearing voices farther on, the corporal ventured into the dark hallway leading through the little frame house, now fairly quivering in the blast. Here he caught sight of two officers—big, powerful men in fur caps and canvas overcoats just pushing forth through the front door into the fierce blast without. One was Dr. Schuchardt, the other Lieutenant Ennis, joint occupant with Lanier of the tiny premises. As Corporal Cassidy later expressed it, he felt "like I'd lost a bulging pot on an ace full." He couldn't run after and beg them to come back, yet he and his comrades were stiff from cold and almost breathless from exhaustion. Suddenly No. 5's carbine slipped from his frozen glove and fell with a crash on the kitchen floor. The next instant the voice of Lieutenant Lanier was heard.

"Who the devil's that?"

"Corporal Cassidy, sir. The post surgeon told me to bring No. 5 in here and thaw him out."

But by this time Mr. Lanier himself appeared in the hall. "Well, I should say! Come right in here, you two. Pull off your gloves and get out of those caps and things. Man alive"—this to No. 5—"why didn't you come before? This is no time to stand on ceremony or stay on post either. My striker's stormbound somewhere. I'd help you if I could, but I can't. Help yourselves now best you can. Rub and kick all you want to; dance if it'll warm you." And all the time he was crowding them up about a roaring stove, where presently he made them sit while he bustled about at a buffet in the adjoining room. "You'll have to help me, corporal," presently he cried. "One hand can't mix and pour and lift. There's sugar, there's hot water on the stove, there's glasses and here's whisky. Mix it hot, and down with it!"

After which they were gone, rejoicing in their new found strength, yet reaching the nearest barracks only after a severe struggle and, later still, the crowded, suffocating guardroom, where now some thirty men were huddled in a space intended for twenty at most, where Cassidy and No. 5 were speedily telling to eager, appreciative ears their unusual and rejoiceful experience.

"Well, ain't he the dandy lieutenant, though?" queried Casey of F troop. "And did he give you yer new cap, too, Quinlan? Sure the wan you marched on wid had the mange!"

Cassidy snatched it from his comrade's head. "Mother av Moses! If he hasn't lifted the lieutenant's"— But he broke off short. One glance he had given the band within. There was an instant of indecision, then he whipped his own cap from his head and thrust it on Quinlan.

"I'm a liar," he said. "It's me own he's had."

"Then you wear two sizes, Jim Cassidy, an' both different." Quinlan had pulled the headpiece down and was staring in at the soft lining. "What's this?" he began, when the corporal's fingers closed like a vise on his arm.

"Shut up, Quinlan! The whisky's gone to yer noddle. Come here!" And Cassidy led him, wondering, to the barred corridor without and slammed the door behind them. "Not a word do you whisper of this to any man, Pat Quinlan," said he, never relaxing his grasp.

"God helps those who help themselves," quoth Lieutenant Blake on hearing of the incident at Lanier's quarters, "but God help those who help other fellows, unless the old man likes it." Blake was but a casual at Fort Cushing at the moment, summoned thither as a witness before a general court martial then in session, but there was nothing casual in his friendship for Bob Lanier. Two years' campaigning in Arizona and one in Wyoming had made these subalterns fast friends. Blake was no pet of the post commander. Blake had a way of saying satirical things of seniors whom he did not fancy, and Button was one of these.

About the only officer not to put in an appearance in the club room at the store the next morning, out of doors, afoot, in saddle or adrift in snow, was Lieutenant Lanier. About the first officer Button wished to see was Bob and about the last was Blake. Yet such was the freakishness of fate that the first man to hail him, with ill time jocularity, was Blake, and the last of his officers whom he was destined that day to set eyes on was Bob Lanier.

If it had not been for the startling announcement about the paymaster Colonel Button would have fought that matter out with the doctor then and there. First, however, he had to send forth his mounted men by scores in search of the missing officer and party. This done, he had once more summoned Schuchardt. Then he sent for Ennis and had what they termed a "redhot row."

In his exasperated frame of mind Button had been ready to believe almost any story at the expense of Lanier, and—such is the perversity of human nature—it added to rather than diminished his wrath that his revered senior surgeon should promptly corroborate the statements of both Schuchardt and Ennis and further assume personal and entire responsibility for the episode of Saturday afternoon in Lanier's quarters. That episode had started many a tongue, and one of Button's henchmen, thinking to win favor at the fountain head by mention of new iniquity on the part of the culprit, had deftly enlarged upon it. Snaffle, of course, was the fellow at fault, and he justified it on the plea that Lanier was demoralizing two men of his troop. The story he told was that Lanier had been carousing at his quarters with certain enlisted members of the guard.

Nor had Sumter himself much time for domestic duties before the order came for him and his troop to turn out to aid in the search.

Mrs. Sumter had not half finished what she had to say concerning Miriam when the summons came that called the captain forth to join the searching squadron, but he had heard enough to increase the anxiety in his fine, soldierly face. He went up with Mrs. Sumter and looked critically over the damage to the window in what had been Miriam's room. She had moved per force to the front—to Katherine's—room Saturday night, for toward sunset the storm sash was torn out of the north dormer, and the window blew in with a crash.

It was easy to see how and why the storm sash had failed to withstand the buffeting. In his frantic haste and panicky flight the intruder of Friday night had wrenched a hinge from its fastening. The sash had sagged at the windward end, and the rest was easy for rude Boreas.

"That sash is probably somewhere down in the back yard, sergeant," Sumter quietly remarked to faithful Kennedy. "It's under fifteen feet of snow, but when it comes to tunneling look after it, see that it isn't injured, and call me as soon as you find it."

Mrs. Sumter knew the reason of his instructions.

It must have been after 12, for orderly call and mess had sounded in front of the adjutant's office when one of the hospital attendants came floundering up the row from Lanier's and made his way to Sumter's door, a little note in his hand. Mrs. Sumter answered the maid's knock at the door of Miss Kate's room, into which the damsels were now doubled. To the disappointment of that somewhat volatile domestic Mrs. Sumter closed the portal before proceeding to open the missive, but her announcement, "From Mr. Lanier," caused Miriam Arnold to sit bolt upright. It read:

Dear Mrs Sumter—I've been living since Saturday mainly on your kindness and that delicious fruit. It was more than good of you to take such care of your incarcerated sub, and I'm ashamed to have sent no earlier thanks, but we've been banked in until this morning. I reckon they'll find the paymaster's outfit snowed under somewhere down toward Nebraska, safe, but possibly starving. I'm all alone with nothing to read. If you have anything moral, instructive and guaranteed to soften the unrepentant sinner's heart don't send it, but tell me how you all stood the storm. I hope Miss Arnold is entirely recovered. Yours, most sincerely,

R. R. LANIER.

"The last thing a man mentions in a note is the first thing he wants answered," said Mrs. Sumter sagely. "What shall I tell him for you, Miriam?"

"Tell me what is to be done to him," was the sole reply as the girl settled back dejectedly upon the pillows.

"I've tried to, child," answered her hostess kindly, patiently. "There isn't a court in the army that would sentence him to more than a brief confinement to limits and reprimand." Yet Mrs. Sumter spoke with much less confidence than on Saturday. Had not her husband had to tell her his application for leave was withdrawn, and why? Had not Dr. Larrabee admitted to her that the colonel spoke of misdeeds far more serious for which Lanier must suffer?

CHAPTER IV.

EVEN as Mrs. Sumter strove to assure Miss Arnold that a military arrest was far more portentous in sound that in effect, something in Kate's determined silence and Miriam's insistence added to the effect of these rumors.

Then another thing weighed heavily upon the brave heart of this loving friend and mother. Never had she known her child to be so silent, so strange, as now. Ever since Friday night she seemed to avoid all mention of the affair, to shrink from the subject—she who had ever been frankness itself, she who had never had a thought the mother did not share. She seemed oppressed with some secret.

But why should the situation so strangely affect her daughter? Could it be that she, too, cared for Bob Lanier?

She was writing her reply to his note when Maggie again appeared. "Two gentlemen to see the captain, mum," and Mrs. Sumter hurriedly closed the note and went below stairs to meet them. She knew well who they were and why they had come. A branch office of the Rocky Mountain Detective agency had been maintained long months at the great and growing railway station. They had been summoned by her husband, and that was enough.

They asked to be shown the room, with the storm battered dormer, by this time emptied of its load of snow. They asked to see Miriam's desk. They smiled at the idea of the paymaster being held up and robbed in broad daylight by any gang in their neighborhood.

While they were yet at their work there came sounds of stamping feet at the front door, and in came Sumter, stiff from cold, but brimful of energy.

"Found Scott and his clerk, at least," he cried. "Most dead and half frozen! The driver's gone, I fear. He was blown or pitched off. The mules ran away before the gale. Those inside the ambulance were helpless. Two dropped off behind and are lost. The thing finally capsized and went to pieces, and they managed to reach a little cattle shack two miles south of town. They've found Lanier's striker, too—what's left of him."

By this time Kate had come downstairs.

"Have they found Rawdon?" she asked fearfully.

"No, not a sign of him anywhere!"

"Is that the young fellow that those sergeants have been hunting for?" asked one of the detectives. "We managed to find out about him. He was in town as early as 3 o'clock Friday, and he left on No. 6 that night."

"Do you mean to tell me," said Sumter, gazing blankly at the speaker, "that he wasn't out here when—this—happened?"

"Not unless he had wings! That train leaves at 11:40."

Another day went by. Major Scott and his clerk, under Larrabee's skillful touch, were gradually regaining strength and beginning to answer questions. The ambulance was curtained in even at the rear, through which the two scared troopers had managed to slip to their doom. Not until the snows melted in the spring and the contents of the ravines should be revealed was it likely they would be heard of again. The railway was still blocked. The wires were still down. Fort Cushing stood isolated from the outer world, and no less than five of its garrison were absent and unaccounted for. The two men detailed to drive in with the paymaster, two bacchanalians who, being in town when the storm broke, had dared each other to face the gale and tramp out, and finally a young trooper named Cary, who had arrived with the same recruit squad that brought them Rawdon and had been on terms of friendship, if not, indeed, of intimacy, with him.

Along toward dusk on Tuesday others of the searching squadron sent afar down the valley had come back, reporting that the ambulance mules were found, huddled together, half starved and still half harnessed, in a log shack or shelter to which their instinct had guided them after their heels had made chopsticks of the running gear. The ambulance body was snowed under somewhere and nowhere in sight. The driver, a civilian employed in the quartermaster's department, had totally disappeared. Scott, the paymaster; Thomas, his clerk, and Rafferty, Lanier's soldier servant, or "striker," as then called, were still half dazed.

One more unfortunate, the driver of Foster's sleigh, was in trouble. Not until two hours after the dance had he turned up with the missing equipage, a cock and bull story, and a case of what the corporal called "jag." He swore that, having got chilled through, waiting, he just thought to get one hot whisky at the store. Sentry No. 6 said he'd mind the team while the driver went in, and the next thing he knew "they'd run'd away, bell for leather," and he, their driver, had to follow two miles to Flint's ranch, close to town, where he "might have taken a nip or two more." It was his first offense and Foster forgave. It should be remarked, however, that No. 6 declared that it was not he with whom the driver left the sleigh, but two "fellers"—i. e., troopers—who happened to be near the store.

There were sorrow and estrangement at Sumter's. Never before, as Mrs. Sumter declared, had Katherine ever had a secret from her mother. Moreover, Miriam Arnold was affected in precisely the same way. She shrank from all mention of that mysterious affair of Friday night.

Wednesday night when Sergeant Fitzroy returned to the post and asked to see the colonel that officer, who was at dinner, sent answer that he would be at the office at 8 o'clock and, further, sent word to Captain Snaffle to be there at the same hour.

A spell of sharp cold had followed the blizzard. The young people of the garrison were out in force at night rejoicing in the snow sports. The men had made some famous slides over at the bluffs, and the children along the officers' lines were playing hide and seek about the drifts and tunnels at the northward end of the parade.

Captain Sumter had been sent for and was admitted to a five minute talk with the colonel at his quarters and came away with a grave and troubled face to a ten minutes' conference with his gentle wife that left her sorely worried and distressed.

"Ask Kate," he said as once more he set forth into the night. "I've got to tramp and think this over before I do anything further." And at that moment Kate and Miriam had gone in to talk awhile with Mrs Stannard.

"He doesn't remind me of anybody that I used to know."—Detroit Free Press.

POWDER AND GUNS.

Evidence That They Were Used Long Before the Christian Era.

There is abundant evidence that the origin of gunpowder and artillery goes far back in the dim ages of the past.

The Hindoo code, compiled long before the Christian era, prohibited the making of war with cannon and guns or any kind of firearms. Quintus Curtius informs us that Alexander the Great met with fire weapons in Asia, and Philostratus says that Alexander's conquests were arrested by the use of gunpowder. It is also written that those wise men who lived in the cities of the Ganges "overthrew their enemies with tempests and thunderbolts shot from the walls." Julius Africanus mentions shooting powder in the year 275. It was used in the siege of Constantinople in 668, by the Arabs in 690, at Thessalonica in 904, at the siege of Belgrade in 1073, by the Greeks in naval battle in 1608, by the Arabs against the Iberians in 1147 and at Toulouse in 1218.

It appears to have been generally known throughout civilized Europe as early as 1300, and soon thereafter it made its way into England, where it was manufactured during the reign of Elizabeth, and we learn that a few arms were possessed by the English in 1310 and that they were used at the battle of Crecy in 1346.—Cassier's Magazine.

SHERIDAN'S RUSE.

It Settled the Dramatist's Account With His Wine Merchant.

It is related of Richard Brinsley Sheridan, the dramatist and statesman, that, always in debt, he had among his creditors the brothers Chalie, who were the partners in a wine firm in 1775.

One day when he was giving a dinner party to some distinguished people Sheridan sent for one of the brothers, told him he was now able to settle his account and invited him to the dinner party, asking him to come before the hour for some private conversation.

Chalie arrived early, and he was no sooner in the house than Sheridan sent off a servant with a note to the clerk, desiring him, as Mr. Chalie was favoring him with his company, to send as soon as possible three dozen of burgundy, two dozen of claret and two dozen of port, with a dozen of old hock.

The unsuspecting clerk sent the wine, with which the guests were so pleased that they asked where it came from. Sheridan, turning toward Chalie, said, "I am indebted to my friend here for all the wine you have tasted and am always proud to recommend him."

It was not until the following morning that Chalie realized the double meaning in Sheridan's words. The debt was canceled.

A Queer Fish.

A male fish which hatches the young of its mate is the Chromis paterfamilias. It is found in the Lake of Tiberias, Palestine. Strange to say, this industrious fish hatches its young in its mouth. When the female has spawned in the sand, the male approaches and draws the eggs into his gills, where they remain until hatched, when they struggle out of their confinement into the parent's mouth. As many as 200 perfect young are sometimes found in the mouth of an adult male. How the fish manages to feed itself without swallowing the young is a mystery. The grown fish is about seven inches long and one and three-quarters wide. Its back is olive green, shot with blue, and the belly is silver white, marked with green and blue. Near ancient Capernaum some hot springs form a small stream which runs into the lake, and it is in these warm waters that the chromis abounds.

No Common Dog.

"Gentleman (to dog dealer)—I gave you a high price for this dog last week because you warranted it to be a good house dog. My house was broken into last night, and the dog never even barked.

Dog Dealer—No, sir; I quite believes yer. 'He was too busy lookin' for the burglars, so as to be able to identify 'em, to even think of barkin'. If you was out with this 'ere dog and was to meet 'em burglars he'd know 'em in a minute. He ain't no common barkin' dog; he's a reg'ler 'tective an' worth 'is weight in gold, he is.—London Answers.

Not Her Fault.

Mrs. Lapsling was expressing her regret that she had been unable on account of illness to be present at the funeral of a neighbor.

"I always feel," she said, "that I ought to attend the obloquies of a friend, but I just couldn't go."—Chicago Tribune.

Inherited.

"And now," said Professor Longhunter as he greeted Henry Peck, "what shall we make of your little boy—a lecturer? He has a sincere taste for it."

"I know he has," replied the male parent. "He inherits it from his mother."

Dividing Her Weight.

We are inclined to believe in those whom we do not know because they have never deceived us.—Johnson.

ARAB MANNERS.

Life In the Tents of the Roving and Eloquent Bedouins.

"By living with the Arabs, doing as they did and moving with them in their migrations," writes Douglas Carruthers in the Geographical Journal, "I obtained an insight into their mode of life and customs. Things move slowly in the east, and I spent fourteen days in buying three camels. But the time was not wasted. I studied Arab manners, learned more or less how to eat with my hands, how to wear the Arab costume with some comfort, how to drink coffee a la Arab, and, most difficult of all, how to sit still all day long doing nothing. I found this last most trying, more especially because it was cold. A Bedouin tent is a drafty place at the best, but in midwinter it is almost unbearable. On two occasions there was snow on the desert.

"We used to feed out of a huge round dish, ten of us at a time. The fare was camels' milk and bread in the morning, and in the evening we generally had meat and rice cooked with an enormous amount of fat. During the day we appeased our hunger by sipping strong black coffee. At night there was always a large group of men in the tent of the sheik, and the talk was carried on far into the night.

"Eloquence is a highly prized talent among the Bedouins, and not only would they recount their stories in the most beautiful manner, but on occasion, to the tune of a single stringed violin, they would sing extempore songs for hours on end."

KEEPING HIS RECORDS.

Unusual Business Methods of a Merchant In Western Canada.

In the Bookkeeper is recorded a case which clearly comes under the head of "unusual business methods." In a thickly settled prairie district in western Canada, not far from Moose Jaw, a few Canadians had opened up a coal mine, the product of which they sold to the surrounding farmers. Settlers would come in wagons and sleighs and load their own winter's fuel, which cost them from $1 to $2 a ton, according to the run. It was early winter when I first made the acquaintance of this mine and its remarkable "superintendent," and my first reception from this individual was a fierce yell on his part, with the frantic brandishing of a long stick and the words: "What the devil are you doing? Can't you see? Are you stone blind?"

I was literally walking through his books! Since morning—and this was at 3 o'clock in the afternoon—he had been keeping a record of outgoing sleighs and wagons of coal in the snow. About twenty farmers were drawing that day. With his stick he had written the initials of each in a clean spot in the snow and with that same stick had registered the number of tons they had taken away. I had spoiled one-half of his "books," and it was an hour before he became at all affable. I was still more astonished when I entered the "superintendent's" little board office. The walls were black with pencil marks, figures and names. A fire would have burned down his "book" of two years past.

Where Microbes Thrive.

The alimentary canal is the most perfect culture tube known to bacteriological science. No part of the body is so densely populated with micro-organisms. It is estimated that in the alimentary canal of the average adult about 128,000,000,000 microbes come into existence every day. They crowd this region so densely that scientists originally believed that they were indispensable to human life. According to a writer in McClure's, Pasteur, who first discovered them, maintained this view, but recent investigations have rather disproved it. There are many animals that exist in perfect health without any intestinal bacteria at all. Polar bears, seals, penguins, eider ducks, arctic reindeer—these and other creatures in the arctic zone have few traces of these organisms.

Not to Be Fooled.

A certain magazine once took to advertising by means of personal letters. A critic got this letter:

Dear Brown—Have you seen article in this month's Trash Magazine? Heavens, can it be true? X.

But the critic, not to be fooled, sent to the editor of the Trash—in an unstamped envelope, so that double postage would be charged—this answer:

Dear X.—I have seen one previous number of the Trash Magazine, and with heart and soul I hope never to see another. This is quite true. BROWN.

Progress.

"How is your boy getting on at school?"

"First rate," answered Farmer Corntossel. "He's goin' to be a great help on the farm. He knows the botanical names for cabbage an' beans already, an' all he has to do now is to learn to raise 'em."—Washington Star.

Too Much of a Target.

Brown—How did you feel, Jones, when the burglar had you covered with his revolver—pretty small, eh? Jones—Small! Great Scott, no! I felt as big as the side of a house.—Boston Transcript.

A Necessity.

Judge—Why did you burn your barn down just after getting it insured? Farmer—Your honor, a poor man like me can't afford to have a barn and insurance too.—Meggendorfer Blätter.

MR. FOWLER'S GRIEVANCE

A Retrospect of Perennial Republican Candidate's Political Career.

HE WANTS TO HOLD ON.

Offended Because of Expressions of Opinion Voiced by Representative Men in His Own District Recently.

On the eve of the primaries, both Representative Charles N. Fowler, of Elizabeth, and Judge William N. Runyon, of this city, the rival candidates for the Republican congressional nomination, are still actively at work advancing their claims and pushing their respective campaigns for votes generally. Mr. Runyon's record as a citizen and as an official is too well known to waste any space reviewing it. How he has given his time and his uplifting influence in behalf of his fellow man and the community at large and has been a true friend of the people at all times is known to all. By reason of his education, his wide experience with men and his grasp of public questions, no one doubts his ability to truly, ably and faithfully represent this district in Congress.

Mr. Fowler has already served eight terms, covering a period of sixteen years. He considers that he has made a good record and he really believes he is popular among the mass of Republican voters. This notwithstanding that four years ago he insisted upon running although it was known that he was thereby endangering Republican success at the polls. The fear was not without a good basis. The entire Republican ticket in Union county triumphed, but Mr. Fowler narrowly escaped defeat, even losing his own city, Elizabeth. It was Morris that saved the day, for there the very men Mr. Fowler is now reviling worked with might and main for him, pulling him through by a few hundred majority. Think of it, a district normally Republican by some 6,000 gave Mr. Fowler but 300 or 400 majority over his Democratic opponent. His record since then has been anything but one to win for him the favor of his constituents.

By seniority of service, Mr. Fowler had been serving as chairman of a most important committee in Congress. He had been appointed to the place by the Speaker. His ideas, were not in harmony with his party's—that is at least on the financial question. Speaker Cannon, in making up the committees of the House, that's the duty devolving on him, deposed Mr. Fowler as chairman and put another in his place. What did Mr. Fowler do? Did he say that he was a good Republican and that if the Speaker—chosen by the majority of Republicans in the House—thought that another was better for the place all well and good. Oh, no, Mr. Fowler came out as an Insurgent. More than this, he came out with a scathing denunciation of Speaker Cannon. He shouted against Cannon and joined in the hue and cry against "Cannonism." As he stated here in a speech only a few days ago, he made up his mind that if he lived he would drive Cannon out of oplitical life. He wanted revenge.

After doing all the mischief for the party he could at Washington, Mr. Fowler came back into his district and began to lay his plans for another term. But he didn't meet with the success he anticipated. When a Union county leader was asked about the situation, he frankly stated that in his opinion Mr. Fowler was a "self-centered man" and that he didn't think the people wanted him. On top of this, out came a Morris county leader with a statement that he thought the people in Morris felt the same way about Mr. Fowler. This man had been a warm personal friend of Mr. Fowler.

Stung by such expressions, Mr. Fowler did not say that he thought that the people had been very kind to him and that he would not seek a ninth term; that if the people wanted him he would serve, but would make no fight for it. Oh, no, Mr. Fowler said nothing of the kind. Instead he issued a long public letter in which he denounced these two particular men in the most unmeasured terms. It was the greatest exhibition of mud-slinging by a Jersey statesman that the people of this State had witnesed probably in the memory of man. No other man could get that nomination if Mr. Fowler could prevent him; he wanted it for himself and he was going to appear in the role of the martyr and incidently throw as much mud at his party's record and at the leaders in his district as he could. He is doing it.

S. T. Perrin will be the speaker at the Plainfield Rescue Mission meeting in the W. C. T. U. rooms on Madison avenue, tomorrow night, at 8 o'clock. There will be good music.

"THE ARCADIANS" TO BE SEEN AT THE THEATRE

Amusement lovers will be interested in the announcement made today by Proctor & Sanderson, that two of Charles Frohman's biggest productions will be presented at The Plainfield theatre soon. "The Arcadians," now in the second year in New York city, will be seen here on Monday night, October 3. This will be the original company and the play will be produced here exactly as it has been witnessed in New York. "The Arcadians" is considered one of the best musical plays of recent times and has had unusual success during its long run.

The second big attraction will be Maude Adams, who will make her first appearance in this city. This talented woman, who has had phenomenal success in J. M. Barrie's delightful plays, will be seen here in one of the latest productions on Saturday night, October 8. The name of the play to be presented will be announced within a few days.

The last performances of "St. Elmo" will be presented at the theatre this afternoon and tonight by the stock company. This play was enjoyed last night by a large and appreciative audience. On Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday the company will present that pleasing comedy, "The Man on the Box."

MRS. CHARLES WESTERVELT SEVERELY INJURED BY FALL.

Mrs. Charles Westervelt, aged about 58 years, who lives with her brother-in-law, Charles Thompson, at 237 East Third street, fell down stairs at the above address last night, fracturing one wrist and spraining the other; also receiving a bad cut in the back of the head. She was attended by Dr. T. H. Tomlinson. While her condition is not serious, she will be detained to the house for some time.

Mrs. Westervelt was standing at the top of the stairs, about to descend, when she was seized with a dizzy spell, and fell the full length of the stairs. At the bottom her head struck a small chair, inflicting a painful wound from which the blood flowed freely, and which will probably leave a deep scar.

An Auto Mishap.

Jacob Dunham, janitor of the Smalley building on North avenue, was run down over by L. B. Harris' automobile early this morning, at the corner of Park avenue and Second street. He was badly shaken up but his injuries are not serious. As Dunham was crossing the street at the corner, his attention was attracted by an automobile coming toward him on Park avenue and he did not notice Harris' car, which was going west on Second street, until the machine was too near for him to escape. The colored chauffeur applied his brakes but not before Dunham was knocked down and a wheel had passed over his legs. The injured man was assisted to his feet by a passerby and Patrolman Dobson ordered the man taken home in Harris' auto. No blame was attached to the colored chauffeur for the accident.

Trephagen—Scheelein.

A wedding of interest to a number of Plainfielders took place Wednesday evening in Jersey City, when Miss Florence Scheelein, daughter of Mrs. Catharine Scheelein, was married to Louis Trephagen at the home of the bride's mother. The Rev. J. C. Jerolaman officiated. The bride had two maids, Miss Anna Scheelein, a sister, and Miss Elvira Hoersler, a cousin, of this city. She was given in marriage by George Scheelein, an uncle, of this city. The bridesmaids wore gowns of pink silk mull and the bride was gowned in white crepe de chine with Irish lace trimmings.

GEORGE VOEHL GETS A MARRIAGE LICENSE.

Among the marriage license issued at the Board of Health office, this week, was one to Miss Carry Bechtle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bechtle, Jr., of West Second street, and George Voehl, of Verdon street, the borough.

Mr. Voehl was for many years engaged in the bakery business this city, and sold out a few months ago. Miss Bechtle has held a position for a long time with John Wirth, the West Front street baker. The wedding will take place next week.

Walked Home From the Lake.

Percy Bailey, George Townley, of the borough, and James Buckle, Jr., of this city, who have been enjoying their vacation at Lake Hopatcong, returned home on Wednesday, walking all the way from the lake. They left at 5 o'clock in the morning, reaching Plainfield at 6 o'clock in the evening, going by the way of Dover and Morristown. They were a tired lot of boys, but declared that they enjoyed the long tramp.

BORO DEMOCRATS RALLY

Both Martine and Swackhamer Speak at Opening of Headquarters.

EACH IS A CANDIDATE.

Walter Linbarger Acts as Chairman —An Enthusiastic Meeting Where Nationnal Issues Are Discussed.

The borough Democratic headquarters at 83 Somerset street were formally opened for the campaign last night. Ninety citizens attended. James E. Martine, candidate for the nomination for United States Senator, and Samuel S. Swackhamer, probable candidate for the nomination to Congress, were the speakers.

The meeting was opened by Walter C. Linbarger, of the Somerset county executive committee. He told of the Democratic situation in the borough and said that the party expected to make an aggressive fight. He announced that the headquarters would be open every night until election day. Samuel S. Swackhamer confined his remarks to national issues, speaking against the present high tariff and the cost of living. He also took occasion to express his sentiments against the unnecessary expenditures in the Federal government. The speaker told of the work of Congressman Wood in the lower house. The subject of local option was not discussed by him.

When James E. Martine, the candidate for the nomination for United States Senator, was introduced, a round of applause greeted the "farmer orator" as he stepped to the platform. He announced it was his intention to confine his remarks also to State and National issues and he told of the iniquities of the present high tariff and the cost of living. He pointed out that the price of foodstuffs and necessities of life had increased 60 per cent during the last few years whereas the increase in salaries had only been 15 per cent. Mr. Martine also took a crack at the unnecessary expenditures in the government and delayed general misrule.

The "farmer orator" explained to the borough voters the position which United States Senator John R. Kean took on the Payne-Aldrich tariff bill and sarcastically said that Mr. Kean in his humanity and charity had voted for a high tariff on all the necessities of life and the only article, which he wished to have admitted on the free list, was poloponies.

Mr. Martine spoke of his own candidacy for nomination and told of the platform upon which he stood. He urged the support of the voters. He also mentioned Samuel S. Swackhamer as a most suitable choice for the nomination for Congressman.

The meeting was attended by all of the borough democratic candidates, Frank Mobus, and several of the Republican veterans. Among these was Mayor Newton B. Smalley, whom Mr. Martine took occasion to jolly.

Staff-Captain Anderson to Speak.

He is an Irishman by birth, met the Army in California many years ago, and has held many important commands in different parts of the country. While his visit is in the interest of young people's work, he will also conduct the morning and evening service. The public is invited.

FOOTBALL SEASON BUT THREE WEEKS OFF

With the college football season but three weeks away, coaches are already sending their stars letters telling them where to report to get into condition for the gruelling grind of the season of 1910. The adoption of changes in the rules will make the game even more attractive to the spectator than they were last year. The dangerous diving tackle has been abolished and such changes in the forward pass have been made as will make this play still more open and more thrilling.

It will be a year for the lithe, wiry youngster rather than the heavy veteran and great knowledge of the old game will not be a necessary qualification for an aspiring youth who wants to shine on any one of the big college elevens.

The smaller colleges are supposed to have been given more chance against their bigger rivals than ever before, but as the season progresses it will probably be noticed that Yale, Harvard, Princeton and Pennsylvania will still be in the van, as usual.

PAROUBEK SUIT MONDAY

Year Old Controversy to Be Presented to Vice Chancellor Garrison Next Monday.

WRIST BANDS THE CAUSE.

Plainfield Musician to be Represented by George W. V. Moy— Many Patents Involved.

The suit which was begun several months ago against B. A. Paroubek, of this city, a former member of the firm of Paroubek Bros., by his brother, A. E. Paroubek, on what Mr. Paroubek believes to be his own rights, will be heard before Vice-Chancellor Garrison in Jersey City on Monday. George W. V. Moy will represent Mr. Paroubek, of this city while Miller & Lichenstein will appear for the other brother.

The suit is caused by a contention in which one brother claims that the other has abrogated a contract of faith in which certain patents are involved. These patents concern certain wrist protectors on both of which the brothers claim they own the patents. Many motormen and chauffeurs who today owe their dexterity in manipulating the steering wheel or the brake have decided that the invention of the brothers has helped them materially in their work.

Some months ago one of the brothers decided that he wanted to retire from the firm and start in business for himself, and believed that he had a perfect right to do so under the contract with his brother, but it is alleged that the latter had other intentions and has tried in several ways to prevent his Plainfield relative from doing business. The matter will probably be settled on Monday when the case is tried before Vice-Chancellor Garrison.

A story of the different manufactures concerned in the suit which will be tried on Monday have been published in The Daily Press before and the belief of those who are acquainted with Mr. Paroubek in this city is that he ought to win out.

Mr. Paroubek, of Plainfield, is a musician who has aside from his business devoted much of his time to the entertainment of his friends and bears a character of the highset kind.

HEAR RUNYON TONIGHT!

Although many have asked to have seats reserved for them for the Republican mass meeting at Reform Hall, West Second street and Central avenue, tonight, City Chairman Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., announced today that he cannot comply with the requests. The meeting is intended for all Republican voters and those who go early will get the choice seats.

Judge William N. Runyon, the congressional candidate, will begin his speech promptly at 8 o'clock. He will deliver a stirring talk to his fellow townsmen in his usual, dignified and forceful manner. It is expected that he will have many things to say which will interest every voter for he is conducting a vigorous campaign.

It will be the first and last speech to be delivered here by Judge Runyon before the primaries on Tuesday. Go and hear him!

PROMINENT REPUBLICANS ENDORSE WM. G. DE MEZA.

In view of the approaching Primary Election and the importance of selecting a candilate for the office of City Judge, We, the Undersigned Republican voters of Plainfield, realizing the need of nominating and electing a man in whom the Citizens of this city can feel will bring to the office the necessary qualifications, namely: Honesty, independence, and fairness, are of the firm opinion that William G. De Meza, possessing these qualities in connection with his ability, is well qualified in every way to fill the office in a dignified and creditable manner. We feel that from a party standpoint that Mr. De Meza by virtue of his unquestioned lifelong loyalty to his party and the active interest he has always taken in its success, justly entitles him to the nomination.

Should our party select him as the candidate, we feel that the citizens of this, his native city, will take pleasure in honoring him with an election.

PLAINFIELD POLICEMEN PLAN FOR ANNUAL DANCE

Thursday, November 10, has been selected by the local branch of the Patrolmen's Benevolent Association for their second annual ball. It will be held in Saengerbund Hall in the borough. The following patrolmen have been selected to act on the various committees, with Andrew Saffron as president, and Richard Birmingham, secretary:

Refreshments, William Messler, chairman; Dennis O'Keefe and Chas. Flynn. Reception, Charles Keller, chairman; Daniel MacDonald, Chas. Flynn and George Dobson. Music, Dennis O'Keefe, chairman; Lemuel Pope, Cornelius McCarthy, Nicholas Meyers. Hall, Charles Flynn, chairman; Richard Burmingham, Thomas Flatley, Frank Sweeney. Printing, Arthur McGinley, chairman; Tobias Nolan, Frank Culver.

The ball and banquet last year was a decided success and served to show the half thousand guests just what timber composes the local force. A splendid time was passed by the throngs who attended the last function at Truell Hall, and the patrolmen hope that the coming event will be as pleasant. Their efforts will be directed toward accomplishing that desirable end.

FORTY THOUSAND BALLOTS ORDERED

There have been printed for the use of all parties on primary day, 40,000 ballots and they will be distributed among the different polling places of the city by City Clerk James T. MacMurray in time for use on Tuesday. The polls will be opened from 1 o'clock in the afternoon until 9 o'clock in the evening.

The supporters of Charles N. Fowler, who seeks a re-nomination as Congressman, as well as a seat in the United States Senate to succeed John Kean, have been very active in placing literature and marked ballots in the hands of the voters throughout the Fifth district. They were received here this morning. The ballots are accompanied by a printed copy of a letter from Mr. Fowler, which was printed in these columns this week.

The various candidates for nomination on the Republican ticket in this city are also busy getting marked ballots in the hands of the voters. This is particularly true in the contest for the city judgeship. Each one of the seven aspirants are conducting a lively campaign. There is also an active campaign on seeking votes for the delegates to the Congressional campaign to be held here on Friday, September 16. The fight is between the Runyon and Fowler forces, there being a contest in every ward of the city.

The mayoralty contest is also arousing great interest. B. Frank Coriell, a "regular," is opposed for the nomination by George W. V. Moy, a Progressive and each one is presenting his claims to the voters. The result, it is believed, will be close. There are no other contests of note, as the Democrats have not named a complete ticket, even defaulting in the matter of selecting a candidate for mayor. This assures the election of a Republican ticket in the city.

The Progressive Republican Committee has issued the following announcement regarding the municipal candidates: "We cordially endorse George W. V. Moy for mayor, and J. Henry Crane for city judge, and emphatically urge all voters at the Republican primary to support these men, both of whom are loyal Republicans, and are working for the best interests of the city."

Borough Schools Ready.

On Monday morning, from 9:00 to 12:00 o'clock, Supervising Principal Krebs will be at the Somerset school to receive and classify all pupils who have not before attended the borough schools.

At 4:00 p. m. the entire corps of teachers will assemble to receive directions for the opening day; and on Tuesday morning at the regular school hours the work of the year will be resumed.

It is the custom of the borough schools to hold full sessions on the very first day, lessons being given and taught at once, so that no time may be lost through red tape preliminaries. ***

Martin Hertz a Bankrupt.

Martin Hertz, formerly engaged in the lace business on East Front street, had been declared a bankrupt on a petition filed by F. L. C. Martin, one of the creditors, who is represented by Judge William Newcorn. H. C. Runyon has been appointed receiver. Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., represents Marcus Silbert, one of the creditors.

WHERE CORIELL STANDS

Mayoralty Candidate Issues a Statement Setting Forth His Views.

HE FAVORS JOINT SEWERS.

Better Light in Business Section—Water "M. O." if Profitable to City—No Favoritism—Contracts Enforcement.

Former Sheriff B. Frank Coriell, candidate for the Republican mayoralty nomination has come out with a statement, telling where he stands on questions of local interest. His opponent, George W. V. Moy's statement has already been published in these columns. He favors a joint sewage disposal system; better illumination for the business section; strict enforcement of all franchises and the agreements with public utility corporations, including the trolley and electric light companies; no favoritism in office, and municipal ownership of the water supply if it is demonstrated that it would be a profitable venture for the city.

B. Frank Coriell.

Mr. Coriell's statement follows:

"As I have been persuaded by several of the prominent citizens of our city to become a candidate for the Republican nomination for mayor of our city, and as my opponent, Mr. Moy, has seen fit to issue a platform upon which he asks the support of the voters of the Republican party, it would seem proper for me also to make known my position in regard to city affairs.

"First, I am in favor of municipal ownership of our water supply if it can be shown that the same is self-supporting, so that the bonds issued for the construction and maintenance of the same can be reduced from year to year without increasing our present water rates.

"If a just and fair agreement can be entered into with the borough of North Plainfield, I should favor the same, so that the present sewer-beds might be removed from our city, and property in that portion of the city would then increase in value, which would be a benefit to the city. I understand that our present sewer-beds will, in a short time, require considerable expense, and it would seem to me proper that we should try and make arrangements with the borough, as they are now making arrangements for a sewer-plant.

"I favor having better lights in the business portion of our city, and it would seem to me that some arrangement might be made with the merchants of our city whereby the same might be accomplished with a very slight increase in cost to either the city or our merchants. I understand it has been done in Newark and other cities.

"The permanent improvement of our streets in the business portion of the city was agitated some time ago. It was taken up by the Board of Trade, and through their influence the Common Council took action, and we have the brick pavement. Personally I would have favored the Hassem pavement, which could have been put down at less expense, and which, I think, would have given better satisfaction. Nevertheless, we have the brick pavement, and it is up to the Common Council and a duty they owe to the business men of the city to see that it is kept properly cleaned, which is far from being done; and if elected Mayor, I would use my influence with the Common Council to have it done if possible.

"We have a growing city, and while I believe in economy in running the same, it must be recognized that from the class of people that are coming here to make their homes we cannot run it as a country village, but must keep up with the improvements that a city of our size needs. Last year our taxes were $1.68. I believe they should be reduced to about $1.50 or $1.60, and that would not be an unreasonable amount upon our present valuation, and by the exercise of close economy I believe the same can be done. The taxes in the borough and cities near us are higher than ours, and they

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

The application of the borough boys and girls, who are going to the Plainfield High School this year, were filed with Principal Guy H. Rentchelar yesterday. There will be about the same number of students to the high school this year as last. As matters now stand, the borough pays for each student that goes to the high school, providing the tuition and the car fare for each one. The students yesterday received their cards, which they will present to the Plainfield High School principal, Lindsey Best, and their identification cards for use on the trolley cars. School opens in Plainfield this year next Tuesday, when the work will begin the first day of the session. It is expected that the enrollment in the Plainfield High School will be even larger than usual and will tax the capacity of the building to the utmost. During the summer the school has been thoroughly cleaned from top to bottom and everything is now ready for the opening next week.

SOMERVILLE.

Edith Lynch, nine years old, who is staying at the Bradley farm above Raritan, had a narrow escape from serious injury about noon Wednesday. She was seated beside the coachman, who was driving west. Opposite Division street two wheels of the carriage caught in the trolley tracks and were broken, throwing the occupants of the vehicle to the street. The coachman was not injured, but the little miss received a number of bruises about the face and body, a deep cut under the chin, requiring several stitches. The horse attempted to run away, but was caught before going a great distance. Officer Hanlon took the girl to the office of Dr. Flynn, who attended to her.

SHOOTS HIMSELF WHILE DREAMING.

Asbury Park, Sept. 10.—The police are trying to find out if A. W. VonZuker, a musician and formerly in the wholesale piano business in New York, shot himself in a dream. Mrs. VonZuker found her husband asleep in their apartment in a small hotel and bleeding from a wound in his forehead. She asked what he had done.

"Why there are thieves in the house," said he, "and I have just shot a burglar."

VonZuker was conscious and told the physicians who were summoned that he shot himself while dreaming of burglars. The man was taken to extracted. It was stated last night the hospital, where the bullet was the dreamer would recover.

GOLF.

H. Chandler Egan, of Exmoor; Albert Seckel, of Riverside, and D. E. Sawyer, of Wheaton, left Thursday for Boston to compete in the national amateur golf championship tournament. The decision of Sawyer to go was made at the eleventh hour. He has been suffering from eye trouble and was disguised behind a pair of blue goggles.

The former Western champion consulted an oculist before leaving, and was told he might practice one or two days before the tournament if his eyes do not get any worse.

Robert A. Gardner, the national champion, left early yesterday, and Paul Hunter is expected to follow today. Mason Phelps, the Western champion, who is now in British Columbia on business, did not send in his entry.

The vanguard of the biggest army of amateur golfers that has ever started in an amateur championship in this country has arrived on the unbunkered but well trapped course of the Brookline Country Club, over which the title event of the year will be fought out next week.

Among those who practised Thursday were Wirt L. Thompson, the Philadelphia champion; W. C. Fownes, Jr., of Pittsburg; John M. Ward, of New York, the old ball player, and S. D. Bowers, of Bridgeport. The Chicago contingent, including Robert A. Gardner, the national title holder, will be playing by today.

DIRIGIBLES A FAILURE IN GREMAN WAR GAME.

Preussich-Holland, Prussia, Sept. 10.—The two dirigible balloons used for aerial scout duty by the opposing armies in the imperial maneuvers failed grievously yesterday, one crew leading its army into an ambuscade, while the other crew fell into the hands of the enemy when the motor of its machine gave out. The invading army triumphed.

The dirigible operating with the defenders reported yesterday forewhat the airmen took to be the exact noon what the airmen took to be the exact location of far-extended entrenched lines of the invaders' infantry and artillery. Upon receipt of this information the defenders advanced in a strong attack only to find, when the thin line of invaders retreated, that they were storming a line of breastworks behind which trunks of trees instead of guns had been placed. Before they could recover from their mistake the defenders flank was attacked and a victory for the invaders ensued.

The dirigible of the invaders developed a defect in its motor, and, being compelled to descend, was captured by the enemy.

Sarto Connolly, the six-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. Connolly, of Highland lane, Nutley, is the owner of a picture of himself, which has been blessed by Pope Pius X., and the notation to that effect was made on the bottom by Monsignor Bresleti, the official who has charge of the Pope's household, at the Holy Father's direction.

Rev. Francis A. Foy, rector of St. Mary's church, East Nutley, just returned from a trip to Europe, during which time he was granted an audience with the Pope, took the picture of young Connolly with him and requested the blessing and yesterday presented it to the parents of the boy.

Sarto Connolly was born on September 29, 1903, during the coronation of the Pope on August 10 of that year. His parents named him after the new head of the church.

When the blessing on the picture was requested by Father Foy the Pope smilingly assented, and was pleased when told of the boy's naming. He commanded Monsignor Bresleti to write the inscription on the bottom of the photograph, as the Pope never signs any but State documents or decrees from the Vatican. The inscription is written in Latin, which being interpreted means literally: "Pius PP. X. gives the apostolic benediction. Dated July 28, 1910. (Signed) Bresleti, the official in charge of the Pope's household."

HOLD CONFERENCE ON FIREMEN'S PAY.

Elizabeth, Sept. 10.—Behind closed doors the Board of Fire Commissioners last night held a consultation with Mayor Victor Mravlag, City Attorney James C. Connolly and city officials. The conference was held in reference to the recent action of the fire commissioners in advancing the salaries of the chief and deputy chief.

Mayor Mravlag says that the board has no power to grant the increase; that the body which has charge of the finances of the city, meaning the finance committee of Council, can apportion the salaries, and no others.

City Attorney Connolly, when asked for an opinion, said that the commissioners have the power as long as they live within the appropriation. Mayor Mravlag has questioned this opinion.

Those who attended the conference included Mayor Mravlag, City Attorney Connolly, Frederick Kurtz, Secretary Cox, President of Council Alfred A. Stein and Alderman Owen Farrelly.

MOORE ADDRESSES CLUB.

Mayoralty Candidate Makes His First Speech in Campaign.

Elizabeth, Sept. 10.—Charles H. Moore, Democratic candidate for the Mayoralty nomination, made his first address last night at a meeting of the Fourth Ward Democratic Club. James E. Mr. Moore said that he had no platform, nor did he intend to make any promises, which, if elected, he might not be able to carry out. The only promise he made was that, if elected, he would give Elizabeth a businesslike administration.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

J. K. Patten, of Clayton, fell down stairs yesterday and sustained serious injuries.

Private Howard Press, who has deserted from the United States army three times, was captured at Atlantic City and taken to Fort Mott.

Upsetting a pot of hot coffee, Elwood Illis, eighteen months old, of 729 Walnut street, Camden, was badly scalded about the abdomen and legs.

Mrs. C. Turess was re-elected to succeed herself as president of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, at the annual election held yesterday in the union's headquarters at 156 Broadway, Paterson.

Friends of Robert Boyle, of Totows Borough, who is running for the office of mayor, predict that their candidate will be elected to the office by a large majority. Mr. Boyle is called the "Pioneer of the Borough."

Unable by probing to locate the bullet in the abdomen of Alfred Kerins, of Millville, who accidentally shot himself while chasing a mad dog, doctors at Cooper Hospital, Camden, will use the X-ray. Kerins is in a serious condition.

Struck by a falling block at the canning plant of the Joseph Campbell Company, Camden, last evening, Julius Kletl, forty-six years old, of 432 Beckett street, was injured about the back of the head. He was taken to Cooper Hospital.

In order to ascertain whether his arm will have to be amputated, Councilman George W. Lockwood, who was seriously shocked and burned by a live electric light wire he was repairing at Beverly Monday night, was taken to Cooper Hospital, Camden.

Lewis Johnston, fourteen years old, has been missing from his home, 193 Rose avenue, Jersey City, since September 6. When last seen he wore a white blouse with blue stripes, brown trousers, brown shoes and stockings, a gray hat and a white tie and collar.

A thousand happy boys and girls from Burlington and Bristol were guests of Captain William E. Doron at his annual "Kiddies' day" outing at Burlington Island Park yesterday. The big picnic was scheduled for last Thursday, but rain necessitated its postponement.

Through a mistake in signals a steel girder, weighing several tons, fell from a crane by which it was being hoisted at the Passaic Steel plant, Paterson, yesterday afternoon, and narrowly escaped crushing several men to death. But one was injured. He is John Post, of Pompton, who has a gash on his right forearm.

Peter Erico was struck in the face by the crank of a loom while at work at the plant of the Cadgene Silk Dyeing and Finishing Company, 12 Branch street, Paterson yesterday, and knocked unconscious. At St. Joseph Hospital, where he was taken in an ambulance, it was found that his cheek bone had been broken.

At a meeting of the Pica Club yesterday afternoon in the headquarters of the organization in Paterson, it was unanimously agreed to request the freeholders to name Mrs. J. P. MacDonnell to be county librarian, to succeed S. Fielder Palmer, deceased. Mrs. MacDonnell is the widow of the editor of The Labor Standard. She is in reduced circumstances.

The annual excursion of employes of the Pennsylvania Railroad will be held in Wildwood the coming week, when from 4,000 to 5,000 persons, including railroad employes and their families, will spend the day. Secretary E. E. North, of the Railroad Employes' Association, and J. Kellon made arrangements for the entertainment of the excursionists, aided by a special committee of the Board of Trade.

At Phillipsburg, Joseph Buehini mistook his friend, Joseph Santini, for a burglar and seriously wounded him by a charge of shot from a gun. The men board at the same place. Early in the morning Santini left the house to go to work, when two dogs in the yard set up a howl. Thinking Santini was a burglar, Buehini raised the window and fired, the shot lacerating the stomach of Santini and tearing the flesh from his right leg.

Henry R. Montgomery, ninety-five years old, who lived at 5334 Wakefield street, Germantown, was killed by a Pennsylvania Railroad train while crossing the tracks at Fifty-first street, Ocean City, yesterday. The mangled body was removed to Coroner Lake's morgue by Chief of Police Scull. The aged man is said to have been deaf and failed to hear the engine's warning whistle, and it was impossible to stop the train, when he was seen, in time to save him.

Ten thousand colored residents of Philadelphia, Wilmington, Chester and Baltimore arrived in Atlantic City yesterday on their annual excursion and monopolized the resort from noon till nightfall. Hundreds inspected the city from taxicabs. Colored residents reaped a harvest by serving dinners in the open air along Baltic avenue, where the excursionists held forth. An almost total absence of the disorder of former years surprised the police, but few arrests being made.

Plainfield, N. J., Sept. 10, 1910.

MR. FOWLER'S POSITION.

The somewhat peculiar and unusual position assumed by Charles N. Fowler, furishes food for thought for every voter in the Fifth Congressional District, Democrat and Republican alike. Notwithstanding his announcement made two years ago, if then elected he would not seek another nomination, he is now in evidence before the voters of the Fifth District, not only as a candidate to succeed himself for another term, but also as a candidate for the United States Senate to suceed Senator Kean.

Now Mr. Fowler has been frank in this matter, and made a public statement that if elected on November 8, and if elected to the United States Senate by our Legislature next winter, he will then decide whether he shall occupy the position of a member of the House of Representatives for which he is now working so strenuously, for another term of two years, or, whether he will choose to accept his election as a member of the United States Senate for a term of six years; and he has stated frankly that he would accept the higher office. Then in that event the Fifth Congressional District would be left in this dilemma, namely: On and after March 4, 1911, we would be without a representative in Congress.

It is most likely that many important matters will come before Congress for consideration in the near future, and, in the present more or less unsettled conditions of momentous national affairs, it is more than likely that an extra session of Congress will be called together before December, 1911. In that event the Fifth District would not for a moment consent to be without a representative in the House. Hence it would devolve upon said district to proceed without delay to call for a primary election to select other candidates; when this shall be done then the election of one from the selected candidates will follow. Who will represent the Fifth District for a full term? Of course, Mr. Fowler may not be elected and he may not be nominated, but nevertheless he has sent out notice to his followers (and given, at the same time, notice to all other voters) that if his efforts to secure election to both offices, and he should accept the position of Senator, by said action he possibly, and to the best of his ability, puts all the voters and all the taxpayers in the three counties forming the Fifth Congressional District to a vast amount of expense for his own personal, selfish, egotistical exaltation. For, as we have intimated, there would have to be held in every election district in every city, and in every township and every borough of each of said three counties a primary election, with a full board of election officers, under full pay at each election district; and when a candidate to fill the vacancy made by Mr. Fowler's resignation to enable him to take his seat in the Senate, has been duly selected by each party, then an election would have to be held in every election district in each of said three counties with a full board of election officers under full pay, at each oelection district to determine which of the candidates shall take Mr. Fowler's place in the House of Representatives. We cannot at the present moment even approximate the expense involved, in the proceedings referred to simply for the purpose of gratifying Mr. Fowler's overweening egotism, as we have not tabulated all the election districts in the three counties. Union county has seventy-two election districts. The compensation of each district board for the primaries is $28, which would bring the expense for their services alone, to say nothing of the cost of printing ballots, etc., for this county alone $2,016. The compension for the general election for eahc district board is $120, which means an expense of $8,640—more than a congressman's salary. Morris and Warren county would also be put to similar expense.

Now we want to ask the voters of Union county and of Morris and Warren as well, is it a reasonable proposition for you to act upon, simply to vote for Mr. Fowler at his earnest desire, so that, if you elect him, and the Legislature shall see fit, as he hopes, to elect him Senator, you will be up to the financial condition above set forth? Do you care to take the risk which he has imposed upon you? We would advise you to think twice before casting your votes for him, and if on reflection you desire to avoid this financial trap which Mr. Fowler has set for you for his benefit, take warning now before voting for him at the primary next Tuesday.

—Geo. C. M. Smith, violin instructor, will open his fifth season on Sept. 15 at his studio, 51 Craig Pl.

"In regard to the city officers under the control of the mayor, I wish to say that I shall hold them, if elected, to the strict performance of their duties without favoritism to any.

"I understand that at the self-constituted meeting of Mr. Moy that one of our ex-mayors took a fling at me in regard to the way in which I became a candidate for the mayoralty. I wish to say if any citizen will go to the city clerk's office and look over my petition, which was signed by more than 100 of our prominent citizens, they will understand how I became a candidate. If I went back to ancient history, I might be able to inform the citizens why Mr. Randolph was not re-elected for mayor after having served one arbitrary term.

"Finally, I wish to say that I have not sought the position, nor have I solicited any one for the nomination, but if I am elected I will use my best endeavors to have the city run on an economical basis."

DR. MAGUIRE CHOSEN FOR N. Y. PUBLIC LECTURE BOARD.

The lectures on Africa will be illustrated by views which were taken by Dr. Maguire during his stay in that country.

There are now two Plainfielders on the New York city public lecture board; Charles L. Lewis being the other. Mr. Lewis lectured several times last year upon the subject of "Panama and the Canal Zone."

WRIGHT BROTHERS AT TRENTON FAIR.

World's Most Famous Flying Machines In Daily Exhibitions.

More interesting and fascinating than anything before the public today is aviation. The operations of the famous man birds have caused the entire civilized world to stand still, look and marvel. It is a wonderful thing, this aviation, this conquering of the air by man. Foremost among the navigators of the air are the internationally famous Wright brothers, Wilbur and Orville. It was the Wrights who first turned public attention toward flying in heavier than air machines, it was the Wrights who went to France and made the United States the most talked of country in the world by their marvelous experiments on the Rheims field, and it is the Wrights who have today demonstrated the wonderful progress of traveling in the air by the manufacture of aeroplanes for the general public.

It is in line with the past great record of the Trenton fair that it should give to its patrons the latest sensation. Therefore it is hardly a surprise for the public to learn that airship flights will be the leading feature of the Trenton fair of 1910, which is to be held Sept. 26 to 30, inclusive.

Secretary Mahlon Margerum of the Trenton fair never does anything by halves, so when he decided to make aviation the feature of the 1910 fair he made up his mind that nothing but the best would be good enough for his patrons and signed a contract with the Wrights to bring their daredevil air pilots to Trenton and give daily exhibitions of the unlimited possibilities of the aeroplane.

It will cost the Trenton fair exactly $10,000 to introduce the Wright aeroplane and the Wrights' daring drivers to those who will visit this year's fair. Other and less expensive aeroplane or biplane exhibitions could have been secured, but none of these would have satisfied Secretary Margerum. He wanted the best, no matter what the cost, and he has been able to get it.

Brookins, the world famed sky pilot who broke the altitude record at Atlantic City and later nearly lost his life at Asbury Park, will give exhibitions at the Trenton fair and will likely try to break the record he made at Atlantic City. According to the contract Secretary Margerum has with the Wrights, the entire aviation squad is due to be at the Trenton fair, which will insure one of a series of thrilling flights and perhaps a record or two.

An opportunity will be given all patrons of the fair to closely inspect the Wright machine, as it will be open to public exhibition every day.

Because of the accident that occurred at Asbury Park when Brookins received his serious injuries no one will be allowed to go in the center of the field at the fair grounds. All of that space will be required for the flights. A company of soldiers and a squad of policemen will be pressed into service to keep the field clear.

The program arranged by the Wrights for this meet will include short distance races, high diving, figure eight cutting, flights for height, flights with passengers and a number of other feats intended to demonstrate the practical value of the airship.

Get some one to put down a row of figures, to add them up and subtract the total, thus:

63,214

Now ask them to cross out any one figure, total them up again and tell you the total. Thus, say, they cross out the 6, the total becomes 21. They tell you this, and without looking at the sum you can say the value of the figure which has been crossed out.

You do this trick by subtracting the total from the next multiple of 9. "The total," says your friend, "is 21." The nearest multiple of 9 above 21 is 27. You subtract 21 from 27, and that leaves 6. To your friend you say in a dignified tone, "The figure you crossed out was 6." And your wondering friend believes you to be possessed of occult powers.

It doesn't matter what figures are originally put down the answer always comes correct.

A Strange Pirate Story.

In the museum at Kingston, Jamaica, there are some tattered ships' papers, brown with age and salt water, and a small tin canister. These articles attest the truth of the strangest pirate story ever told. In 1799 the crew of the Nancy brig were apparently honest traders, but did some piracy now and then on the side. One day they found it necessary to go into Kingston for supplies. Before doing so they naturally removed all traces of their buccaneering trade. Among other things they threw overboard this tin canister stuffed with papers taken from ships they had sunk, with comments written on the margin by the pirate captain. Later in the day a British frigate was becalmed near the spot, and the sailors spent their leisure catching sharks. Presently they hauled up a big fellow, cut him open and found the tin case with the papers inside. These were taken to the captain, who, as soon as a breeze sprung up, sailed into Kingston harbor, found the Nancy brig there and had the crew tried, convicted and hanged in chains at Port Royal.

Payment In Kind.

French novelists are occasionally paid in kind instead of cash. Many of the best known Paris newspapers manage to supply their readers with contemporary fiction for which the writers do not receive a penny. For instance, a novel is published in serial form for which the payment at three half pence a line would amount to £80. This payment is always made in space, not in money. That is to say, the newspaper inserts for the author, free of charge, a certain number of advertisements or press notices relating either to his own books or those of other authors. If he can succeed in obtaining any money from the latter he is at liberty to do so. The space varies considerably in value, a "puff" on the front page being worth 20 or 30 francs a line, on the second page 10 francs and in other portions of the paper still less.—London Scraps.

Origin of the Bowery.

When the city of New Amsterdam, now New York, sprang into existence many farmers from Holland came over to seek their fortune in the new world, among them old Peter Stuyvesant. They settled outside the town and proceeded to develop the land by clearing away the woods and planting it with grain, fruit trees and ornamental shrubs they had brought with them. Peter Stuyvesant called his residence and ground the Bouwerie, and the lane connecting it with New Amsterdam became known as Bouwerie lane, the settlement itself taking the name of Bouwerie Village. Stuyvesant's farm extended from the junction of what are now Third and Fourth avenues to Seventeenth street and eastward to Second avenue, where at the corner of Tenth street his home was located.

A Mysterious Race.

Ever since Pizarro's conquest of the Indians there had been rumors in the interior of South America of the existence of a strange tribe, said Major P. H. Fawcett, R. A. The evidence was necessarily weak, yet he had met half a dozen men who swore to a glimpse of white Indians with red hair. Other statements had been made as to the existence of such a race with blue eyes. Plenty of people had heard of them, and they had even a name—"Morphegon," or bats, meaning the people who hunted by night and hid during the day. Even in Paraguay, he was told, there was a tribe so shy as to be quite beyond communication and another where the men talked in one language and the women in another.—London Mail.

Easy Divorce In Old Times.

The code of King Khammurabi of Assyria, whose date is approximately 2200 B. C., which has been disciphered from a pillar discovered at Susa, deals exhaustively with the subject of divorce. One of the most interesting clauses is the following: "If the wife of a man who dwells in the house of that man has set her face to go forth and has acted the fool and wasted his house and impoverished his house, they shall call her to account. If the husband shall say, 'I put her away,' he shall put her away. She shall go her way. For her divorce he shall give her nothing."

The Path of Peace.

"My wife and I always settle our little disputes by arbitration, and our plan never fails."

"But who arbitrates?"

"My wife."

Asbury Park, Sept. 10.—The New Jersey State Funeral Directors' Association elected the following officers at its annual convention, Thursday afternoon: President, W. M. There was also a fight for first vice-president, J. J. Higgins, of Elizabeth, being defeated by only one vote.

The following indorsements were made for two appointments by Governor Fort on the State Board of Undertakers and Embalmers next year: Joseph J. Mullin, Newark; W. M. Dufford, Paterson; Charles R. Moke, New Brunswick; W. D. Kingsland, Hackensack; George H. Keates, Atlantic City; George H. Paulson, Trenton. For appointment on the State Board of Health, George H. Bunnell, of Jersey City, was indorsed. The undertakers feel that they are entitled to representation on this board.

The memorial committee, consisting of B. B. Weatherby, Joseph J. Mullin and William H. Mead, the latter of Jersey City, presented resolutions on deaths of seven members during the year.

A ball was held in the Coleman House Casino Thursday night, and was attended by 100 couples.

Yesterday afternoon Charles H. Gall, register of vital statistics in Paterson, and David S South, of Trenton, addressed the meeting, referring to the relations of the undertakers with the registrars regarding the filing of death reports. W. V. Phillips, of Albany, in an address, spoke of the necessity of a competent undertaker as well as a skilful embalmer.

Bernhardt and John L.

This story about Sarah Bernhardt and John L. Sullivan is being told in theatricals circles in Paris. The two celebrities occupied rooms in the same hotel in Sydney, Australia, several years ago. The tragedienne's declamations greatly disturbed the pugilist's rest and injured his tender feelings, and, meeting her on the stairs one day, he frowned horribly at her and gave her an inarticulate growl. Bernhardt was so frightened that she fainted, and it was not a stage fright, either. Next day she moved to another hotel. Sullivan afterward described the encounter as a one-round knockout, but generously admitted that he had an overwhelming advantage in weight.

For Weak Ankles.

Do not wear braces for weak ankles until you find them absolutely necessary. Try to strengthen the joints and muscles with some simple exercise first, like standing on the balls of the feet and swaying the body backward and forward. Do not bend the body at the waist or the knees, but hold it perfectly stiff and let the ankles act as a pivot.

Lanier of the Cavalry

Or, A Week's Arrest

By GENERAL CHARLES KING,

Author of "The Colonel's Daughter," "Foes In Ambush," Etc.

Copyright, 1909, by J. B. Lippincott Company

It was just about a quarter of 9. The lights at the office were still burning, for the colonel had intimated that he might be back. Barker was bending over his desk and wondering why the colonel should be colloguing with Snaffle, Crane, Sergeant Fitzroy and sending for Cassidy and Quinlan. That was a queer "outfit" of Snaffle's at best. It seemed odd that the most pronounced "Britisher" in barracks should be a sergeant in the troop commanded by the nearest thing to an Irishman among the captains.

Barker was busy with these reflections when the colonel once more entered. The adjutant rose, but at a signal resumed his seat and waited.

Full fifteen minutes the colonel went striding up and down the long apartment. Twice he muttered something about its taking Snaffle and his sergeant an unusually long time to do a simple thing, and at last, as the trumpeters were heard, with much stamping of feet and blowing of hands, gathering for the old time nightly "walk around" that preceded tattoo roll call, Button abruptly turned on his adjutant and said:

"Barker, how long have you known Mr. Lanier?"

"Ever since he joined, sir."

"And you knew him in his cadet days?"

"Yes, sir."

"And you told me you never heard of his writing to newspapers?"

"Never sir," answered Barker. "I believe it impossible for him to have had anything to do with those—inflammatory articles about the campaign."

"You consider him absolutely square—above a lie—or a trick of any kind?"

Barker faltered just one minute. What did the colonel mean by a trick? Mischief there had been once or twice. Tricks had been played, and one only this last summer during the campaign—a trick, too, that if truth were told Lanier should have known about. At least it had been played for his benefit and had "pulled the wool" over the colonel's eyes.

"I consider him as square a man as I know and utterly above a lie of any kind," was the final answer.

"And yet you hesitate. You know or have heard rumors," said Button suspiciously.

"I have heard rumors and slanders, Colonel Button," was Barker's probably injudicious reply.

"Well, here," said Button impulsively—"here are you and Stannard and Sumter, three of the 'old liners,' as you are called in your respective grades, and I see plainly enough you three are tacitly condemning my attitude toward Lanier. Now, I've had enough of this. There is nothing that requires a commander to show his hand to his subordinates, but as matters stand in this regiment—oh, come in, Major Stannard. I sent for you purposely, and Sumter as well, to meet me here at tattoo." The two seniors solemnly entered the presence. "As I was saying to Barker, as matters stand in this regiment some half a dozen at least of the men referred to as its 'representative officers' are apparently resentful of my arrest of Lieutenant Lanier and attribute my course to pique, because he saw fit to show himself at the hop I declined to permit him as officer of the guard to attend. You think possibly that because men like Captain Snaffle, Lieutenant Crane and one or two of that set have been in consultation with me the matters at issue are beneath your notice. They at least are loyal to their commander and to the best interests of the regiment. Now I mean to show you. Mr. Barker," said he impressively, "go to Lieutenant Lanier and say that I desire his presence here at once."

Just as Barker neared Stannard's, at the head of the row, two cloaked and hooded forms hurried forth, and Barker almost collided with them.

"Oh, good evening, Miss Kate! Good evening, Miss Arnold!" was his embarrassed greeting. Then, with attempt at jocularity for which he later could have kicked himself: "I'm just in time to see you home and head off hobgoblins and hoboes. Indeed, I beg pardon," he blundered on. "I'm just bound for Lanier's. Any message?"

"You might say we wish him speedy deliverance," answered Kate Sumter.

Silently Lanier heard the summons. There was no reason why he should rise and to urge your trial by general court martial. But such is my regard for these gentlemen that I stand ready to abandon my views and adopt theirs on your simple word. Can I say more?"

There was a moment of silence. Then Lanier spoke. "It depends, sir, I think, upon what you wish me to answer."

Button colored. Turning to his desk, he took from an envelope several newspaper clippings. "Do you care to say what part you took in their preparation?"

"I took no part."

"You do not know the author?"

"I took no part, sir. I do not wish to say that I do not know the author."

"Then permit me to infer that you know him—a member of this command, for no one else knew the facts—and you shield him?"

"I am shielding no man, Colonel Button."

"Yet you know the author and you will not tell?"

"What little I know came in such a way that I cannot tell," was the resolute answer.

"Enough said—or refused to be said—on that head. We will go to the next. Who personated you the night you left your troop at Laramie and went, contrary to orders, to that frolic at the post?"

A look of amazement came into the young officer's face. The answer came slowly, painfully:

"I took part in no frolic, sir. I went contrary to an order that had held good while we were out on the campaign, but that we did not suppose was binding there. I went to the post that night to help a fr—a man who—who needed money for an immediate journey. No one personated me to my knowledge."

"I have the written report of the officer of the day that you were there asleep at 11 p. m. Subsequently I learned that you were away from taps until nearly reveille."

"You could have heard that from me, sir, and why I was gone, if need be."

"Officers who make comrades and intimates of enlisted men take chances that"—

"Colonel Button, I protest"—

"Protest you may, but listen you shall," was the instant rejoinder. "It is well known you interfered with a noncommissioned officer in the proper discharge of his duty. That was last June, and it was in behalf of that young man Rawdon. It is well known that you were hobnobbing with other enlisted men here. It is well known you lent civilian clothing to your protege for his latest escapade"—

"Colonel Button—gentlemen," cried Lanier, "this is beyond all right!" Indeed, Stannard and Sumter were on their feet in expostulation, but the colonel's blood was up. Bang went his bell, and the orderly fairly jumped into the room.

"Call Sergeant Fitzroy," said he, and in another moment Fitzroy stood before them, a civilian coat and waistcoat hanging on his arm.

"Briefly, now, sergeant, where did you get those?" demanded Button.

"From the room that Trooper Rawdon occupied in town, sir. It's the suit he wore about town last Friday." And, so saying, he held them forth. Lanier slowly took the coat, astonishment in his eyes; glanced at the tag inside the collar, bearing the name of his own New York tailor.

"It is enough like mine to deceive anybody but—the owner," said he.

"Do you mean to tell me"— began Button indignantly.

"That this is not mine?" interposed Lanier. "Yes, sir, and that one very like it will be found in my closet at home."

"Mr. Barker will go with you, and you will resume your confinement—in arrest." And Button in his anger was lashing himself to language his hearers never forgot and that some could hardly, even long months after, forgive. "In my time, as a young officer, nothing tempted one of our members to violate an arrest, but you"—

Pale as death Lanier faced him.

"Surely, sir, a cry for help—that I thought might mean fire"—

"There was no cry for help," interrupted the colonel. "There was no sign of fire. Even if there had been it should mean nothing to a man of honor when ordered in arrest. That is the only creed of a gentleman."

The adjutant led his stunned and silent comrade home.

CHAPTER V.

ENNIS and Schuchardt started at sight of Lanier's white face. Ennis sprang to his side. "Help me off with these," he said, "and bring a lamp. Come upstairs, Barker." There were but two sleeping rooms aloft in the little bachelor set. Into this room marched Bob Lanier and threw open the door of the single closet wherein was hanging uniform and civilian garb in some profusion. Ennis held the lamp on high, and with his free hand Lanier began throwing out the contents—a new uniform dress coat, an older one that had done duty for the three previous years, two sack coats or "blouses," etc. Then appeared a suit of evening clothes, carefully handled. The closet was well nigh empty, and Lanier faced them with the simple words, "It's gone!"

"What's gone?" demanded Ennis.

"Why, that dark gray mixture sack suit I brought from leave last year. It always hung way back in here."

"Who wants it now, I'd like to know?" demanded Ennis.

Then Barker spoke: "It's only fair to the colonel to tell the rest, Bob. Rawdon's box, that he left for safe keeping with a friend in town, had not only the suit you saw at the office, but a new fur cap with your name in it. The day of the storm Quinlan came over to the guardhouse after his visit here wearing a new cap instead of his old one, and Cassidy swooped on it, thinking it yours, for it was here he got it, and the name in that cap was Rawdon. It leaked out somehow. Fitzroy hunted the story down."

"The name was burnt out when Cassidy brought it back to me," said Lanier slowly. "He claimed that in lighting his pipe"—

"Poor Cassidy lied every way he could think of to save you," said Barker ruefully. "It's the young cad you befriended and helped along that's tricked you in the end."

"Roped Rafferty in, too, I suppose," said Schuchardt.

"Rafferty, doubtless, to the extent of bribing or wheedling him out of Bob's new cits"—

"But those were not mine that Fitzroy had!" burst in Lanier.

"Of course not. He's left you a worn suit in place of the new. Where'd he steal that one, I wonder? There isn't another officer of your size and build at the post. But, here; I've got to go back and report, and my report will be in these words: 'Mr. Lanier will be robbed too.'" And Barker made for the stairs.

"One moment," called Ennis. "You said Bob wasn't the only man this fellow had tricked. Do you mean"— He paused suggestively.

"I mean—yes—that there's more than one man and there's at least one poor girl in the garrison to mourn that fellow's loss, and be d—— to him!" And with that Barker was gone.

Button listened to his adjutant's report with something almost like a sneer. Stannard and Sumter heard it with grave faces, but without a word. Snaffle, who had drifted in, sniggered with obvious triumph.

"Gentlemen," said the colonel, "you have not heard the half of what I know, and every day brings something new. This comes in from Laramie today, brought with the mail that lay over at the Chugwater during the storm. Read that, Stannard." And Stannard took the paper and glanced over it, blinked his eyes, sniffed and said, "I've heard about that case, and I'll take Lanier's story any day against that fellow's affidavit."

"Major Stannard," said Button severely, "you are speaking contemptuously of your superior officer."

"Colonel Button," answered Stannard, with high held head, but with firm hand on his temper, "I am speaking contemptuously of my superior officer's informant, not of the commanding officer of Fort Laramie. If you care to look you will see that he quotes, not asserts, that 'this money was advanced to Mr. Lowndes on Mr. Lanier's statement that the young man was summoned home by the serious illness of his mother and that he, Mr. Lanier, would be responsible for the transaction. Mr. Lowndes has never repaid it, and Mr. Lanier when appealed to four weeks since not only refused to make it good, but abused and cursed me for simply asking for what was my own.'"

"Very good, gentlemen," answered Button, rising in obvious chagrin. "It is quite evident in your opinion Mr. Lanier is a persecuted saint and I am an abandoned sinner, but just as soon as I can reach Omaha this case shall be laid before a general court martial."

The men were mostly in bed, as they should be at such an hour, but there had been an informal dance, and many of the sergeants were still at the hop room. Beyond this brightly lighted building and about in the rear of the infantry barracks at the westward end was the slide into the creek valley, whereat so many of the officers' children had been coasting early in the evening and where now—nearly 11 o'clock—half a hundred young people of both sexes, wives and daughters of quartermaster's employees and of the elder sergeants, attended by their gallants from the garrison, were having a merry time of it. The moon shone in brilliance. The night air, frosty and still, was full of exhilaration. The officer of the guard, merely cautioning the revelers to control their impulse to shout, had gone on his way with implied permission to keep up the fun, and presently other officers appeared upon the brow of the bluff, interested observers.

The veterinary surgeon, a gray haired man of nearly sixty, who presently came toiling up the hillside, touched his fur cap front in salutation to tall Lieutenant Ennis and begged leave to speak a moment with Dr. Schuchardt, whom he led slowly away.

Ennis had attentive ears for the chatter and gossip of a neighboring group that had suspended their sledding for the moment and were curiously watching the pair.

"There's no more the matter wid Dora Mayhew than there is wid me.

"WHY DIDN'T YOU JUMP WHEN THEY TOLD YOU?"

'cept one," said a red cheeked maid of "laundress row" to the eager group about her. "She's been daft about that young dude, Rawdon."

"Yes, an' deef to Cockney Fitz," laughed another.

And Ennis, turning quickly, noted the group, four young noncommissioned officers and three of the garrison girls, all of them toying with the name of good old Mayhew's bonny daughter, she whom that veteran English horseman had taught and guarded with such jealous care. Well had Ennis known of Sergeant Fitzroy's aspirations. Few in the regiment had not, and few there were who did not know that in spite of Mayhew's avowed dislike for him the girl had for a time encouraged.

Then in April to Fort Frayne had come this handsome young fellow Rawdon, with better looks, better manners and even, as it seemed, better money, for Rawdon was lavish where Fitzroy was "near," and the favor of the young girl, who had toyed with the Englishman, turned from him to this unknown.

And in this web Bob Lanier had become deeply involved. Ennis was sorely worried.

"Where did you say she was now?" Ennis heard the doctor ask as they rejoined him.

"She went to speak with Mrs. Stannard, but said ladies were there, so she came back awhile ago. I could hear her crying in her room before she went the second time." And poor Mayhew's head was drooping.

"And you wish me to see her tonight?"

"If you'd be so good, doctor. She'll soon be home. I was going over in search of her now."

"Wait," said Ennis. "Listen!"

There was a flurry among the revelers a few rods away. Two men had run toward the corner of the nearest barrack, looming black against the northward sky. Others could be seen hurrying after them. Then—could it be? Yes, sharp and clear came the sound of a shot from away over toward the hospital—another nearer, another still nearer—and distant shouts and then the blare of the trumpet.

"Come on! It's fire!" said Ennis and sprang in pursuit of the leaders. "Fire!" echoed the cry from barrack to barrack as the men poured forth into the night, and then as Ennis rounded the corner and came in full view of the wide open parade with the long line of quarters beyond his heart leaped for his throat in wild dismay. "My God, lieutenant, it's your house!" panted a racing trooper. "My God! And Bob's all alone!" sobbed Ennis as he sped through the snow.

All Ennis saw as he came staggering round to the rear of the flaming furnace that once was a house was a wild eyed girl being led away by a group of sympathetic women. The colonel was bending over Bob Lanier, just emerging from his third involuntary plunge in the drifts and sputtering objurgations on his would be benefactors.

"In God's name, Lanier," almost wailed the colonel as at last that young gentleman, likewise singed and scorched and dripping, yet preternaturally cool for one just out of a blazing hell, found his feet and faced his commander—"in God's name, why didn't you jump when they told you? There was nothing but snowdrifts below."

"There was a colonel coming," said Bob, with a grin of mingled anguish and satisfaction, "who held that sort of thing to be breach of arrest."

BASEBALL.

That High Bridge team has some rep, but as a matter of fact, so has the Plainfield bunch.

The oculist to whom Ty Cobb submitted his inflamed eye for examination has issued a statement as follows: "Cobb is being treated by me for cyclitis of the right eye. This affects the binocular vision seriously, and the relaxation of the focusing apparatus of the eye is necessitated." Cobb will remain out of the game for some time but is not thought that any permanent injury will result to his optic.

Ayers, who fanned three times in succession before Fredrickson's slants in that Y. M. C. A.-Scotch Plains game, has been hitting at a .667 clip on a team playing Sunday ball. Some improvement.

And we wonder as we gallop to press whether that cyclitis in Cobb's eye was the result of too much bicycle riding. Or perhaps it's a fly in his optic.

Warry McLaughlin will have a day off today and Ward will do the box honors for the local team. Warry does not feel quite confident of his bad leg yet, but will be on hand when the bell rings in the first game with Somerville.

Hal Chase has been clouting the ball these last few days. On Thursday he was guilty of four safeties out of as many times at bat.

It now looks as though Lajoie, the premier batsman of the Cleveland team, would cop that auto for the highest batting average. He is making rapid gains of late and at present leads the swatfesters. Cobb is out of the game, but wait until he comes back.

But we wonder whether or not Cobb can come back.

A little goes a long way—Boston defeated the Giants yesterday on three his while the New Yorkers banged the horsehide for seven safeties.

It looks from the performances of Big Six Nelson on Labor Day that the star catcher has again struck his batting gait. It will be needed this afternoon all right so keep it up Walter.

It's nice weather for a game anyway.

There is a double header scheduled for tomorrow afternoon at New Brunswick. The winning team between the Pittsburg Giants and the Black Sox will play the New Brunswick nine.

The second game starts at four o'clock—so you can surely make that.

TRINITY'S IMPROVMENTS

Practically Rebuilt Inside and Redecorated During Past Summer.

SUNDAY SCHOOL IS ENLARGED.

Accommodations for Beginners' and Primary Departments Will Meet Grow Requirements—New Organ Dec. 15.

Trinity Reformed church edifice in its new dress was the scene of an earnest reception to its returned pastor, yesterday mornig, and the welcome was extended by one of the largest congregations ever present in the edifice. Pastor John Y. Broek had returned from a vacation and the church had been renovated during the summer, bringing the whole into a harmonious feeling for the morning service. The choir was present and while no special music was sung, the entire ensemble was one to encourage Pastor Broek.

Notable improvements have been made in the interior of the edifice during the past two months. The entire interior has been so changed that it looks like a new church and is one of the most beautiful in the city.

Pastor Broek took time before his sermon yesterday morning to thank individually and collectively those who are responsible for the improvements which have been made in the church. Not even the janitor was forgotten. Mr. Broek thanked the membership, the consistory, the building committee, the finance committee, the Ladies' Christian Work Society, the organ committee and in fact all those who had in any way assisted in the rehabilitation of the church.

The Sunday-school rooms, which have been enlarged by building a twelve-foot addition in the rear, can now accommodate a greater number of pupils, especially in the beginners' and primary departments. Not a thing has been omitted which will contribute to the growth of this already large congregation.

It is expected that the new organ, which has been given by an anonymous member of the church, will be in position by December 15, together with the new altar furnishings. With these latter in shape the church will have completed the repairs which had long been contemplated and it will be something which the entire congregation may well be proud of.

Pastor Broek preached a short sermon yesterday morning and told of the preparations being made for the dedication of the new Sunday-school rooms on Rally Day, next Sunday, at 2:30. He also told of some of his experiences during his vacatin, and the man who had detailed a sermon preached by Mr. Broek's father thirty-five years ago in Grand Rapids, Michigan. Mr. Broek has remembered the theme and will preach a sermon upon it in the near future.

CEREFICE TRIAL TODAY IN MIDDLESEX COURT.

The trial of Luigi Cerefice for the murder of Patrick Cahill on May 11 last, near New Market, has been called this morning in the Middlesex County Court before Supreme Court Justice Bergen at New Brunswick. The alleged confession of the Italian will be presented by Captain J. E. Brown who it is said told Cerefice at the time of the murder that Halley's comet would cause his death and thereby extracted the alleged confession from the man.

Investigations of the murder were made by the local police at the time, and Cahill's body was found buried beneath a covering of cornstaks in the rear of a shack in which the Italian lived. Cerefice was an employe of the Lehigh Valley Railroad and Cahill was a farmer whom it is alleged that Cerefice killed in a fit of jealousy.

Vote for Sebring!

North Plainfield's Republican voters will have an opportunity tomorrow to vote for the nomination of one of its highly respected citizens, Charles P. Sebing, who seeks the nomination for sheriff. Mr. Sebing has given much of his time in years past in the interests of the borough and for the benefit of his party. He is a capable man and would make a conscientious official.

Mr. McIntyre's Plans.

Joseph McIntyre, director of the McIntyre Chamber Music Concerts, will visit Plainfield Mondays and Thursdays. His studio will be at 317 Franklin place, where he will resume instruction in voice culture and piano instruction.

—For tomorrow's trade Neuman Bros. will have 75 baskets fancy Bartlett pears for canning, and housekeepers should not lose this opportunity.

MRS. J. W. KIRKNER DEAD

She Sucumbs to Typhoid Fever After an Illness of Three Weeks.

A MUCH BELOVED WOMAN.

Daughter of the Late Vincent Colyer, of New York—Active in Grace Church and King's Daughter's Work.

Mrs. Margaret Colyer Kirkner, wife of John W. Kirkner, died yesterday afternoon at her home, 816 West Seventh street, from typhoid fever, which she contracted three weeks ago today while sojourning at Sea Girt for the summer. Her condition was serious from the first. Arrangements were made at once to remove her to her home, and since that time the best of medical skill and attention was provided, but without avail. Yesterday morning Mrs. Kirkner suffered several sinking spells, and she passed away in the afternoon, being unable to overcome her extreme weakness.

Mrs. Kirkner, who, before her marriage, was Miss Margaret Colyer, was born and spent the greater part of her life in New York city. She was the daughter of the late Vincent Colyer, of New York, who died a year ago last January while visiting his daughter here. Mrs. Kirkner was married to Mr. Kirkner eight years ago last June, in New York, and the couple then made their home here. She was a graduate of the New York State Normal College.

During her residence here Mrs. Kirkner made a host of friends. She possessed a true womanly character and was admired for her many excellent qualities. She was a communicant of Grace church, and a member of the City Union of the King's Daughters. Besides a husband and one young daughter, Margery, Mrs. Kirkner is survived by a sister, Mrs. Richard Johnson, of New York, who is the only surviving member of the family.

The funeral will be held from the late home, 816 West Seventh street, Wednesday afternoon, at 2:30 o'clock.

SOMERVILLE SHUTS OUT FLEMINGTON; SCORE 1-0.

Somerville shut out the Flemington team at Somerville Saturday afternoon by the score of 1-0. The Flemington aggregation was padded with half of the Ridgewood team, but even this addition couldn't beat the Somerville ball tossers. Linderman and Farmer, the well known battery in this city, did the honors for the Flemington team, while Clinton and Torpey opposed them.

Clinton had the Flemington bunch at his mercy until the ninth inning when Speary made the first single for his side. The Somerville team got three hits off Linderman. In the eighth round, Speary made a costly error and together with a hit, the Somerville boys scored their only run.

The score:

Batteries—Clinton and Torpey; Linderman and Farmer.

Will Give "The Man on the Box."

Proctor & Sanderson's stock company will present that excellent comedy, "The Man on the Box," at The Plainfield theatre, today, tomorrow and Wednesday, afternoon and evening. This play is full of comedy, and was made famous by Henry Dixey. On Thursday, Friday and Saturday a three-act comedy play of western military life entitled, "The Lost Trail," will be offered. Improvements are constantly being made at the theatre, including the installation of a first-class smoking room.

Will Spend Winnter in Italy.

Mrs. Charles A. Reed and daughter, Miss Madeline Reed, formerly of the borough, but now of New York, where they have been living at the Marie Antoinette, will leave on September 21, on the White Star liner Cedric for Italy, where they will spend the winter. BEWARE OF TRICKERY AT POLLS TOMORROW

It is rumored that an attempt will be made tomorrow to induce Democrats to take part in the Republican primaries. Not only is this dishonorable but it is also unlawful, and an offender will be subjected to heavy punishment upon conviction.

Arrangements have been made in the various polling districts to detect any attempt at fraudulent voting, and it therefore behooves every citizen who may be approached for such purpose to refuse absolutely to be made a party to any such corrupt plan.

A. B. ROSELL'S BODY FOUND IN N. Y. MORGUE

Abraham B. Rosell, of Red Bank, formerly proprietor of what was known as Hotel Rosell, now Hotel Iroquois, died in New York last Thursday, and his body was found in the morgue in New York on Friday. The funeral was held yesterday from the home of his brother at Freehold, where Mr. Rosell lived at one time.

It was reported that Mr. Rosell ended his own life, but his brother, Joseph Rosell, Jr., of Freehold, said today that a New York physician, who informed him of the death of the former, said that it was due to acute Bright's disease.

Mr. Rosell was married twice, his first wife having committed suicide at Denville, Morris county, some time ago. He then married again and his second wife survives. Recently she has been living in New York. Mr. Rosell was well known here. Lately he had been a cigar salesman and visited this city every two weeks. The last time he was in Plainfield was on August 29 and he was due here today. His brother said today that the dead man had not been feeling well of late and he had heard him complain of being ill.

GRAFTING NOT A MODERN SYSTEM OF GAIN

"The Story of a Grafter, and What Happened to Him," was the subject of Rev. J. W. Musson's sermon at the Temple Baptist church last night. The text was taken from Second Kings, fifth chapter, twenty-sixth verse: "Is it a time to receive money, and to receive garments, and oliveyards, and vineyards, and sheep, and oxen?"

Among other things Mr. Musson said: "We hear a great deal in these days about the crime which is called 'grafting;' that is, the using of public office to enrich oneself by ill-gotten spoil. So numerous have these cases been in the last few years, and that, by men who were regarded as worthy of the confidence of the people, that some are inclined to look upon the condition of things in our country as alarming; but such a view is wholly unwarranted. The exposal and condemnation of those found guilty of such practice, by the leading writers and speakers, is one of the most hopeful signs of the times.

"Grafting," said the preacher, "is not a new form of evil. It has been indulged in by ignoble persons of all ages. We find it cropping out several times in the history of Israel.

The incident in Israel's history to which Mr. Musson referred particularly in his remarks last night was the case of Gehazi, the servant of the prophet Ilisha. Naaman, the commander-in-chief of the Syrian army, having been cured by Elisha, from the terrible malady of leprosy, wanted to show his gratitude by making the prophet a handsome present. Elisha refused to take it, on the ground that it was Jehovah, the God of Israel, who had performed the miracle, and therefore he had no right to receive the gift. Gehazi, tempted by the thought of obtaining so great a sum, ran after the Syrian general, and told him a very clever story, and was given twice as much wealth as he had requested. Elisha, discovering the true character of Gehazi with searching questions, laid bare his guilt, and then with awful appropriateness pronounced the curse of leprosy upon Gehazi and his family forever. Mr. Musson then drew the following practical lessons from the incident, and enforced them with pointed and telling illustrations:

"One may enjoy the greatest religious privileges, and yet be very wicked in heart and life.

"Temptations to evil are so subtle and so alluring that it behooves all of us to be on our guard.

"Sin always brings disappointment to its victims."

BOLD BURGLARS THESE

Three Youths in Toils For Robbing Dunellen Stores Last Week.

KONESKY MAKES A CONFESSION

Implicates William Peel and Joseph Hubbard in Crimes Which Have Puzzled Local Police.

After the arrest of John Konesky by Marshal Logan in Fanwood on Thursday last the police of this city have been devoting some time to the investigation of acts of Konesky's companions on the night preceding his arrest, with the result that William Peel and Joseph Hubbard are in the toils and were remanded for another hearing in the city court tomorrow morning before Judge William N. Runyon.

It has been alleged that the three youths are responsible for numerous petty burglaries in stores of this city and the police are trying to get a line on what they have really done. Konesky in his cell in the county jail at Elizabeth has implicated the two arrested here on Saturday, in the four burglaries committed in Dunellen last week and it is believed that more than these will be proved against them.

Clever detective work on the part of Detective Sergeant John Flynn is responsible for the evidence gathered against the young men, none of whom is over 21 years of age. Konesky was told that his companions were under arrest here and he immediately made a clean breast of his connection with the affairs.

Only two weeks ago Judge Runyon had a talk with Konesky's parents in an effort to have the boy allowed to return to his own home in good standing. This was accomplished, but the young man started out at once on a further career of crime, so the police allege. Four stores were robbed in Dunellen and some of the stolen money, it is said, was found in Konesky's pockets in the original packages which had been drawn from the First National Bank of Dunellen.

All three boys were discovered by Marshal Logan loitering around the Fanwood station of the Central railroad on Wednesday morning at 2 o'clock. He tried to capture them but two got away, Konesky being the only one to be caught. Owing to the suspicious actions of the trio Justice of the Peace Sheelen sentenced Konesky to thirty days in the county jail on general principles and on seaerching the young man there several amounts of money were found which Konesky could give no account of. Since that arrest it has been an easy matter to trace the others and Konesky's confession makes the further work of the police practically simple.

BELIEVE HIM A BURGLAR

Suspect Captured in Dunellen After Being Shot by a Policeman.

PETERSON TRIED TO ESCAPE.

The Police Say They Found a Jimmy On Prisoner Who is Held for a Further Examination.

After breaking away from Deputy Marshal George Rinehart, of Dunellen, Arthur Peterson, of Perth Amboy, was caught when he fell wounded by a bullet from the policeman's revolver. Peterson and another man were arrested in Dunellen at 2 o'clock yesterday morning by Marshal Rinehart as suspicious characters and while being taken to the jail, they escaped from the policeman, dashing down North avenue. The marshal followed them and when he saw that the fugitive prisoners were outdistancing him, drew his revolver and fired hitting Peterson. The bullet struck him in the thigh and he fell to the ground. The other man escaped.

At 12 o'clock Saturday night, A. F. Sampson, who lives on New Market road, heard a noise as though someone was attempting to enter a window of his house. Mr. Sampson took his revolver and went out to investigate. He saw two men standing underneath one of the windows and asked them what they wanted. The men immediately turned and ran. Mr. Sampson fired upon the fleeing men, but he says that neither of them seemed to be hit. Deputy Marshal Rinehart noticed two men loitering at the corner of North and Jackson avenues at 2 o'clock. The strangers gave unsatisfactory replies to his questions and he placed them under arrest. The man then tried to escape.

Peterson was given a hearing last night before Recorder Campbell. When searched, a large chisel jimmy was found in his possession. He is being held for a further examination.

It is believed by the Dunellen police that Peterson is a member of a gang which has been committing burglaries on the railroad and in this vicinity. The railroad detectives are working on the case and they say they expect that the capture of Peterson will lead to the capture of the gang.

Several of Peterson's relatives and his employer, who conducts a business on South Second street, went to Dunellen yesterday and pleaded with the authorities saying that the prisoner was a man of good habits. A careful search is being made for Peterson's alleged accomplice.

BANISHED FROM CITY FOR BEING DISTURBERS.

For creating a disturbance in using profane and indecent language yesterday Robert and Johanna Smith were banished from the city this morning by Judge William N. Runyon. They were allowed twenty-four hours in which to get out of town and return to their former home in Rahway.

The Smiths were living at a tumbledown shack on East Third street and had only been there about four weeks, but during that time it is alleged they have kept the neighborhood in an uproar. Quarrels and fights have been attributed to them and their neighbors wanted them removed. After a visit from Captain Chris Fredrickson yesterday they quieted down, but shortly afterwards it was found necessary to send Patrolman Saffron to their home to make an arrest. The patrolman brought both to headquarters where they received their ultimatum this morning.

KILLED A GOAT IN HIS BACK YARD.

Louis Gilliano, an Italian buthcer, who has lived in this city for seventeen years, was arraigned before Judge Runyon this morning on complaint of William Addis, of the Boar dof Health, on a charge of slaughtering a goat in the rear of the premises at 429 Cottage place without having had a permit.

Gilliano confessed to the charge, but said that he did not know that he was violating the law. He was allowed to go with a reprimand.

RUNYON'S SPEECH WILDLY CHEERED

Congressional Candidate's Declarations of Freedom From Bossism and Opposition to Cannonism Make Hall Ring With Outbursts of Applause.

If enthusiasm were needed as an adjunct to victory, Judge William N. Runyon has already been honored by the nomination for United States Congress in the Fifth Congressional District, Saturday night's demonstration at the hands of the audience by the most ardent candidate. Cheers, yells and handclapping put the periods to the finely rounded points made by the judge in his first effort in this city to interest the voters. The very warmth of his reception must have cheered the popular judge's heart as he walked up the aisle shortly after 8 o'clock, accompanied by Robert MacCready.

Among the things Judge Runyon said and which carried his audience to a pitch of delirious enthusiasm were the references of commendation of the present administration, at Washington, his objection to Cannonism, and his desire to serve the people as they deserve to be represented—absolutely without fear of the bosses. Judge Runyon's declaration of freedom from bossism brought the audience to its feet and for at least twenty seconds he was compelled to listen to the applause of his friends. No greater tribute could have been received by any man seeking the support of his fellows than that given the judge by members of the Democratic party who were present and who declared that a man who could give such evidence of faith in the sagacity of those who had made the United States what it is was the man with whom they would be willing to cast their lot and use their best efforts to support and elect.

The judge's references to the Taft administration were frequently interrupted by applause and his defense of President Taft, together with the summary of the work accomplished during the year and a half of his administration evoked the plaudits of the crowd which filled the hall.

Referring to the tariff Judge Runyon said that the vote of the people in 1908 was a convincing verdict from the people who had studied the question from their own viewpoints and who were satisfied that the country's welfare was safe in the hands of the Republican party. It was plain that Bryan could not remedy the evils which were supposed to exist and he had been turned down because of his pronounced contrary views.

"William Howard Taft was raised up by God for the position which he now occupies," declared the judge. "From his first entrance into the activities of public life he has been guided by an omnipotent hand and he is a worthy captain under whom to serve." Judge Runyon gave a review of the life of President Taft from the beginning to his election to the highest office in the gift of the people and declared that no greater American had ever sat in the Presidential chair. Cheers greeted these utterances.

Judge Runyon declared with great emphasis that Taft had "made good" in ever sense of the word. "Unless the next House of Representatives is Republican," he said, "Mr. Taft's hands will be tied and he will be handicapped in the work which he has mapped out."

Reading from the published platform of the Republican party Judge Runyon commented upon the fulfilled promises of the party, declaring that while he believed that the Payne tariff law was the best that could have been devised by those who had it in charge it was still susceptible of improvement, but this could only be accomplished by a continued study of the country's needs. He warmly commended the reduction in the expenditure of the country's money and eulogised the man whom he declared was responsible for the change for the better. He said that Germany's tariff was undoubtedly the best in existence today, but that the United States is coming nearer to a solution of the problem and would some day find the exact needs of the people and country so that home products and labor would have their protection.

Referring to what had been accomplished during the Taft administration Judge Runyon named the Corporation Tax law, the Postal Savings Bank bill, improvements in the

Pianos & Player-Pianos

MATHUSHEK & SON PLAYER-PIANO is the most advanced instrument of its type on the market today, and in its capacity for individual musical expression and for the artistic rendition of music, whether popular or classic, it cannot be surpassed, for it places the control of tempo and phrasing entirely in the hands of the performer, enabling him to give expression to his moods and emotions quite as if he were playing the piano manually.

Our experts have spent a number of years in producing this instrument, and every detail has been carefully thought out and perfected so that it may, without exaggeration, be described as the most perfect Player-Piano Mechanism in the world.

LOCALS WON CLOSE GAME

High Bridge Was Defeated by Plainfield Team Saturday on the Oval, 4-6.

WARD WAS IN GREAT FORM.

Doerflinger's Boys Bunched Their Hits Off Blackwell—Emery and Boyd Distinguished Themselves by Speedy Playing.

The High Bridge team came to the Oval Saturday afternoon with an enviable reputation and with full expectations of adding the scalp of the Plainfield nine to its long list of victories this season—but the visiting boys were mistaken in their reckoning and went home to the tune of a 6-4 defeat. The Plainfield team had it all over the opposing players and except for a bit of hard luck in the sixth inning would have registered a shut out against its famous contemporaries.

A crowd of five hundred loyal fans were more than delighted at the work of the local ball tossers and also because the High Bridge followers were sports and left considerable money here at 2-1 odds. It was a fast clean game nevertheless, being played in the short time of one hour and twenty-five minutes.

Blackwell, the High Bridge box artist, who is considered to be only a little short of a wonder at the twirling game, had nothing that Doerflinger's boys couldn't solve and the ten clean discoveries of his curves were bunched. This accounts for the victory of the Plainfield team. Only six hits were clouted from Ward's delivery and only two of these came together. The local twirler was in fine fettle and had a vast assortment of speed and twisters that mowed the High Bridge batsmen down like so much tall grass. Ward also made two hits himself.

Emery had a big day and swelled his batting average with three safeties out of four times up. Two of these swats came at the proper time and resulted in runs. Boyd's work in the center garden was of the highest order. He nabbed four flies into his gloved paw, and the way in which he got under one sky scraper would have made Ty. Cobb green with envy. Schott also reeled off a thriller in the seventh when he caught E. Walton's line drive, which looked good for at least three bases. Jack Martin had an off day—he made two bad errors. Jack Walton was the whole show for the visitors, taking eight difficult chances on second without a mishap.

Plainfield started things agoing in the first round when Boyd beat out a bunt and went to third on Emery's single to right field. He came home on Jack Martin's long fly into right garden. The second inning added another run to the local's score: Ward singled, going to second on McLaughlin's sacrifice and scoring when Barnes clouted the leather for a safety in right. Two runs came in the fourth for the Plainfield boys. An error by Greenfield gave Nelson a life and he reached second on Ward's hit. McLaughlin advanced both runners on a sacrifice and Barnes brought home the bacon again by a swat into deep center.

High Bridge tied matters up in the sixth just when everything pointed to a shut out. E. Walton got on when Barnes fumbled an easy throw. Morgan filed to Schott: Blackwell sent Walton to the third station on a clean hit. Titus got a free pass and with the bases full, Ward fanned Greenfield. But Apgar got in the way of a speedy one and forced in a run. Then little fat Scully stepped up to the plate and wanged the first pitched ball for a double into center, bringing home three more runs.

The locals won the game in the seventh when Schott drew a pass and made third on Brit Martin's two sacker into the tall weeds of center field. Boyd was an easy out on an infield grounder but Emery was there in the pinch and brought the two hopefuls across the rubber by a clout into left field.

"Bill" O'Loughlin officiated to the queen's taste.

WEST END A. C. DEFEATS TURNERS, 4-2

As a curtain raiser to th big show on Crescent Oval Saturday afternoon the West End A. C. and the Gesang and Turn Verein met to settle their rivalry for diamond honors and the West Ends came out on the long end of a 4-2 game. The contest was played in the quick time of 1 hour and 10 minutes.

Opportune hitting was the cause of the victory for the West Enders, while the German club team could do nothing with Fulton's slants, and two hits in the first inning was the best that could be gathered from his delivery. Fulton, Wilson and Clinton were the stars for the winners. The Luthman brothers, Hansen and Mullin acted in the same capacity for the Turners.

RUNYON'S SPEECH

Inter-State Commerce law, the establishment of the Bureau of Mines and other measures invented for the interests of the people. The economy of administration was also mentioned. Conservation, the admittance of Arizona and New Mexico to Statehood; in fact every act of the representatives of the people were commended and the reason for it given.

When at the end of his speech Judge Runyon referred to himself as a candidate for the Congressional nomination his words were received with cheers. "I believe in Taft," he said, "and I believe that there is no man in the country more deserving than he of the support and encouragement of his fellow men.

As for Joseph G. Cannon Judge Runyon put himself on record as against the absolutism of the man and suggested that the remedy for the evils existing under the rule of Reed, Crisp and Cannon could be changed by the election of a man who could weld together the warring factions of Congress, but he did not believe that Cannon was the man to do it. Personalities in which so many men are involved today Judge Runyon declared to be beneath him. "There are bigger issues at stake than the indulgence in mud slinging," he said. I will not use them, and for the benefit of those who think otherwise I want to say that there is not a man big nor rich enough in this country to buy me."

At the end of his speech Judge Runyon declared that his position was that of any other man who sought the support of the people in his home town, but that in any event he was in the hands of his Maker and his friends and he hoped that the latter would do their part on primary day, tomorrow. Cheers from the crowd which included many women gave the judge to understand that he would meet with the best support that any candidate from Plainfield ever received.

Among the others who made short addresses were Augustus W. Schwartz, of Elizabeth; and Lloyd Thompson, of Westfield. Robert McCready presided and introduced the speakers. The hall was filled even to the galleries and not even the sounding of the fire alarm whistle could take away the attention from the matters under discussion.

The Woman Who Sews Deserves the Best Sewing Machine that is Made

It scarcely requires a moment's thought to realize the almost infinite superiority of the rotary motion of the Shuttle, over the vibrating motion. The former runs round and round without any stop or jar. The vibrating shuttle starts and stops twice in every stitch.

Here are the reasons why the Standard is best—why it saves time, work and worry—all proven by the most thorough test:

THE "STANDARD" ROTARY SHUTTLE SEWING MACHINE

1. Makes 175 stitches while others make 100.
2. Runs 75 per cent. lighter than old-style machines.
3. Makes less noise than any other machine.
4. Is the most rapid sewer—makes two motions of the treadle to three of other machines in sewing the same length seam.
5. Tensions not changed by change of speed, size of thread, thickness of goods or length of Stitch.
6. Has the biggest bobbin of any lock stitch machine. Holds 100 yards of No. 80 cotton.
7. Does not break thread when machine is run backward.
8. Feed motions are positive—no springs used—hence machine will feed over all thicknesses of goods and seam without "chewing" the cloth, no matter what the length of stitch.
9. Will wear twice as long as other lock-stitch machines.
10. Best set of attachments in any machine, self adjusting, and fastened to the presser bar in place of the foot.

ONLY ONE REASON for buying any other machine, viz: It may cost less at first.

THINK OF IT—with exactly the same speed of the treadle, and lighter work, you take a Hundred and Seventy-five stitches with the Standard while any other machine is making only a hundred—and the work is done more even and true.

YOU CAN BUY THE STANDARD ROTARY ON OUR EASY PAYMENT CLUB PLAN. $5.00 CASH AND $5.00 A MONTH.

Plainfield in .... The Olden Days.

Re-printed from The Weekly Constitutionalist

April 3, 1873.

Mr. P. Hoagland, City Expressman, is out with a handsome new wagon, suitable for his business. See his card in another column.

Didn't Want It.—On Saturday evening last, the family of Mr. Peter Ross, residing on Madison avenue, between Fourth and Fifth streets, were summoned to their front door by a ring of the bell, and upon answering the call were surprised to find on the porch a basket, into which lay a little boy baby about a week old. Mr. Ross declined receiving such a gift, and sent word to our worthy friend, Dr. Martin, to come and take "it" away. Dr. Martin directed the child to be sent to the Poor House. No clue can be obtained as to who is the mother of the little waif.

One of the most attractive residences in North Plainfield is that of Mr. A. Berry, on Craig place. It has such a home-like appearance that one's attention is attracted to it directly.

The "Thomas Property", in North Plainfield, on Tuesday last was sold at auction, as advertised. Mr. Joseph Blatz and Zimmer Bros. being the purchasers, at $5,300. Cheap as dirt.

We note the arrival home of our fellow-townsman, Hon. J. W. Yates, from an extended tour through Europe. Mr. Yates is looking in remarkably good health.

Mr. Manning Runyon contemplates erecting a handsome residence on the site of his present building, corner of Front street and Washington avenue.

A son of David Robinson is running a hack wagon to and from the depot for the accommodation of passengers. He is an enterprising youth, and we trust his efforts to establish a business will be appreciated by the public.

March 13, 1873.

The ladies of Plainfield will on Thursday afternoon, 13th inst., be favored with a lecture by Mrs. Mary P. Studley, M. D., in the old Second Presbyterian church, Front street. Dr. Studley recently delivered a course of lectures in Elizabeth; the press of that city speak in the highest terms of her ability as a lecturer. The lecture to be given is introductory to a prepared course in physiology and hygiene. We trust the ladies of this city will go and hear her. We doubt not but that they will be well repaid.

The Rules of Prudence

Let this be your constant maxim, that no man can be good enongh to neglect the rules of prudence.—Fielding.

The prospects are that our real estate agents will do a lively business this spring. Plainfield property is being eagerly sought after by strangers, who are attracted to our beautiful city by its healthfulness, fine surroundings, good society and easy access to New York.

Messrs. Rickert & Weirenger, expressmen, have dissolved partnership, and each one will continue the same business in their individual names.

Accident.—On Tuesday fornoon, John Kane, an employe of Mr. John Taylor, of this city, while loading freight on a wagon from the freight depot, fell from the platform to the ground, a distance of about five feet, and sustained a fracture of his right leg. He was conveyed to his residence in William street by Chief Gillies.

Messrs. Hunter & Leeds have disposed of three acres of the "Harris Farm," on Clinton avenue, to S. D. VanDeusen, of New York, for $12,000. Mr. V. is a builder and proposes to commence building immediately.

Outing Club Clambake.

Nearly two hundred members and friends of the Plainfield Outing Club enjoyed the annual clambake yesterday at the Plainfield Driving park. The bake was under the supervision of Lew Morris, of Perth Amboy, and was good.

Talks on "The Jew."

Taking for his subject, "The Jew," Rev. Gabriel R. Maguire, pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church, delivered a strong discourse at the morning service yesterday. It will be printed in full in tomorrow's issue of The Daily Press.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

Thomas Quigley, of Mt. Holly, has been fined $20 for permitting his hound dog to run at large.

John Kleinhanz, a tinner, who fell from a roof in Woodbury on July 2, died as the result Friday.

Allen Cressman has presented to Lambertville Lodge of Elks a collection of mounted game birds, valued at $500.

Atlantic City beach guards Friday recovered the body of William Rosenthal, twenty-two years old, who was drowned while bathing on Wednesday.

The contract for a stone road from Smalley's Corner to Buddtown, Burlington county, has been awarded to E. C. Humphries, of Hackensack, on his bid of $22,452.65.

The body of an unidentified six-year-old girl, apparently a victim of drowning, was found on mud flats below Pedricktown Thursday, and taken in charge by a Swedesboro undertaker.

The State Board of Health has approved plans for proposed sand filter sewage beds at the Burlington County Insane Asylum at New Lisbon, but has disapproved those submitted for a septic tank.

"Anybody who lives in Camden deserves to go free," said City Recorder Keffer, of Atlantic City, Friday, as he discharged George Johnson, arrested for intoxication. Johnson retorted, "I like the old town well enough to walk home."

Officials of the Atlantic City Transportation Company, owners of the freight steamer Brazoria, lost in Absecom Inlet two weeks ago, announced Friday that the company intends to protect all patrons to the full extent of their losses.

While working on a roof at Ninth and Walnut streets, Camden, Friday afternoon, Charles Tenure, fifty-three years old, of 568 Jackson street, fell to the ground and sustained injuries which sent him to Cooper Hospital.

Missed from her room in the Pemberton High School, in which she taught, Friday, Miss Irma Goble, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Leon Goble, was found on the floor of her bedroom, where she had lain all night, after being stricken with paralysis.

Jefferson Smallwood, the Clayton ice man, had a narrow escape from death Friday. While filling an ice box the rope, which held the lid up, broke and knocked him into the box unconscious. It was when D. E. Reeves, the owner of the ice box, several hours later came to get some ice that he found Smallwood lying on the floor, nearly suffocated.

Making a misstep and plunging headlong through a manhole while reaching for a rivet on the deck of the new battleship Utah at the plant of the New York Shipbuilding Company in Camden, Friday, Alexander Dempsey, twenty-five years old, of 1725 Fillmore street, that city, was rendered unconscious, but no bones were broken. Fellow-workmen who saw him fall about twenty feet at first believed the man's back was broken.

Seth W. Thomas, a negro chauffeur of a taxicab, is in the Atlantic City Prison to await the outcome of injuries inflicted upon Miss Stella Smith, of 615 North Indiana avenue, that city, Thursday night, when Thomas' machine crashed into another automobile on Arctic avenue, throwing the girl into the street. Miss Smith remained unconscious for eight hours in the City Hospital and still is in a serious condition from concussion of the brain and a fractured collarbone. Thomas drove away without attempting to ascertain the extent o fthe girl's injuries.

Colored Servant Injured.

Jennie Carter, colored, a domestic employed at 1018 Field avenue, was injured last evening at the North avenue station while alighting from the 9:43 train. After being picked up from her fall she was able to go home unassisted. She was bruised about the body. It was said that the woman jumped from the coach before the train had been brought to a full stop.

"How to be Beautiful."

A lecture entitled, "How to be Beautiful," will be given at Bethel chapel, Friday night, at 8 o'clock, by the Rev. Byron F. Gunner, of Hillburn, N. Y. Special music will also be a feature of the occasion.

Peter B. Hodge, the druggist, continues to improve from a recent operation for appendicitis, and his speedy recovered is expected.

Mrs. John Walton, of Somerset place, is visiting her daughter, Mrs. E. Terrill, of Elizabeth, for a week.

William Farley, of Lebanon, who was operated upon at the hospital by Dr. E. W. Hedges for appendicitis, has returned home.

Miss Florence Jadwin, supervisor of nurses at Muhlenberg Hospital, is spending her vacation at her former home at Carbondale, Pa.

Mrs. Joseph A. Blatz, of Somerset street, who was operated upon for appendicitis at the hospital, last week, is steadily improving.

Jacob Dunham, janitor of the city offices, who was injured Saturday morning in a collision with an automobile, is getting along nicely.

FIRST AID IN CROUP.

Croup is a very serious ailment to which young children are especially liable; it is caused by inflammation at the top of the windpipe. Mucus forms round the windpipe, and this must be softened and kept moving, or there is danger of suffocation.

An attack of croup usually begins with the appearance of a common cold, accompanied by feverishness, hoarseness and drowsiness. After a time the breathing becomes wheezy, and there will be an attack of hoarse coughing, but this soon changes to the ringing, brassy cough, peculiar to croup, and the child will draw deep breaths that have a crowing sound.

At the first symptoms of an attack keep the child very warm, and give frequent doses of ipecacuanha wine—in the case of a young child half a teaspoonful. This dose can be slightly increased until sickness is induced, as in that way the mucus that surrounds the throat will be broken and brought up.

If there is no ipecacuanha available give the child sips of glycerin and water, which will soften the mucus. The proportion is one dessert spoonful of pure glycerin to half a teacupful of water.

This treatment, given immediately, will often avert an attack; but if it continues, dip flannels or sponges in boiling water, wring them out, and apply to the throat. The best method of doing this is to place a towel of pliable texture over a basin, place the sponge or flannel in the centre, and then pour over it plenty of boiling water.

Take the towel up by the ends (which have not been placed in the basin) and twist firmly round until all the superfluous water has been wrung out of the sponge, but it must be left moist. Apply it to the throat, and then bind round a strip of flannel, which will keep the sponge in place and also keep in the heat and moisture.

Substitute for Mushrooms.

The next time you cannot get mushrooms for frying with beefsteak cut small radishes into thin slices and fry them as the mushrooms. Though they do not taste exactly the same, as some enthusiasts declare, they are a good substitute, and give the meat a delicate flavor. Small button radishes cooked in a sauce such as is used for lobster Newburg are served by some of the large hotels and are also palatable.

—Among the offerings by Neuman Bros. for tomorrow's trade will be fancy tomatoes for canning. Now is the time to can tomatoes, and the prices are right.

"EDDIE M'NEE THE WINNER OF EXCITING CYCLE RACE

In a close exciting finish, Edward McNee won the ten-mile handicap road race of the Plainfield Cycling Club yesterday morning, when he defeated George Simon by the scant margin of one-fifth of a second. The winner was only a wheel length ahead when the tape was reached. Only four men started in the race but there was plenty of excitement for the big crowd that lined the course.

From the crack of the starter's gun, McNee and Simon began to fight for the lead and kept up the struggle throughout the entire ten miles almost neck and neck. In the last half mile of the course, the riders started a desperate sprint for the tape, McNee winning out by a sudden spurt.

Gifford Jones, who won third place in the ten-mile free for all handicap Labor Day, took the same honors in yesterday's race. The three place winners yesterday started from scratch.

McNee, who did the course in 29 minutes and 30 seconds, won the time prize as well as first place. He opened a wide gap between himself and the rest of the riders in the summer race series, taking a lead of 11 points.

The summaries: 1st, Edward McNee, scratch, 29 min. 30 secs.; 2d, George Simon, scratch, 29 min. 30 1-5 secs; 3rd, Gifford Jones, scratch, 29 min. 35 secs; 4th, Henry Phillips, 30 min.

The present standings in the summer championship series is as follows:

George Simon	21
William Drake	12
Gifford Jones	8

Percy Haberle	4
W. Southard	3

Lanier of the Cavalry

Or,

A Week's Arrest

By GENERAL CHARLES KING,

Author of "The Colonel's Daughter," "Foes In Ambush," Etc.

Copyright, 1909, by J. B. Lippincott Company

As to the origin of the fire, Bob Lanier merely said that he had turned the lights low in the sitting room and, obedient to "Shoe's" orders, had gone up to his roost, too wrathful and amazed over what had occurred even to think of sleep—to think, in fact, of anything but the colonel's words. So absorbed was he as he slowly undressed he never noted the sounds from below until his room of a sudden seemed filled with smoke, and, throwing open the door, he was amazed to find the hallway ablaze, the stairs impassable. Running to his dormer window, he yelled fire at the top of his voice. Sentry No. 5 heard and came running down the back fence, saw the peril, let drive a shot and gave a yell that roused every one at the hospital, poor Rafferty, half crazed, half dressed, coming leaping along among the first.

And there at his back window, choking with smoke and tossing out clothing and other belongings, stood Mr. Lanier. Some men went searching for ladders up the line of back yards, the post hook and ladder truck being, of course, on the far side of the garrison. There being no extension and sheds to this little box, as to the larger quarters up the line, other men began shouting and Lieutenant Grayson imploring Mr. Lanier to jump, for already the flames had burst through the windows below. Then came the episode the regiment laughed over, swore over, talked over, many a long year thereafter. To Grayson's appeal Bob's only answer was calm and deliberate:

"Give my compliments to the colonel, will you, and tell him that, my quarters being all ablaze, I'd like an extension of arrest?"

Then Sumter and Stannard came in, tumultuous, and ordered him down, and Blake and Curbit and the rest of the card party came tearing after them and berated him for an absurdity and implored him not to be an ass. And then a bright tongue of flame licked in through the transom behind him, and the door panels burst from the heat, and all the room at his back suddenly blazed with fire, and then went up the cry from that agonized girl, at sound of which Lanier started and strove to climb to the little window sill, with a lurid sheet lapping down about his head, and then a brace of young Irishmen, Cassidy foremost, came scrambling up a human pyramid smoking and singeing below them. They reached the blazing eaves and burst through the fringe of flame, dragging Bob forth and on to the edge and then tottered all together into that blessed mound of snow beneath, fast melting in the glare of that fiery furnace.

And thus were we brought to the morning of Thursday, the sixth since the eventful night when Miriam Arnold's shriek had alarmed the garrison; Miriam, whose voice had now been heard a second time, upraised in frantic dread and appeal, but this time for the young soldier who on the previous Friday night, forgetful of his arrest, had rushed forth at her cry, but this night had to be dragged; Miriam, who now lay sick from maidenly shame that in one wild appeal to save her lover she had so betrayed herself.

With Thursday noon came resumption of telegraphic communication and the long stalled railway trains from east and west. With Thursday afternoon came "wires" from Arnold, the father, begging to know had his daughter started, and back went the electric message that she neither had nor could nor would for a week, "full details by post." With Thursday evening came stacks of belated letters, "with whole bales of newspapers," said the stage driver, to follow, and with Thursday midnight, long after every one had gone to bed, there came a tapping at Major Stannard's storm door and presently a fumbling at the bell knob, a clanging of the bell.

"What now?" thought the sleepy major as he scuttled downstairs in slippers and dressing gown.

"It is Mayhew, sir," said a solemn voice. "I've come not hoping, only praying, I may find my daughter here."

"Good God!" said Stannard. "Come in." And he led forthwith his aged and trembling comrade within doors, seated him by the still glowing stove in the front room and struck a light. In less than a minute Mrs. Stannard, too, had joined them, her kind blue eyes filled with tender pity and sorrow. Poor motherless Dora had no lack of friendly counsel and fond, womanly sympathy when once she could be brought to lay her burden there. And now, with his gray hairs bowed in sorrow to the dust, poor Mayhew had come to tell his piteous tale. Ever since young Rawdon had gone with the paymaster she had been fitful and nervous. Ever since their coming to Cushing four weeks agone she had been watching waiting, listening, often weeping, and when letters came for her with the postmark of Fetterman or Laramie, Red Cloud or the cantonment in the hills he could not but note her feverish eagerness and her instant escape to her own room to read her treasure alone. Oh, yes; he knew they must be from Rawdon. He had liked the lad, knew there was good stuff in him, and he could not bear that fellow Fitzroy, who was a military loan shark, a man who fattened on the needs or weaknesses of his comrades.

But—God! He had never looked for this. Oh, where had she gone? And why? He had found her at home and in tears after the fire. Then that afternoon, some time, somehow, she got a message or a letter and then kissed him and said she would be better in bed. At 11 o'clock old Chloe's sobbing aroused him. Dora had disappeared.

They lost no time, those men of the field and the frontier. Stannard was dressed and out in twenty minutes.

Had she fled to join anybody? was the question that racked so many a heart, for, with the possible exception of gentle Mrs. Stannard, the girl had made no confidant.

It was this, full fifteen minutes after Lieutenant Field and two of his men had trotted off to town, that started old Stannard and big Jim Ennis down the valley from the veterinarian's, through "Sudstown," where girls and women were huddling and whispering at the news. They came to the long cavalry stables, standing gable ends to the north, like so many companies in close column, and at the sixth of these, farthest from the bluff whereon stood the barracks and quarters, they stopped and banged at the door. No answer, even when the sentry came to their aid and hammered with the butt of his carbine.

"I'll have him out," said the corporal of the guard and ran round to the south end and presently came back triumphant. He had roused the two orderlies. The burly major strode in, big Jim Ennis at his heels. The sergeant's door flew open before them. The room was empty. Fitzroy and Fitzroy's furs were gone. Nor was that all. Two empty stalls stood close at hand.

"I thought so," said he, then grabbed the nearest orderly by the coat collar. "Who took Lieutenant Foster's sleigh and team," demanded he, "and how long ago?"

"Sergeant Fitzroy, sir," came the answer, with a doleful whine, "just before the third relief, at half past 11."

"No time to see the colonel now!" said Ennis. "Major Stannard, I've got to gallop into town, but a dozen men, if need be, should trail that sleigh."

"Go it, boy," was the instant answer, "and I'm behind you."

CHAPTER VI.

ON the principle that disaster ever demands its victim the sentry of the second relief—the immediate predecessor of the soldier now on post at the north line of the stables—was stirred up at once and ordered to explain. Even as Stannard was hastening the movements of the men detailed to mount and trail the Foster team, even as Ennis was galloping townward on a mission of his own, Captain Langley of the infantry, officer of the day, began his stern examination of the luckless guardian.

Orders are orders. Even a stable sergeant could not take or send an animal out at night except the building stood in danger of destruction by flood, fire or tornado save on written order of a commissioned officer and in the presence of the corporal of the guard, and Stoner, the sentry of the second relief, admitted he knew these were the orders, but "the fellers" had never supposed they applied to Sergeant Fitzroy, who did pretty much as he pleased. In fact, Fitzroy hitched up and drove away without so much as a word to him.

Lock the Medicine Chest.

The nursery medicine chest may be a source of danger if left unlocked for even such things as mustard for plasters, cough mixtures or seidlitz powders may become sources of danger in the hands of a small child. The cupboard may be ever so high, but an inquisitive and exploring child, if it has a mind to, will find a way of reaching it. Keep it locked and you will have the "key of the situation."

Choosing a Carpet.

When choosing carpets, if economy must be studied select one with small pattern and of a rather light color. The small pattern cuts to greater advantage, for there is less waste in matching the design as the breadths are sewn together; and when the wool begins to wear the light color will not contrast so painfully against the string foundation as it would if it were many shades darker in tone.

A Willing Worker.

"Do you enjoy working in the garden, Mr. Suggsley?"

"Yes. It pays first rate."

"But you don't seem to be at all tanned."

"Why should I be? I'm a waiter in one of the gardens where there's nothin' doin' except at night. The tips are generally good."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Lots of It.

"All your talk about human vivisection is bosh, and you know it," says the man with the crochet cravat to the reformer.

"Is it?" answered the reformer. "You never happened to be on a summer hotel veranda among a crowd of women when a beautiful grass widow passed, did you?"—Chicago Post.

BOUND BROOK DEFEATED THE DUNELLEN TEAM

In a one sided game, which was full of poor decisions and misplays, the Dunellen baseball team went down to defeat at the hands of the Bound Brook nine on the latter's grounds Saturday afternoon by the score of 3-7. Montross was hit at will, while Ortlieb had the Dunellenites at his mercy all the time.

Bruggey, Bollinger and Meehan were the stars in the Bound Brook line up, the first two getting three hits apiece. Dodwell and Seery were the show for the Dunellen boys, each playing a hard steady game.

MIDLOTHIAN KENNELS; GREAT SHOW RECORDS.

The winnings of the Midlothian Kennel's dogs during the past season have been phenomenal. At the Chester County, Pennsylvania, show on September 7, in addition to winning all the firsts and specials for the breeds, Matchless of Midlothian won the Judge's cup for the best wolfhound, greyhound or deerhound in the show.

At the Staten Island Kennel Club show on September 8 and 9 the Kennels won all the firsts in the breeds and also captured the vice-president's cup for the best bitch of any breed in the show, with the champion "Mistress of Midlothian", and the special cup for the best sporting dog in the show with Matchless of Midlothian.

PLAINFIELD GOLFERS WIN TWO FOURSOMES

"Marty" O'Loughlin, the professional at the Plainfield Country Club, and J. Whitney Baker, a member of the club, played two 18-hole foursomes against the professionals of the Westfield Golf Club, Andrew Conway and Morris McCarthy, of the Morris Park Golf Club, last week. One foursome was played on the Westfield links and the Plainfield pair defeated its opponents, by 5 up and 4 to go. The best ball of the Plainfielders was 69. The other foursome was played at the Cranford Golf Club and that match, too, was won by the Plainfielders, by 5 up and 4 to play. This time their best ball was 70.

"Marty" played the first nine holes in 40, getting a 3 on the seventh, 2 on the eighth and 3 on the ninth, making the remarkably low score of 34, a total of 74 for the 18 holes.

PRIMARY TOMORROW

Read and Consider

The question is, are you going to stand by, support and vote for the men who are fighting your battles and are pledged to your interests, or are you going to vote for the men who are always studying, planning and plotting how to do you?

To the Editor:

My Dear Sir: As we approach the primary day it seems as though every citizen should be inquiring about the Assembly candidates and what they stand for in order that we can act intelligently and wisely. Because our Assemblymen make the laws of the State and unless they stand for what we want we will certainly get what we don't want.

Now we know precisely what Louis V. Hoagland and Lester E. Wurfel stand for because they have issued a platform telling us, viz:—for popular government and against boss rule; for the nomination of Governor, United States senator and congressmen by direct vote; for a corrupt practice act; for a just employers' liability law; and for a public utilities law with power to regulate rates.

Now where does Augustus W. Schwartz stand on any of these questions?

Does Mr. Schwartz approve the increase of the commutation rates? He must do so because at the last session of the legislature he voted against a public utilities bill with power to regulate rates.

Again, he must be opposed to the popular election of United States senators because he failed to declare where he stood upon this burning question at the time he filed his petition for nomination. The conclusion that he is opposed to such an election of United States senators is justified also because he is Senator Kean's own candidate and Senator Kean has refused to comply with the law calling for an expression of the people's choice.

Again, since Schwartz voted against a utility law with power to regulate rates or charges for services, and since he is Senator Kean's own candidate, he must be in favor of maintaining and possibly increasing our present water rates which are just double what they should be.

Where does Augustus W. Schwartz stand upon any public question? Does anybody know?

Do you want to vote for any man for the Legislature who doesn't know where he stands now upon the vital questions affecting us, the people? He may be utterly opposed to us in everything, yes, certainly must be since he is Senator Kean's own personal candidate. No one has ever suspected that Senator Kean would favor anything looking to the interest and welfare of the people, have they?

And then there is one Peter Meisel, of Suringfield, candidate for the assembly nomination, who has not given the slightest intimation of what his views are or what he is thinking about. Now since he is Senator Kean's own personal candidate also, are we to understand that he will have no opinions whatever until he is told what to think?

Under the circumstances there is only one thing for any intelligent, self-respecting man to do and that is to vote for Louis V. Hoagland and Lester E. Wurfel because they have told us just where they stand on all the important questions coming before the legislature. To vote for Mr. Schwartz or Mr. Meisel as matters now stand would be to vote directly against our own interest and no sensible man is going to do that? Is he?

Again remember that to vote for Schwartz and Meisel is a direct vote for John Kean. Do you want to vote for him? And if so, why? Very truly yours,

SAMUEL J. CARNE.

To the Editor:

Dear Sir:—I respectfully submit these lines and trust you will place them before the voters of the Fifth Congressional District.

Courageous and able, in Congress a power,
He stood for the right, he's the "man of the hour."
A friend of the people and true to his trust,
Republican staunch, he's both honest and just.
Let past deeds commend him, his record is known;
Every call of the nation his prowess has shown,
So that czardom has fallen and bossism's weak

Now vote for this man—the victory complete,

For progress must come and we voters must lend
On all sides a ready hand, the yoke to end.
Wherefore now is the time to get into the fray,
Let votes be cast to carry the day,
Every man to his duty and work for Fowler!
Return this man with your votes to power.

REV. DR. EATON'S TRIBUTE

Divine's Eulogy at Funeral Services of Francis de Lacy Hyde.

KNEW HIM NOT LONG BUT WELL.

Comforting Words for Widow and Children From Eminent Divine—God Cares and He Knows.

At the funeral services of the late Francis deLacy Hyde, held on Sunday afternoon, Rev. Dr. C. A. Eaton delivered a short address in which he spoke of Mr. Hyde's life as he knew it. He said in part:

Sometime in this journey that we call Life, we seem to be adrift upon a sea that has no shore and no star. Speech must then give place to silence, and fortunate indeed are we if we then retain our hope and our faith. These moments come to all, but I believe they bring out of the human heart the knowledge and fear of God. There is no sea beyond His ken are care, there is no sky that does not tell of the wondrous glory of His love and presence. There is no tragic experience that He does not understand. This is God's world, He made it, He made us, and He accepts full responsibility for the wondrous thing we call Creation. He loves us with a love passing the love of woman indefinable, divine. So today we bring our spirits to this great thought; God knows, God loves, God cares, God guides. I know that when we are most disconsolate God is there. I only know I cannot drift beyond his love and care. Men at their best see only a superficial exterior of things. We judge by appearances, we do not know. God knows from the beginning to the end. I take refuge in this great thought: I know that neither life nor death, nor things present nor things to come are able to separate us from the love of God, which is in Christ Jesus, our Lord. This world is His, it has its light and shadow. We move and have our being in Him. He performs His work, we must do ours. We fail, He never fails. A mother loves her child when sick; better, perhaps, than when well; the strongest become sick the wisest fail, but God loves us because we are His. He knows, He loves, He cares, He guides, and I would say to these dear hearts and friends and neighbors that we sometimes draw nearer to God in these dark moments.

I did not know him long, but I knew him well. Sometimes in a half hour's conversation with a man you will know him better than if side by side for a life time. He had a white soul and God loved him, and I know that he loved God, for the last time I met him I heard him refer to God as Our Heavenly Father. I laid a tribute of love and respect upon him today and I can truthfully say that I shall miss this man as a beautiful spirit, gone from his burden and his pain, I believe, to be with Jesus, who knows and loves and guides.

Dear ones, we can only bring to you our love. You have your burden and your sorrows, you have your God and Father, who is ours. Only we must know that He loves and understands and that by-and-by we too shall get Home. Some of us through stormy way, some through calm seas. We shall all get Home to meet him and those dear ones whose numbers grow with the fleeting years. The happy days when pain, sorrow and sin are gone forever and we shall be free because we shall be like Him.

TITUS HAD FAINTING FITS; RESCUED BY PATROLMAN.

Mahlon Titus, of Warrenville, fell into the arms of Patrolman McGinley yesterday afternoon at the corner of Park avenue and Front street and was forthwith sent over to police headquarters for safekeeping. Titus, who is an aged man declared this morning that he was subject to fits and that when he turned to enter Park avenue he was seized with one of his fainting spells and was thankful to Patrolman McGinley for preventing his fall to the pavement.

Of course the odor of liquor on his breath did not reveal the cause of the old man's sudden indisposition, at least so he declared, but Judge Runyon took into consideration the age of the man and asked him to retire to his farm work at Warrenville. He promised to do so and was released.

Missionary and Aid to Meet.

The first fall meeting of the Missionary and Aid Society of Warren chapel will be held at the chapel, Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Mrs. A. V. D. Honeyman, who has been absent for a year, will preside at the meeting and a full attendance is desired.

BOSSISM.

"There are bigger issues at stake than the indulgence in mud slinging. I will not use it, and for the benefit of those who think otherwise I want to say that there is not a man big nor rich enough in this country to buy me."—Judge Runyon, at the Republican mass meeting Saturday night, Sept. 10.

PLAINFIELD GOLFERS FAIL TO QUALIFY AT BROOKLINE

Warren K. Wood of Chicago, led the field in the eighteen-hole qualifying round in the national golf championship tournament at the Country Club, Brookline, yesterday, with a fine 75, which is par for the course. Walter J. Travis, of Garden City, finished only one stroke away. As it stood at the close of the day's play, eleven of the 203 entrants got around in better than 80 strokes and sixty-eight in 87 or better, with fourteen tied at the last named figure for the last four places. It is quite possible, however, that those who returned 87 will be eliminated.

There were two entrants from the Plainfield Country Club, Dudley H. Barrows and William T. Glenney. The former returned a 91 and the latter a 97 for the 18 holes, which puts them out of the running for championship honors, H. D. Hibbard, also of the Plainfield Country Club was entered, but he did not poost a score, if he played, which is doubtful. It was impossible for all to finish the first round yesterday, owing to the large number of entries, and the play was continued this morning.

BORDEN MILK CONCERN MAY INVADE PLAINFIELD

The Borden Milk Company, one of the largest single concerns in the dairy business in this country, is planning to extend its trade throughout New Jersey, and it is reliably reported that it will not be long before the company's dairy products will be sold in this city. At present they are being sold in Westfield, regular deliveries being made there.

For the purpose of taking up the matter of selling milk and cream here, the company has been in communication with George M. Christian, who is at the head of the publicity committee of the Board of Trade. The company is planning to arrange a meeting with one of its representatives and the committee from the Board of Trade, the idea being to make Plainfield a central distributing point for this section of the State, as well as sell milk and cream in Plainfield.

If the company decides to locate here, it will require a property of considerable size upon which to locate its plant.

Two other large concerns are anxious to locate factories in this city. Cummings & Co., machinists, of New York, has been in communication with Mr. Christian. This concern wants about 25,000 square feet of floor space, while Dix Sons, of New York, manufacturers of women's suits, also want to locate here. They now have about five branch factories in New Jersey. They desire about 10,000 square feet of floor space.

MR. KETCHEL'S ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATED AT MISSION.

An interesting service was held in the Rescue Mission on Madison avenue last night in celebration of the anniversary of the conversion of Norman Ketchel. The services were marked by some stirring and the remarkable testimony offered by some of the converts.

Superintendent LeMatty was in charge of the meting and Mrs. John Manley and her two sons, Irving and Raymond rendered several vocal selections.

Mr. Ketchel himself read the Scripture and recounted his experiences giving graphic descriptions of his life As a result of the testimony offered last night one man professed conversion.

"The Man on the Box" Pleased.

"The Man on the Box," a three-act comedy, was offered at the Plainfield theatre, last night, before a large audience. The play is full of good comedy and amusing situations. The stock company continues to show improvement and the productions are now running smoothly. The management will present this play today and tomorrow and the last three days of the week. "The Lost Trail," will be offered. The company is now rehearsing "Brown of Harvard," which will be the bill the first three days of next week.

—Neuman Bros. will have tomorrow 150 baskets fancy table and canning peaches, white and yellow, exceptionally fine fruit.

JEALOUSY MURDER MOTIVE

Alleged Confessed Murderer of Patrick Cahill Faces Middlesex Co. Jury.

DETECTIVES GIVE TESTIMONY.

Comet Fright Alleged to Have Been Cause of Italian's Willingness to Tell Story of Killing.

The trial of Luigo Cerefice, charged with the murder of Patrick Cahill at New Market, which crime he confessed at Newark under odd circumstances, was started yesterday morning at New Brunswick before Justice Bergen and a jury. J. Victor D'Aloia, of Newark, represents the defendant. The jury was quickly drawn, but few jurors being challenged on either side. The jury was sworn in as follows: John W. Eile, of Perth Amboy, foreman; David Nevius, Milltown; James Waker, New Brunswick; A. C. Schreeves ker, New Brunswick; A. C. Schreeves, South Brunswick; William T. Redshaw, Madison; Arthur Perrine, Cranbury; John D. Reid, East Brunswick; John Van Norden, South River; Elmer E. Bergen, Cranbury; Dewitt Giles, Dunellen; David H. Smith, Jamesburg.

Prosecutor Booraem in his opening said the State would prove that Cerefice killed Cahill on the night of May 11, and that jealousy was the motive. Both men were in love with Elizabeth Varden, and it was to rid himself of Cahill as a rival that Cerefice shot Cahill twice, then clubbed him and buried his body within twenty feet of his shanty between some cornstalks.

Joseph Cordano, a Newark detective, testified to arresting Luigi near New Market on May 18, while looking for members of a "Black Hand" gang. Cerefice had acted suspiciously, and he believed him guilty of something.

Cerefice was arrested in the belief that he was a man wanted on suspicion of having been connected with the bomb outrages in the Second Precinct, Newark. He supposed, however, that the police had discovered the killing and confessed all, telling how he concealed the body.

It develops that in arresting Cerefice Detectives Cordano and Tenore had mistaken him for the man they were really looking for in connection with the Second Precinct case. Cerefice was entirely ignorant of any "Black Hand" crimes, and but for the "error" of the detectives the tragedy of New Market might never have been discovered.

According to Tenore and Cordano, when they came upon Cerefice he was leaving his shack with a jug to go after cider.

"Come here, we want you," demanded the two officers, and in the usual police manner they started to inform Cerefice how they had it all on him, and that there was no use of his trying to wriggle out of it, as he would only be punished more severely. However, the two detectives failed to state to the man what the crime was. It was a fortunate oversight on the part of the two officers.

Both were sure from the prisoner's manner that he was guilty of being implicated in the "Black Hand" outrages. They did not question him further, but started on their trip back to the station. While walking the tracks, Cerefice suddenly blurted out:

"Well, what would you do if a man came to your house at night, and broke open your door and threatened to kill you if you did not give him mney?"

"Kill him," promptly responded Tenore, not knowing what the man was talking about.

"Well, that's just what I did," responded Cerefice to the two amazed detectives.

Fearing to question him further lest they betray their ignorance of what he had revealed, the two detectives took him to the Second Precinct, Newark, and before Captain Brown, where he openly told of the details of the crime to the three.

Cerefice's confession was to the effect that Cahill had called at his house on the night of May 11 and knocked on the door, stating that he wanted some money.

The prisoner said that he refused to admit him, and that the man then became angry and threw large stones against the door of the dwelling, which soon gave way. Believing Cahill meant to harm him, Cerefice declares, he shot him twice in the head, and struck him with an axe. Becoming frightened at what he had done, he dragged the body to the rear of the shack, buried it in the yard and threw cornstalks over it.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Hartley Mellick, who have been stopping for some time with Mrs. Mellick's parents, Mr. and Mrs. O. T. Waring, of Park avenue, have returned to their home on Belvidere avenue for the fall and winter.

SANGUINE OF SWEEPING THE CITY FOR RUNYON

Friends of Judge Runyon were active long before the polls opened this afternoon, using every honorable means at their command to assure him a large majority in every district of the city as a candidate for the Republican congressional nomination. They are sanguine of the outcome but realize that every vote counts and are anxious to see that no one fails to vote. No predictions are being made as to majorities even by the friends of Charles N. Fowler who are hustling for their candidate.

Judge Runyon's speech at Reform Hall on Friday night has gained for him many supporters who were counted as friendly to his opponent. When the judge, however, declared himself as opposed to what is termed Cannonism, his candidacy was strengthened as immeasurably as it was by his statement of absolute freedom from bossism and boss dictation. On that occasion he nailed the campaign canards circulated to hurt him by unequivocally declaring that he never had any boss and never would know one and that, if elected, his vote for the Speakership would be for the man whom he believed would best harmonize the factions in the House. He added with much emphasis that he did not consider that Mr. Cannon was such a man.

Today the judge ended a vigorous campaign which was marked by dignity and fairness. Unlike his opponent, he had not engaged in any mud-slinging, and had frequently deplored in his public utterances such practices. The verdict of the Republican voters whether they desire him to represent them in the Lower House at Washington will be registered at the primaries today.

BOROUGH REPUBLICANS HEAR THEIR CANDIDATES

The Republican voters of the borough met in Debele's auditorium last night to plan for the primaries today. Mayor Newton B. Smalley acted as chairman. Alexander Milne, one of the candidates for the Council, was chosen president and Edmund Rushmore secretary. Charles P. Sebring, a Shrievalty candidate, made a speech. He said that the Republicans in other towns and townships of the county are supporting him and he declared that he hoped the citizens of North Plainfield would rally to his standard. He also discussed the political situation in the county and State and ended with the declaration that the vote of every Republican would be needed this year.

B. R. Waldron, candidate for Freeholder, and Dr. Justus H. Cooley, candidate for borough assessor nomination, also spoke. Mayor Smalley urged every Republican to attend the primaries.

These committees were appointed: Executive—N. B. Smalley, N. B. Rushmore, Howard Woolston, B. R. Waldron and John Y. Barrett; campaign—M. C. Van Arsdale, Clifford McGee, James K. Arnold, J. W. A. Bauersacks, W. L. Smalley, Jr., and James E. Church.

IVINS FOR MAYORALTY

Democrats Get His Consent to Head Their Primary Ticket.

AN EXCELLENT SELECTION.

He is a Successful Business Man, Governor of Hospital and Vestryman of Grace Episcopal Church.

DeWitt C. Ivins, who has been a prominent resident of this city for the past quarter of a century, and also identified with the business and realty interests here, has consented to stand for the nomination for the mayoralty on the Democratic ticket, and his name will appear on the ballot of that party, either by paster or pencil. The party has been making every effort to secure a candidate and it is pleased that Mr. Ivins has given his consent. He will receive sufficient votes to place him in nomination in opposition to either B. Frank Coriell, the regular Republican candidate or George W. V. Moy, the Progressive candidate, whichever wins the nomination.

Mr. Ivins, who is about fifty-five years old, was born at Penns Manor, Bucks County, Pa. He came to Plainfield about twenty-five years ago. He was married to Miss Louise Fox, daughter of the late Charles Fox, who for many years was a prosperous merchant engaged in California trade with the firm known as Ketcham & Co., of New York city.

For the past twenty years Mr. Ivins has been secretary and treasurer and a member of the firm of the Daly and Ivins Co., a sanitary concern, which carries the waste of New York out beyond tidewater. The company has an extensive fleet of scows, etc., engaged in this service. About ten years ago he bought out Loomis & Rice, local lumber merchants, and was successful in the business for several years, after which he sold out.

Mr. Ivins is a Democrat of positive viwes and his friends believe, if elected, would make an ideal mayor of the city. He has served on several city commissions and has also been prominently identified with Muhlenberg Hospital, as a member of the Board of Governors. Mr. Ivins is a vestryman of Grace church. He has always been a liberal contributor to charitable objects. He resides at Hillside avenue and Lake street, and besides is an extensive property holder in this city.

Mr. Ivins will reflect honor on his party as its candidate and if elected would make an excellent mayor.

LADIES' CHRISTIAN WORK SOCIETY PLANS A FESTIVAL.

The Ladies' Christian Work Society of Trinity Reformed church, held its first fall meeting at the church, yesterday afternoon, with Mrs. Elizabeth A. Parse, president, in the chair. A majority of the members have returned from their vacations and there was a large attendance at the meeting. It was reported that $60 had been received toward the carpet fund, each member contributing $1 for that purpose. The carpet has been purchased and laid in the church and greatly admired by all who have seen it. It adds greatly to the appearance of the general improvements.

The members decided to hold a peach festival in the lecture room of the church on Thursday night, September 22. Mrs. Edward T. VanWinkle, as the head of the finance committee, is chairman of the festival committee and the other committees will be announced later. The proceeds from the festival will be used for church work.

Candidate Withdraws.

George M. Christian, of 63 Westervelt avenue, has withdrawn as a candidate for the Democratic councilmanic nomination in the First Ward, although his name appears on the ticket of that party. Mr. Christian declined the honors three weeks ago, informing the leaders of the party that he would refuse to stand for the nomination. He expects to leave within ten days on a business trip to South America.

CANNONISM.

"If I am elected to Congress, I shall vote to elect as Speaker of the House the man who seems best able to harmonize the factions of the Republican party. And I say now that I do not regard Joseph G. Cannon as that man."—Judge Runyon, at the Republican mass meeting Saturday night, Sept. 10.

STATE TRUST COMPANY OPENS DOORS ON FRIDAY

On Friday next the State Trust Company of Plainfield expects to open its doors to the public in the Marsh building at the southeast corner of Second street and Park avenue. During the interim the Public Service Co. has installed electric lights so that the workmen who are completing the interior arrangements may work at night. The installation of the new manganese vault has been attracting hundreds of visitors to the new banking concern's building.

One of the features which has attracted the crowds during the past few days has been the remarkable change which is being consummated in the interior of the building. Eight-foot mahogany wainscoting is taking the place of the old white walls; corrugated plate glass will surmount the specially large plate glass windows and the directors' room which is at the rear of the first floor will be one of the handsomest of its kind in the city.

It is expected that with the additional efforts being put forth by the workmen on the job that the new bank will be ready on the time specified, next Friday.

HOW WM. CLARK KEPT AHEAD OF FLAMES

William H. Clark, of Park avenue, has returned from one of the most interesting trips he ever made to the Pacific seaboard. During his railroad trip across the State of Washington the train on which Mr. Clark was a passenger was chased by the forest fires and at one time it was feared that the flames would overtake the cars.

Arrived at Helena, Mont., it was announced by the conductor of the Pullman train that it would be necessary to traverse an entirely new route for the trans-Pacific train. In order to get to Seattle, Washington, whence the majority of the passengers were bound, it was necessary, in order to avoid the fires which were raging in Idaho, to make a wide detour over the rails of the Canadian Pacific Railroad, and arrive at Seattle some ten hours late.

Mr. Clark, in speaking of his experiences on the trip this morning, declared that never in all his life had he seen such devastation done in such a short period of time. The train at times would seem to back up instead of going at forty miles an hour, and it was only the bravery and cool headedness of the engineer and fireman of the locomotive that they finally reached their destination.

Hundreds of thousands of trees and valuable farm lands were consumed in the flames, which seemed to fairly eat up the dried underbrush and gasping trees. Only the miracle of rain saved the country from one of its most serious catastrophes.

Mr. Clark has been in the habit of making his trip to the West an annual affair, but the last trans-continental outing almost proved too much fr this seasoned traveler.

DEMOCRATS CAN'T VOTE FOR G. O. P. CANDIDATES.

Some Democrats it was learned this morning intend to place the names of Runyon delegates on their primary tickets as well as the name of Moy for mayor, believing that the votes will count for these two Republicans. Such is not the case, however, for votes cast at the Democratic primaries, in nowise figure with those cast at the Republican primaries.

A Democrat cannot vote at the Republican primaries, neither does his vote for a Republican at a Democratic primary count in the Republican primary. Although held at the same time and place, the two primaries are entirely separate.

Pastor and Choir Returns.

Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, pastor of the First Baptist church, is expected to occupy his pulpit on Sunday, morning and evening, and the chorus choir, under the direction of Howard Case, will resume its services. Miss Ruth Harris, soprano soloist, has been spending the summer at her home in Virginia, and Miss Hazel Hattfield, contralto, has been enjoying the summer in the mountains. They will both return this week.

SCORES FOWLER RECORD

President of Union Co. League of Republican Clubs Talks on Issues.

HIS POSITION ON MEASURES.

Why Mr. Fowler Was Deposed as Chairman of Currency Committee—His Attitude to the Tariff.

"After the panic of 1907, when nearly two thousand men were discharged from the Singer Sewing Machine Works and the remainder were put on short time an effort was made, in which President Roosevelt joined, to pass some legislation to restore confidence and prevent further panic," said James MacMaster, president of the Union County League of Republican Clubs, yesterday, in speaking of Mr. Fowler's candidacy for Congress. "A bill was prepared, embodying the ideas of the majority, which was referred to the Committee on Banking and Currency, of which Charles N. Fowler was chairman. Mr. Fowler refused to report it, even at the demand of his own committeemen, and insisted on his own bill as the only panacea. A caucus of Republican members was held and this caucus adopted the bill, and voted that it be presented for action. Fowler refused to abide by the result of the caucus of his own party and the bill was reported for the committee by Representative Edward B. Vreeland, of New York, and passed by Congress in both Houses. It is the law signed by the President under which emergency associations are being formed by banks to relieve financial stress in panicky times.

"Mr. Vreeland has taken Mr. Fowler's place on the Committee of Banking and Currency, and Fowler, by estranging the members of his own party, has put himself outside of the Republican party and destroyed his own influence and usefulness as a Representative of this district.

"At the recent session of Congress a tariff bill was passed which was of the utmost importance to the people of Elizabeth because it proposed to greatly reduce and as passed did reduce, to some extent, the duty on sewing machines, paper and other products of Elizabeth industry, thus making it possible for our own manufacturers who have factories on the other side far exceeding in size the Elizabeth establishments to manufacture for American trade and thus be more or less independent of the American labor market. Mr. Fowler might have been employed in defending the interests of Elizabeth workingmen than in conducting a personal conflict with Speaker Cannon in which he put himself under obligation to his Democratic colleagues, affiliating himself with them.

"There are many subjects of legislation important to the people of Union county and of Elizabeth, and it is greatly to our interest to have a representative in each house of Congress. If these two work harmoniously, we as citizens, manufacturers and business men would be in a most fortunate position. Because of Mr. Fowler's hostile attitude to Senator Kean, we have not had the best results from this double representation. And now that Fowler is disgraced and discredited by the Republican majority his influence which for lack of a following has always been small is absolutely nil excepting as a troublemaker.

"During the primary contest Mr. Fowler besides attacking Kean, Cannon, Smith, Wright and others has deliberately and yindictively attacked the Republican House of Representatives and used the words "huge blackmailing scheme" in describing it. The extraordinary spectacle has been presented of a man seeking the suffrages of his party who has not at his numerous meetings throughout the entire campaign praised the Republican party and its acts of legislation. Mr. Fowler has ceased to be the Republican representative of this district and is to all intents and purposes a Democrat as has been already claimed by Democrats. He has furnished ammunition to our political opponents that will be used against us after the primary and has not said a single word he will be obliged to retract if, failing to get a Republican endorsement, he should capture the Democratic nomination.

"The issue in this campaign is not Cannonism nor is it Fowlerism, the doctrine of hate—hatred of every thing that is Republican and hatred of everyone who is not Charles N. Fowler. To such an unchristian, unmanly and dishonest doctrine Republicans should refuse to subscribe. The real issue in this primary campaign is "True Republicanism." Shall we have a candidate who will devote his time to the business of a Congressman? Shall we have one to represent this district who stands for Republican principles and good government or shall we have one who

Marshal Benson is arresting all suspicious looking characters at night since the recent burglaries in town. Every man that is found loitering about the streets at a late hour is accosted by the marshal. If unsatisfactory replies are given to the marshal's questions, the loiterer is taken to the jail to await further evidence. Four suspicious looking characters have been arrested already. REV. MADISON C. PETERS PRAISES THE HEBREW

Rev. Dr. Madison Peters, of New York, delivered a lecture Sunday night in the Y. M. H. A. hall on "The Rise of the Jew in Civilization." After the talk he distributed his books around the audience, which bought his entire supply.

In the course of his remarks, Dr. Peters said in part: "During the past centuries history shows that the geniuses of the ages have been Jews. In all the branches of the arts as well as in the mechanical lines, these people have taken a prominent place. Among the list of famous inventors, doctors, musicians, historians, politicians, financiers, scholars and statesmen, the Jews are found in large numbers.

"Rome with her great power has fallen, Greece is now unheard of, Egypt has passed into oblivion, but the Jews are the same today as they always were, and from all present indications they are coming back to the land of their fathers and will become a power in the world. The Jewish race remains today the miracle of history, the wonderment of mankind, and the fulfillment of prophesy.

"It is usually said that the Jews are rich, but if all the money in Jewish hands was divided among these people, the world would see a poor race. But they are industrious people and keep the business world on the upward increase. Where there are no Jews business is not on the boom but on the bum. People say that the Jew is only a middleman and not a manufacturer, but the retail dealer is just as important in the distribution of the necessities of life as the man who makes them.

"It is not fair to judge the Jew by his meanness. We are all after money, it is our god and we are all liable to lose Heaven on its account.

"The longivity of the Jew is an essential quality in his favor. The average Jew lives to the age of 37 while the average Gentile only reaches 26 years. As citizens the Jews have proved themselves to be most desirable. Disputes have arisen to this statement, especially regarding the number of Jewish convicts. But figures prove the decency of these people. Figures can't lie but liars can figure.

"The reason for this wonderful advancement of the Jews is due to their earnest desire for education and better living. Jewish parents are crucifying themselves for the education of their children. And much toward the advancement of your race can be accomplished by such improvement societies as you have here in Plainfield."

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

The Salem W. C. T. U. has distributed among the schools 1,100 blotters bearing the words "Don't Smoke."

John Servis, fourteen years old, is in St. Francis' Hospital, Trenton, in a serious condition, as the result of drinking a pint of whisky.

Horace Smith, son of Frank Smith, of Trenton, may lose his right hand as the result of being struck by the handle of an automobile which he was cranking. Several bones in the hand are broken.

While looking for employment in Camden Saturday, James Burk, thirty-two years old, a structural iron worker, of Butte, Mont., was struck by an automobile, while at Third and Arch streets, and was badly injured about the arms.

Patrick Farrell, a brakeman, thirty-six years old, of 1022 Bergen avenue, Camden, was jolted from a freight car in the Pavonia freight yard Saturday. He fell beneath the wheels and was crushed to death. He leaves a widow and five children.

After saving her young sister from falling from a step Sunday afternoon, Mary Norman, seven years old, of 213 Channing terrace, Camden, slipped to the sidewalk and had her right collarbone broken. The child was cared for at the Homeopathic Hospital.

Joseph Bruzzela, twelve years old, died in the Atlantic City Hospital Sunday night from cerebral spinal meningitis, which developed from injuries he received last week from the explosion of a gas tank he was using to inflate toy balloons. His parents were at his bedside when the little fellow passed away.

Hammering a cartridge picked up beside the railroad tracks near Twelfth and Federal streets, Camden, to see what it was made of, yesterday, Harry Martin, four years old, of 113 Cooper street, had his right thumb and left ear badly torn by the resulting explosion. The little fellow was assisted to the Homeopathic Hospital by his companions.

Returning from the races at Riverton Saturday evening about 10 o'clock, Zip 11, the speed boat of Thomas Hutchinson, of Woodbury, ran into a sunken barge just inside the mouth of Woodbury Creek, and is a total wreck. In the boat, besides Hutchinson, were A. E. Tygert, of Philadelphia; Mr. and Mrs. Albert Dell, William Gibbs and William Sparks, of Woodbury. All had been to the races. Tygert had helped Hutchinson in operating the racer. The rest of the party stopped at Washington Park for lunch and the Zip was bringing them home.

THE SUMMER COMPLEXION.

The returning vacationer, if such a person is of the feminine sex, is not at all elated to behold the ravages made by Old Sol during her sojourn by the ocean or mountains.

A leatherly-looking visage, ornamented further by freckles of the largest size, a red and shining nose, looks back at her disgustedly from her dressing table mirror.

A well-defined line marks the place where the bathing suit failed to shield her neck from the scorching rays, which playing on a skin wet with salt water, got in some fine work.

The whole texture of the skin seems different; as indeed it is, from the soft, white cuticle of her usual carefully treated complexion.

Beauty doctors and pharmacists are besieged now for creams or lotions to "remove tan."

These wise ones smile and solemnly hand forth concoctions which satisfy and soothe the perturbed mind and perhaps, if used wisely, harm the skin not at all.

But the truth of the matter is that any lotion strong enough to remove the tan will also at the same time remove some of the cuticle and so result in a roughened surface not at all pleasant or wholesome.

Sunburn can be helped, but a long standing case of tan cannot be got off instantaneously, and this is a fact.

Lots of hot water, a good soaking of the face in the same, soap, a complexion brush, a little of the hand sand soap manufactured for the bath-room and not the kitchen, and much may be done in hurrying away some of that brown look which has faded into a dull tan.

After the hot bath a careful, patient, long continued massage will prove for itself that much is being found done, for under the fingers tiny rolls and scraps of skin will be felt and this speaks volumes. It means that the surface layer of tanned skin is being removed, so in a few days the pink and white look which is so becoming will once again be back in its old place.

After such a treatment cold water is needed to reduce the temperature of the skin and tone the relaxed tissues.

Such a careful bath and scrub and massage repeated several times, not too often perhaps every second day, will help to remove tan in the most natural way known.

HINTS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE.

To mend a torn umbrella stick black court plaster inside the tear. This will show less than a darn and will last for some time.

To remove grease from carpets made a paste of Fuller's earth and ammonia. Spread over the marks and leave till dry. Then sweep in the ordinary way.

If you have no iron stand use an ordinary brick to stand your irons on. You will find the brick (which should be heated first) will keep the irons far hotter than does the ordinary iron stand.

After cleaning the brass on the front door rub it with an old soft duster smeared with vaseline and then polish with a dry cloth. This will keep the brass from tarnishing even in quite damp and foggy weather.

When blacking a stove mix the black lead with turpentine. The polish will shine more brightly and last better.

After whitewashing a ceiling there are often stains of whitewash on the furniture and windows. These can be easily removed by rubbing with a soft cloth on which a few drops of paraffin have been put.

Always shrink a new braid before sewing to a skirt, otherwise the bottom of the skirt will become puckered the first time of wearing in a shower of rain.

Scratches on furniture will disappear if rubbed well with a solution of equal parts of linseed oil and turpentine. Rub this well into the scratches and then polish with a soft cloth.

Cracks in walls may be filled up with plaster of Paris. Mix this with vinegar instead of water. It will then be like putty and can be used with ease. If mixed with water it hardens so soon that it is very difficult to use it quickly enough.

To remove iron mold from marble rub the marble with a cut lemon dipped in common salt. If this does not remove the stain try rubbing it with spiirts of ammonia, which is often successful when other treatments fail. In either case it is well to afterwards rinse the spot and polish it with a soft cloth.

Kane—Hoffman.

Miss Elizabeth Kane, of Arlington avenue, and Elmer Hoffman, of 688 West Front street, were married Saturday at St. Mary's rectory by Father Bogan. The bride is a sister of James Kane, and the groom is well known in this city. The couple will reside on Arlington avenue.

Well, High Bridge wasn't so great after all!

But then you've got to figure that the Plainfield boys can play some speedy ball.

"Bill" O'Loughlin made good, anyway.

Dunellen is feeling more or less sore after the defeat at the hands of Bound Brook Saturday. The way in which the game was lost when the borough boys had a chance to win was really exasperating.

And Blackwell didn't have anything on Ward, at that. In fact, Ward had it on him. Both twirlers had excellent control, each giving one base on balls.

When Apgar stepped in the way of that fast in-curve of Ward's in the sixth inning with the bases full, the High Bridge players started their rally, which tied the score and saved them from a shut-out. Sculley was there with the wallop at the critical moment, and brought in the three base huggers with a two-sacker to deep center.

Something was wrong with Jack Martin in the field work. He erred on two easy chances—and then to show that he could come back he made a beautiful one-hand catch, tagging a man out at second.

Ayers, who claims to be hitting around .667, failed to connect for a safety in the game between the West Ends and the Turners Saturday. Can he come back?

P. S.—Can a duck swim?

Warry McLaughlin's game leg still bothers him a trifle, but the speedy southpaw has been giving the injured member a rest and expects to be in the finest sort of fettle for the Somerville series.

It looks as though there would be no deciding game between the Dunellen and Plainfield teams. The series with Somerville will keep the Doerflinger aggregation busy until late in October and the boroughites have already closed their schedule.

Baseball is again a funny proposition. After defeating Philadelphia in two games Saturday, the Brooklyn Superbas were shut out by the Quakers yesterday 3-0.

The attendance at Saturday's game was smaller than usual, due perhaps to the waning interest toward the late end of the season. But just wait until the Somerville team strikes this city and then watch the fans come out in full force and with a roll of money.

Plainfield rooters took a considerable sum of High Bridge money Saturday afternoon at 2-1 odds. It looked like easy coin up to the sixth inning when Sculley tied the score with his two-sacker.

Those three hits by Emery Saturday were the real article, if there ever was any. The speedy third baseman clouted the ball at the right time and when it was needed.

Eddie Collins of the Athletics has stolen 65 bases this year. If he purloins twelve more sacks, he will have equaled Cobb's record for the season of 1909.

Charming baseball weather!

FOOTBALL.

The football teams in this vicinity are beginning to get things in shape for the coming season. No regular practice has been held by any of the local elevens, the time being taken up for the most part in learning the new rules.

Clifford Smith has called a meeting of all the candidates for the Dunellen first team at his house on North avenue, Dunellen, tonight. The prospects for a heavy strong team in the borough this year are most promising. A captain and a manager of the eleven will be elected at the meeting tonight and practice will start in the near future.

The Maoma F. C. is planning to put a strong eleven on the gridiron this year. The team will begin practice on September 24. Manager Leo Ayers and assistant manager Conrad Schroffer would like to hear from last year's players and any new men who would like to try for the team this year. The average weight of the eleven will be 140 pounds. Games are wanted by the Maomas with all teams of this weight including the Westfield, Holy Cross, Dunellen Seconds, Owl F. C., Tigers, Brunswick A. C., Arions, Raritan Junior, Milltown, Orange and Metuchen teams.

Leo Ayers and Conrad Schroffer, of the Maoma team, will not be in the game this year on account of injuries received last season. They will coach the Maoma eleven and get it into first class shape.

GOLF.

Word has been received that six colleges have been entered for the team championship of the Intercollegiate Golf Association. They are Pennsylvania, Dartmouth, Williams, Yale, Princeton and Harvard. This tournament, which is scheduled to start at the Essex County Club, Manchester, Mass., on September 19, will for the first three days be devoted exclusively to team matches. Thereafter the individuals will have their innings.

The championship of the Westbrook Golf Club has been won by McKim Hollins. Conditions called for thirty-six holes of medal play, and the golfer in question returned rounds of 38, 39, 38, 39 for a total of 154. Harry Hollins, an elder brother of the winner, got second, with 39, 41, 40, 37—157, while Robbert C. Watson came next, with a total of 160. His rounds were 43, 40, 40, 37.

The course of the Shinnecock Hills Golf Club has been given a coating of top dressing, and after another application the fairway will be harrowed and seeded. Recent executive committee recommendations as to structural changes to the links were voted down. The plan suggested called for a partial rearrangement, which would not only have lengthened the playing distance but added variety as well.

In Cincinnati an age limit of twenty-one has been set for contestants in interclub team matches. Latterly the popular idea in most sections of the country has been to encourage the younger element. Without this encouragement the game would never see such prodigies as "Chick" Evans, Philip Carter, Joe Sylvester and others almost equally prominent.

The Woman Who Sews Deserves the Best Sewing Machine that is Made

It scarcely requires a moment's thought to realize the almost infinite superiority of the rotary motion of the Shuttle, over the vibrating motion. The former runs round and round without any stop or jar. The vibrating shuttle starts and stops twice in every stitch.

Here are the reasons why the Standard is best—why it saves time, work and worry—all proven by the most thorough test:

THE "STANDARD" ROTARY SHUTTLE SEWING MACHINE

1. Makes 175 stitches while others make 100.
2. Runs 75 per cent. lighter than old-style machines.
3. Makes less noise than any other machine.
4. Is the most rapid sewer—makes two motions of the treadle to three of other machines in sewing the same length seam.
5. Tensions not changed by change of speed, size of thread, thickness of goods or length of Stitch.
6. Has the biggest bobbin of any lock stitch machine. Holds 100 yards of No. 80 cotton.
7. Does not break thread when machine is run backward.
8. Feed motions are positive—no springs used—hence machine will feed over all thicknesses of goods and seam without "chewing" the cloth, no matter what the length of stitch.
9. Will wear twice as long as other lock-stitch machines.
10. Best set of attachments in any machine, self adjusting, and fastened to the presser bar in place of the foot.

ONLY ONE REASON for buying any other machine, viz: It may cost less at first.

THINK OF IT—with exactly the same speed of the treadle, and lighter work, you take a Hundred and Seventy-five stitches with the Standard(while any other machine is making only a hundred—and the work is done more even and true.

YOU CAN BUY THE STANDARD ROTARY ON OUR EASY PAYMENT CLUB PLAN. $5.00 CASH AND $5.00 A MONTH.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS OPEN IN CITY AND BOROUGH

The public schools of the city and borough were opened this morning. Dr. Henry M. Maxson, superintendent of the city schools, and H. C. Krebs, superintendent of the borough schools, had everything arranged and when the doors were opened at 8:30 this morning the teaching corps was well prepared for the big rush. All of the school buildings, except the new Jefferson building, in the city, were ready for use after a thorough overhauling and cleansing.

On account of the crowded conditions no official records of the attendance in the city schools could be obtained. Miss Adelaide Ball, the attendance supervisor, said this morning that all of the schools reported unusually large enrollments. In the high school the attendance has broken all records.

There was a decrease of forty-five pupils in the schools of the borough this year over last. The high school department was the only one which showed a gain, there being six more enrolled than last year. It is expected that the pupils coming back in the next few days will bring the attendance up to normal.

The enrollment in the borough schools follows: High school, 122; increase of 6. Grammar school, 335; decrease of 15. Watchung school, 223; decrease of 21; Somerset primary, 347; decrease of 15. Total, 1027. Total last year, 1072.

THE FORUM.

A WORD FOR MR. MOY.

Editor, The Daily Press:

An intelligent observer recently remarked: "If a strong horse knew his own strength he would not be enslaved;" and so, if the good citizens of Plainfield could be made to comprehend what wise and united strength of citizenship would accomplish, they would escape ring-control." Of late years the sinister influence which has sought to control Plainfield is chiefly operated a dozen miles away, but with subordinate ringsters in our midst arrogating to themselves the absurd title of "leaders." A month or so before the primaries they all go on a picnic together, take their orders from the chief boss, (to whom they look for a liberal supply of campaign funds) and write up their "slate" for the primary. Then they barefacedly publish the program as "arranged at the Republican Outing," and await its ratification. Often the general body of Republican citizens are too busy with their own private affairs to oppose these schemes and thus fall, in due course, at the mercy of the schemers. Unfit men are elected to office, the service of public officials becomes inefficient and costly, and taxes rapidly increase. This year there is opposition to these schemes, but it can be sucessful only in case honest Republican citizens wake up today and go to the primaries in support of this opposition.

The sinster influence to which reference has been made has this year, two main purposes to be served here. One is the care of its water company's interests, and the other is the re-election of the present United States Senator. If his assemblymen can be elected, they will vote and work for his election. If a city administration favorable to the water company can be secured, it will be worth a good deal to these "special interests."

Mr. G. W. V. Moy, a life-long Republican of high character, has undertaken to stand for progress and reform, and is a candidate for the mayoralty. His platform, embodied in his recent frank and manly speech, includes substantially these ideas and principles:

1. Plainfield water for Plainfield, and not for Elizabeth.
2. Municipal control of water supply.
3. Honest and good service of public lights and trolleys.
4. Opposition to constructions that are obstructions, such as high gas houses and spite-fences.
5. Opposition to extravgance and increase of taxes and to such ill-considered and costly things as the brick pavement and the Plainfield police station.
6. Reform of police service and prohibition of absence of police on junketing tours.
7. Abolition of the fee-system under ordinances.
8. Abolition of "speak-easies."
9. Abolition of the use of money in "getting out the vote."

In the manifesto of B. Frank Coriell most of these important issues are wholly ignored. As to water, he favors "municipal ownership—if." As to taxes, he apparently is unaware of any difference between a tax-rate and an amount of money required from taxation, and thinks $1.50 and $1.60 are one and the same thing. He says: "Last year our taxes were $1.68. I believe they should be reduced to about $1.50 or $1.60, and that would not be an unreasonable amount on our present valuation." If one tries to read his statement through a second time, one finds it to be more of a muddle than at first. Here is a specimen:

"Contracts entered into by the city with corporations and others I believe should be lived up to. If such had been done with the Water Company, it seems to me that the pressure of our water supply would not have run down to what it is. Our lights and trolley service would have been better."

If this means anything, it means that if the city had lived up to its contract "with the water company" the pressure would not have run down and our lights and trolley service would have been better. (!)

Let any intelligent man, or any boy in the grammar school wade through the shallowness of this entire statement if he can, and let him find anywhere in this mess of a message to the primary voters any indication that its author is a man of the type required for the office of chief executive of our city.

FIRE ENGINE RECEIVED FOR N. P. TOWNSHIP

At the meeting of the North Plainfield Township Improvement Society, held in Texier's Mills last night, the matter of a payment of three dollars each for the members of the society who claimed pay for their services on the day of the recent hill climb conducted by the Plainfield Automobile Club, was turned down by the society.

Ground for the new town hall and fire house was donated by Henry B. Guinard, who through C. C. Wheeler presented to the society the proposed site, which was accepted. A vote of thanks was given Mr. Guinard. Among other things a note of sympathy was sent to the widow and children of the late Frank deLacy Hyde. Forty-one members of the newly organized fire department have received instructions in the drills, and night alarms may be sounded from the Wilson Memorial chapel bell.

President William DeL. Anderson made a speech in which the new work in the township was highly commended. Charles P. Sebring, candidate for Sheriff in Somerset county, made a short address. Speeches were also made during the evening by Judge Holmes, of Chicago, Justice G. T. Hughes and Hugo Maul.

After refreshments were served dancing occupied the attention of the guests and friends of the society until an early hour this morning.

HAD NARROW ESCAPE IN BOARDING A CAR.

A colored man whose name could not be ascertained this morning fell from the front platform of a main line trolley car last evening at about 6:45 near the corner of Front street and Park avenue and was rescued from having his limbs cut off by Conductor Hansen, who was in charge of the car. The young man refused to give his name, and continued his trip. He carried his grip, which was heavy, and in attempting to board the car in front the weight of his suit case overbalanced him.

Conductor Hansen, seeing the man falling, grabbed him by the coat collar and held him while the car traversed about fifteen yards. Hansen then lost his grip. The passenger fell under the fender, but Motorman Gans brought the car to a stop before the wheels could pass over the prostrate man. He probably owes his life to the prompt actions of the trolley men.

THE POWER OF THE JEW

Rev. Dr. Maguire Delivers an Instructive Address on the Hebrews' Strength.

LEADERS IN ALL LANDS.

After Centuries of Persecution, Israel Has Become the Sovereign Dictator, He Declares—Gives Facts and Figures.

Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire, pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church, delivered a discourse at the morning service, Sunday, taking for his subject, "The Jew," in which he attempted to show that as a race the Hebrews exercise a greater power today than in the days of Solomon, which is in accord with the prophetic word of God.

Mr. Maguire spoke as follows:

"Among the nations of the earth none are as remarkable as Israel. McCheyne says: 'The future of humanity is centered in the Jews.' Where are all the great nations contemporaneous with Israel's earliest history? Egypt, Assyria, Babylon, (later) Greece, Rome. All lie buried under the dust of centuries, but Israel though scattered among the nations of the earth since the Maccabean reign and prosecuted and enslaved in the most cruel and oppressive manner, still preserves amidst all social, religious and political convulsions of these centuries her distinguishing peculiarities and characterstics as a people.

"The existence and history of the Jewish nation is a stupendous monument of the truth of the Bible. The seed of Abraham is God's miracle in history. Only eleven chapters in the Old Testament have no reference to the Jews. Ezekiel 37:1-14 gives us an account of Israel's revival. Israel is now reviving. After long centuries of deadness there has come a most wonderful revival. In August, 1897, for the first time since the dispersion, the Jews held a national assembly. It met at Basle in Switzerland, and was attended by more than 200 delegates from all parts of the world. It was summoned to take counsel as to means whereby Palestine might be restored to its rightful owners and Israel become once more a nation dwelling in her own land.

"It is a remarkable fact that now for the first time in 2,000 years the Jews exhibit signs of national life. Now, the Bible predicts many features of Israel which are coming to pass in this generation.

"One is the possession of wealth, Isaiah 60:9. We read that the silver and gold was to be theirs. This wealth was to be taken from the nations that oppressed them, Isaiah 33:1-24. We are beholding this transition. The money of the world is rapidly accumulating in Jewish hands. One Jewish banking house loaned in ten years thirty thousand million dollars. The Rothschilds in ten years loaned four hundred and eighty-two million dollars. Nearly one-half the gold coined in the entire world is in the hands of Jews. In the last half century these people have come to the front until now they rule in finances.

"In Germany nearly one-half of all the rich people are Jews. Six-sevenths of all bankers in Prussia are Jews. Petition circulated against them says: 'The fruits of Christian labor are harvested by Jews, capital is concentrated in Jewish hands.' The London Spectator asserts that the Jew displays a talent for accumulation with which Christians cannot compete and which tends to make them an ascendent caste.

"In Russia a few years ago 73 per cent. of the movable property in certain western provinces had passed from Russians to Jews. One-quarter of the railroad system is owned by a Jew, M. Poliakoff. Such is this man's eminence and influence that at a banquet at the University of St. Petersburg his health was proposed by the minister of education immediately after that of the rulers.

"In the Austian empire the same conditions of Jewish control are reported. In lower Austria, out of 59,122 merchants, 30,012 are Jews. The Bourse of Vienna actually lies wholly in their hands. In France Jews are but a fraction of the population, 82,000 out of thirty-eight millions, yet they hold the finances. Dumont in his book declares, 'The Jews made a veritable conquest of France and one may see in that country today a whole people toiling for another people who appropriate to themselves by a vast system of financial expropriation the benefits of other laborers.'

'An illustration of power among Jewish financiers is seen in the Dreyfus case. Notice was sent to the leaders in the Dreyfus prosecution that if Dreyfus did not get fair play all the Jewish banking houses would simultaneously begin to lower the credit of France. When Loubet took the Presidency of France, stocks began to fall. They dropped a little every day until the situation became serious. Jews declared that stocks would continue to drop until the country was ruined unless Dreyfus got justice. The very day a rehearing was ordered the drop in stocks ceased. In London, on March 1, 1899, the leading Jews of Europe met; there were about one dozen of them, but they controlled one thousand million of dollars or nearly all the ready cash in France. So we see who rules the finances of France.

"In England, since the Battle of Waterloo, Jewish bankers have controlled the financial policy. In 1816 after buying the British bonds at a depreciated value, they forced England to re sen her currency by adopting a gold basis. Since then other nations have been brought to the standard. The results have been in every case favorable to the Jew.

"In America the same accumulation is going on. The number of Jews in New York exceed 350,000, most of whom have come there within a few years. In dry goods there are 514 firms rating $58,000,000, in clothing 264 firms have a rating of $34,000,000. The rating of 2,018 firms is $207,388,000. There are thirty-five Jewish banking houses. Two-thirds of the wealth in New York is in Jewish hands.

"Regarding Jewish intellectual leadership the Word of God predicts that in the last days the Jews would rise to great power and influence in the lands where they were scattered. Zepheniah 3:19, says: 'At that time I will undo all that afflict thee and I will get them praise and fame in every land where they have been put to shame.'

"In Germany they were put to shame. In the eleventh century they were murdered. Thousands were compelled to be baptized or slain. In Germany although they are but 2 per cent. of the population they hold 104 professor's chairs in the universities of that land. Of the 3,609 students recently at Berlin University 1,302 are Jews. Nearly 10 per cent. of the judges are Jews. At the highest law court of Germany, Leipsic, there are ten Jewish judges out of the total of seventy-nine. In single towns the proportion is greater. In Breslau out of fifty-seven lawyers, thirty-one are Jews.

"In Austria out of 370 authors 225 are Jews. In every land they are holding positions of the highest influence as scholars and educators. A remarkable instance is seen in Islam. In Cairo, Egypt, is the largest theological seminary in the world. It has 300 professors and 10,000 students. At the head of this school stands a Jew, Abbasi by name.

"In Europe in the passing generation we find a remarkable proportion of Jews. On the side of Christian scholarship, Neander, Delitsch, Frank, Eidersheim, Da Costa, the names of Fuerst, Bermay's, Kalisch, Maybaum, Goldstucken, Munk Oppert, Ricardo will be recognized at once as Jewish. The most distinguished archaeologist in England, Prof. Solomon Schechter is a Jew. The most noted mathematician of the nineteenth century, Prof. J. G. Sylvester, was a Jew. Lombroso, the greatest expert on insanity, was a Jew. Says Walter Besant, poet, lawyer, painter, actor, statesman, physician, musician, there is not a branch of learning, art or science in which the Jew is not in the front rank.

"Jewish leadership is further seen in the extensive control of the press. Almost without exception the press throughout Europe is in Jewish hands and is largely produced from Jewish brains. William Singer, a Jew editor of the Wiemer Gazette, is the president of the Continental Journalistic Congress. The four papers in the United States having the largest circulation are owned by Jews.

"In music they are without a rival. The names of Strakosh, Verdi, Rossini and Rubenstein tell their own story. In England they hold twenty seats in the House of Commons. The House of Lords was opened to Jews about twenty years ago, but already there are a number of Hebrew Peers among them. Lords Rothchild, Pirbright, Wantage and others. Sir George Jessel, the first of English judges was a Jew.

"No wonder Mr. Wilde writes: 'The Jew is the sovereign dictator of every nation in Europe.' This rise of the Hebrew race to power is the marvel of the age. A century ago they were just imbecile, now they exercise a greater power than in the days of Solomon. Stationary for 1,800 years they are now becoming the masters of the world. This is in accord with the prophetic word."

NOTED BY THE WAY.

A new petticoat for fall wear is of imported moreen, very light in weight and of excellent quality. The moreen is in moire effect and the design of the skirt is novel. The upper portion fits the figure smoothly to well below the knees, being most carefully gored to insure a perfect fit for the dress proper. Well below the knees the skirt meets a sectional flounce showing clusters of tiny tucks and novel cording, the lower edge finished with a ruffle. The colors are navy blue, wistaria, Copenhagen blue and black.

Pretty and simple are the dancing frocks for girls this season. There is an absence of elaboration. At a boy and girl dance given recently the prettiest frock was worn by a girl of 18. It was of ivory jacquard mull the skirt gathered into the belt and held down below the knees with a scarf of soft silk drawn through a buckle made from small pink roses placed on the left side. The baby waist was confined with a belt exactly corresponding with the band on the skirt, and the round Dutch neck and the short sleeves were edged with tink roses. A half wreath of the flowers passed around the head from ear to ear. It was a home-made frock and owed its success to the simple lines adopted.

Lanier of the Cavalry

Or,

A Week's Arrest

By GENERAL CHARLES KING,

Author of "The Colonel's Daughter," "Foes In Ambush," Etc.

Copyright, 1909, by J. B. Lippincott Company

And the stable orderlies had sworn that Fitzroy started alone. Therefore, unless Dora Mayhew had circled the fort and joined him on the bleak eastward prairie, it was most unlikely she had gone with him, and up to 1 o'clock there was none to hint with whom or how, except afoot, she could have gone. Then, however, came revelation. The sentry stationed at the northwest face of the post admitted having seen "a rig from town" making wide circuit clear around behind the fort on the westward "bench," which was swept almost clean of snow. It had kept well out beyond hailing distance, stood a moment or two up at the edge of the bluff, then whirled about and went the way it came.

By 2 o'clock that rig had been trailed back to town. There Ennis and Field and several troopers, with one or two interested citizens, were in quest of tidings. There they were joined by Mayhew himself, who had one more hope. Dora had a friend a few years older than herself who was married to a conductor of the Union Pacific railway and living in town. It might be that Dora had gone to her.

They found the house and hammered at the door and succeeded only in waking a Chinese servant, who said, "All gone; b'long Omaha." They went to the three stables in town, and all had "rigs" out. Most of them had gone to a dance at Arena, six miles east. "What's all the row about anyhow?" demanded the night watchman of one of these establishments. "There was that cockney sergeant fellow here along about midnight, asking questions and raising hades. The town marshal had a rumpus with him and went to bed mad." The half dozen hangers-on about the railway station and the roisterers at the one open all night saloon were growing inquisitive, if not impudent. The station master had gone home, but the lone operator, to whom one after another, Field, Ennis and Mayhew, had appealed, declared that no young lady had gone on No. 6, for the reason that No. 6 hadn't gone and wouldn't go till along toward daylight. She broke down somewhere about 7 o'clock at Medicine Bow.

But Ennis and Mayhew came at him a second time, with a second question. Could he tell them anything of Mr. and Mrs. Osborn, Osborn being a conductor and Mrs. Osborn Dora's friend, of whom previous mention is made? Had they gone to Omaha? No, for Mr. Osborn was round here early in the evening and had to be here at 6 a. m. to meet and take No. 5 over the Mountain division. Then John Chinaman had lied, said Mayhew, ready to break down.

"Keep your heart, old man," said Ennis. "Go to the hotel, lie down and leave the rest to me."

And still Jim Ennis felt by no means confident he could be in time. He knew the Mayhews only slightly. He had never before been stationed at regimental headquarters, had seen and known Dora only since their coming to Fort Cushing and therefore had not learned to share Bob's honest admiration for her. She might be all Bob thought her, a loving child and a true hearted girl in spite of her infatuation for this presentable young trooper whose antecedents nobody knew.

With just two troopers at his back, toward 4 in the morning big Jim went spurring on through the dim moonlight, town and station far behind, following a meandering sleigh and wagon track across the wide, dreary upland, riding, as a rule, parallel with the railway, while such sleighs as tried the journey had evidently been making many a detour. Three miles out two "rigs" were passed, westward bound, filled with town folk who had been to Arena for the dance. Had they seen or heard aught of Mr. and Mrs. Osborn? he asked. No; they knew them well by sight and would be sure to note them had they come to the dance. Five miles out a stage was encountered, loaded with exuberant revelers who had remained after the dance for a spree and were now consumed with wrath because certain officers of the law—from their own town, too—had hustled them out.

"A hull sleighful of 'em—three or four anyhow—came over there with that cockney sergeant you fellers keep at the fort, lookin' for deserters. You after deserters? Well, here's—hic—hopin' you don't get 'em."

It was all Jim Ennis wanted to know. "Come on, men!" he cried and spurred ahead, his wondering troopers following.

"Now, what the mischief is that man Fitzroy's game?" thought Ennis. He reasoned it was after Dora that Fitzroy had gone; that in his jealous misery he had kept watch upon her, had followed to town on hearing of her flight, had followed farther, and this it was that gave Ennis the hope that she was accompanied by such worthy people as the Osborns. If that were so it could mean but one thing. It was to join Rawdon, perhaps to be joined to Rawdon. Osborn had sent two messages by wire and had received two early in the evening. Ennis had learned this through the operator, though the contents were withheld. Rawdon probably dared not come to Cushing City. There he might still be arrested on sight. Yes, Ennis had it now. Dora Mayhew had fled to Arena to meet and marry George Rawdon. Fitzroy had followed fast in hopes of blocking it.

And just as the twinkling switch lights of the little prairie station hove in sight ahead there came a sound that startled him—the whistle of a railway engine not a mile behind, No. 6 at last and coming full tilt, the very train, perhaps, that they, the young couple, hoped and meant to take and might have taken on their eastward way had not Fitzroy, keen eyed, quick witted and vengeful, been there in time to bar the move.

And then in the soldier soul of big Jim Ennis was born a strange, sudden and somewhat unprofessional spirit of opposition. Starting out in the hope of finding and restoring to her father's roof the sorrowing fugitive, Jim Ennis veered right round to the purpose of succoring a maiden in distress. If marriage was Rawdon's motive in bidding her join him, then Rawdon was honest, after all, and who was he or who was Fitzroy to stand in the way and stop it?

Five minutes later a young fellow in civilian dress was struggling in the grasp of two detectives. A terrified girl was clinging to his arm, tears streaming down her face. A clerical looking elderly stranger was expostulating. A man in the cap and dress of a railway conductor was vehemently arguing with a stocky sergeant of cavalry, who seemed master of the situation and greatly enjoying his importance. A pale faced young woman, whom the conductor of No. 6 addressed as Mrs. Osborn, was imploring his aid when, to the amazement of the sergeant, this big subaltern in boots and spurs bulged in between him and Conductor Osborn and demanded to know the nature of the trouble.

"I've run down this man at last, sir," gulped Fitzroy, flustered, but making a valiant effort at control, "as you see, sir, only in the nick of time."

"Oh, Mr. Ennis!" cried Dora, throwing herself upon him and clasping his arm. "Rawdon has done no wrong. We are married. Here are our friends to prove it. Why should they arrest him?"

"Colonel's orders, lieutenant—arrest him wherever found," said Fitz stoutly, "and I've a sl-stage here to take him back."

"On charges of your own invention, Sergeant Fitzroy," said Ennis icily, "no one of which you'll ever prove. Have you any warrant for this man?" this to the detectives. "He's no deserter. He's on furlough by order of General Crook, traveling, I take it, with his own wife, and unless you want to burn your fingers to the bone let go."

"Then, lieutenant," burst in Fitzroy, "he's a prisoner by order of Colonel Button."

STATEN ISLANDERS TO INVADE PLAINFIELD

Preparations for the Elks' baseball game, which is scheduled to take place on Thursday at Crescent Oval, have been concluded and the team from the Stapleton, Staten Island, lodge will be Plainfield's opponents. According to a despatch received this morning by Captain Marcus Hoyt, the Mosquitoville Muscats are going to bring their strongest aggregation to do battle with the locals.

At this moment it is impossible to get the line-up of the visitors, as they seem to be awaiting the announcement from 885 as to who will be the mound artist and who will officiate at the receiving end of the battery.

It is hardly necessary to state that unless Warry MacLaughlin is seriously indisposed that he will be on the firing line and that Mr. Torpey will act as the bulwark behind the rubber. However, if Mr. MacLaughlin is forced to keep away from the game, Lew Wiltse will assume the responsibilities of the job, and it's dollars to doughnuts that Plainfield wins the game.

Captain Hoyt said this morning that if MacNaughton did not try to throw the ball into Green Brook from the initial sack he would be convinced that victory would be the portion of the locals on Thursday. Besides this announcement, the captain says that all tickets purchased for the game which was to have been played two weeks ago with the Brooklyn team will be good either on Thursday or when the bretheren from the City of Churches put in an appearance, which will probably be a week from Thursday, Sept. 22.

Manager Harry Marshall is getting the whole bunch together today for practice at the Oval, and the fellows show up in great shape. Some of them have lost their glass arms and others have recovered their lost eyesight. Hence the game on Thursday will be of the kind to make straight hair curl without using an iron.

CURLY PROBABLY JUSTIFEID IN PUNISHING BOY.

In the city court this morning Luke Curley, of Willover avenue, was charged with cruelty to her grandson, Charles Schenck, by Mrs. Catharine Schenck, who resides in the same neighborhood. After hearing Mr. Curley's daughter's statement, Judge Runyon dismissed the charge of cruelty and warned the two families to keep apart.

It was alleged by Mrs. Schenck that Curley deliberately thrashed the boy because of a story told him by his daughter. The story involved pulling the child's hair and pinching her arms. The Schenck boy admitted having done this six months ago, but denied that he had done anything to the little girl since that time.

Mr. Curley told a straightforward story of the occurrences of last Saturday night. He declared that he was on his way home with his little daughter; she pointed to young Schenck, claiming that he was the one who had pulled her hair and pinched her in front of the store of L. Kerwin, on West Third street, on Tuesday last. Mr. Curley caught the boy and slapped him twice, according to his own admission, and warned the lad to never molest his daughter again. This the boy promised to remember, and the case was dismissed by City Judge William N. Runyon.

Mr. and Mrs. George W. Reighton, of Ocean Grove, returned to their home, after an extended trip during the summer through New Jersey, New York and Pennsylvania.

Dr. A. B. Crane and family of Washington, D. C., have returned to their home in the Capitol city after a visit with Dr. Crane's parents, Mr. and Mrs. U. B. Crane, of East Second street.

BOSSISM.

"There are bigger issues at stake than the indulgence in mud slinging. I will not use it, and for the benefit of those who think otherwise I want to say that there is not a man big nor rich enough in this country to buy me."—Judge Runyon, at the Republican mass meeting Saturday night, Sept. 10.

CANNONISM.

"If I am elected to Congress, I shall vote to elect as Speaker of the House the man who seems best able to harmonize the factions of the Republican party. And I say now that I do not regard Joseph G. Cannon as that man."—Judge Runyon, at the Republican mass meeting Saturday night, Sept. 10.

The Ladies' Guild of the Netherwood Reformed church will hold a cake and cream festival on Thursday afternoon and evening at the church on Leland avenue.

—Mrs. Isabella Bird, of this city, and recently of Linden has taken a position with the Grand Street Hotel, Elizabeth.

Miss Anna A. Martin, of 663 East Sixth street, has returned from a two months' trip to Niagara Falls, Toronto fair, Thousand Islands and Titusville, Pa.

RUNYON'S BIG VICTORY!

DeMeza Sweeps Every District and Easily Wins Nomination for the City Judgeship.

William G. DeMeza.

It was a veritable landslide for William G. DeMeza in the city judgeship contest at the Republican primaries. Francis J. Blatz, his closest rival, who was picked to win by many wiseacres, did not have a look in for a moment in a single district, DeMeza carrying every one of the ten by good majorities. The winner is nominated to succeed Judge William N. Runyon, who has been named by the Republicans of the Fifth, N. J., district to succeed Charles N. Fowler in Congress. DeMeza is a brother of the late George DeMeza, who was city judge some years ago.

DeMeza received 1,320 votes in the city and Blatz 607, a majority of 713. V. W. Nash, Jr., ran third, his total vote being 259, while Harry C. Runyon was a close fourth, getting 245. J. Henry Crane, endorsed by the Progressives, received a total of 212. Arthur Murphy's total was 97.

Choice for U. S. Senator.

In registering their choice for United Senator, the Republicans of New Jersey at the primaries yesterday gave Former Governor Murphy the highest vote. The vote was a light one, about one-fifth of the people casting their ballots.

He has been declared the world's champion in this respect and leaves for England next week.

SEBRING AND MOBUS RIVALS FOR SHERIFF.

No definite returns have been received as to the result of the Republican and Democratic contests at the Somerset county primaries yesterday. Moosbrugger was named for the Assembly by the Respublicans and LaMont by the Democrats.

GOVERNORS APPOINTED CHEMICAL ASSISTANTS

The regular September meeting of the Board of Governors of Muhlenberg Hospital was held at the Mayor's office Monday evening of this week, but little more than the routine business was attended to, including hearing of reports of the various committees, and the treasurer's report and the report of the executive committee with respect to the operations of the hospital during the summer months.

MISS IDA MAY LEWIS BRIDE OF MR. EDDY

Miss Ida May Lewis, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Israel Lewis, of 43 Grandview avenue, was married this afternoon at 2 o'clock to William Simonson Eddy, of New York city, by Rev. Gabriel R. Maguire at the parsonage of the Park Avenue Baptist church. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Belle Lewis. The bride wore a traveling gown of chiffon broad cloth.

Immediately after the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Eddy left for an extended honeymoon, at the conclusion of which they will reside in this city.

Miss Lewis is well known in the borough and this city, having been actively engaged in church and Sunday school work for many years. She is a sister of Mrs. Frank W. Jones, of Summit avenue. Mr. Eddy comes from an old and noted New England family and is at present engaged as an art engrosser and illuminator in New York city.

Parsonage Ready Dec. 1.

The contract for the parsonage of the new Netherwood Reformed church was awarded to Felmley brothers at a meeting of the trustees last night. The parsonage will be diagonally opposite the church, on the northwest corner of Leland and Midway avenues. Work will be started at once and will be completed by December 1.

Beginning with Sunday, the Sunday-school of the Temple Baptist church will begin at 2:45 o'clock.

William N. Runyon.

Plainfield's City Judge Wins Hotly Contested Fight for G.O.P. Congressional Nomination.

Judge William N. Runyon, of this city, defeated Representative Charles N. Fowler, of Elizabeth, at the Republican primaries in the Fifth Congressional district yesterday for the Congressional nomination. He carried both Union and Morris counties by good margins and split even in Warren county.

The Judge's total strength in the convention will be near 145 votes. His opponent will have about 67 votes. The total for the district is 212.

The Plainfield candidate received 80 of the 108 votes of Union county. He gets 55 of the 70 in Morris and 10 of the 32 in Warren.

Every district in Plainfield is swept by Runyon, giving him 21 votes. Summit goes solid for him, but in Rahway Fowler receives five of the nine votes. Fowler also wins handsomely in Westfield, where he has six of the seven votes.

Following is Runyon's vote in Union county: Elizabeth, 34; Plainfield, 21; Rahway, 4; Westfield 1; Summit, 6; Cranford, 4; Union Twp., 2; Fanwood Twp., 2; Fanwood borough, ½; Garwood, 1; Roselle Park, 2; Kenilworth, 1; New Providence Twp., ½; Springfield, 1. Total, 80.

In Morris county, Runyon made a clean sweep at Morristown. He carries Wharton and Madison and gets all but one convention vote at Boonton, which he did not expect.

STRAIN TOO GREAT.

Hundreds of Plainfield Readers Find Daily Toil a Burden.

The hustle and worry of business men,
The hard work and stooping of workmen,
The woman's household cares,
Are too great a strain on the kidneys.
Backache, headache, sideache,
Kidney troubles, follow.
A Plainfield citizen tells you how to cure them all.

A. C. Lazzi, 44 Elm place, Plainfield, N. J., says: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills off and on for five years and from my experience with them, I feel that I cannot give them too much praise. I have to do a great deal of stooping at my work and I think that my kidneys became weakened in this way. I suffered from a dull, grinding pain in my back and also had attacks of rheumatism. Another source of annoyance was irregular pasages of the kidney secretions. I finally began using Doan's Kidney Pills procured at Randolph's drug store and I was soon in good health. Since then hard work has brought on one or two slight attacks of backache but a few doses of Doan's Kidney Pills have never failed to give me instant relief."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

The result of the primary election held yesterday shows that the Republican voters are up and doing, 102 votes being cast. From the harmony shown it looks as though the township will give its usual Republican majority on election day.

A dance will be held tonight at Schott's hall near Gillette, which will be attended by a number from here. Two stage loads have planned to go over, the first leaving the trolley corner at 7:30 and the second about 8 o'clock.

Mrs. Jacob Sourmilch, of Bartle avenue, who has been dangerously ill for several days with appendicitis, was taken to Muhlenberg Hospital Monday for treatment.

Miss Anna Sullivan, one of the new members of the corps of teachers in the public school, will make her home with Miss Susie Parse, of Front street.

The weekly prayer and praise meeting of the Baptist church will be held tonight in the church parlors.

George Baldwin has returned from a visit of several days with relatives and friends at Rahway.

Mrs. Frank Ianson has returned from a visit with relatives and friends at Newark.

DEMOCRATS CONTROL MAINE LEGISLATURE

Complete returns of the vote for Senators and Representatives in the Maine State election Monday gave the Democrats substantial majorities in both branches of the Maine Legislature, which at the beginning of the new year will elect a United States Senator to succeed Eugene Hale, a Secretary of State, State Treasurer, Attorney General, and Commissioner of Agriculture.

The new legislative body also will be called upon probably to carry out the declarations of the Democratic party platforms of recent years and resubmit to the people the amendment to the constitution prohibiting the sale of liquor and to repeal the Sturgis Liquor Law Enforcement act.

According to the unofficial complete returns the Legislature will have a Democratic majority of 36 on joint ballot. The Senate will consist of 21 Democrats and 10 Republicans, while the House will have 88 Democrats and 63 Republican members. The last Legislature consisted of 122 Republicans and 60 Democrats, the Republicans having a majority of 15 in the Senate and 47 in the House.

Practically complete returns today on the vote of the State for Governor gave Col. Frederick W. Plaisted, Democrat, 73,644, and Gov. Bert M. Fernald, Republican, 64,912, a plurality for Col. Plaisted of 8,732 as against a plurality of 8,064 for William T. Cobb, Republican, elected Governor four years ago.

The total vote of the two leading parties yesterday was 138,556. Four years ago it was 130,790.

C. M. Daniels Retires.

Charles M. Daniels, the noted swimmer and record holder for the 100-yard and many other distances, has announced that he is going to retire from swimming races for good. It is reported that matrimonial cares are the cause of his retirement. Daniels has been one of the most consistant athletes in the sporting world and has reigned supreme in his events for the past seven years. His mark of 56 4-5 seconds for the 100 yard swim is liable to stand for some time.

The Boys' Batallion of the First Baptist church has resumed its weekly drills, meeting Friday night in the Sunday school room.

AMONG OUR NEIGHBORS

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

There was a large number of Dunellen pupils in attendance when the Plainfield High School opened yesterday morning for the fall term. It was the largest number that has been sent from the borough since the custom of local pupils going to the Plainfield High School was started. Principal Lindsey Best, of the school, had his hands full all day getting the students enrolled and adjusting the schedules of each. The greater part of the commercial courses at the high school. The total attendance at the school broke all previous records.

The first football team of the borough held a meeting last night at the home of Clifford Smith for the purpose of organizing and discussing plans for the coming season. It is expected that one of the best teams that has ever represented the borough will be on the gridiron this year. It looks like a gala football year for Dunellen with two speedy teams of local boys. Manager Mowen of the second team is hard at work on his schedule for that eleven and says that games with some of the speediest teams in the State and in this vicinity are pending.

Dunellen voters polled a heavy vote at the primaries yesterday. The scene at the polls from 1 until 9 p. m. was a busy one although there was very little electioneering. The fight in the borough politics this year is not a spirited one except in the nominations for United States Senator. The election officers made good time in counting the ballots.

H. Clifford Smith, the local expressman, has four contracts for moving this week. The parties that are on the schedule are J. E. Buckley, from Brooklyn to Plainfield; Morris Fleshet, Brooklyn to Dunellen; Daniel Roberts, from Plainfield to Brooklyn; and S. S. Johnson, from Dunellen to Waverly.

Walter G. Runyon, of Washington avenue, will return tonight or tomorrow from Atlantic City, where he has been spending the past week. Mr. Runyon attended the firemen's convention in that city today.

B. DeWitt Giles, of New Market, has caught the automobile fever. He has sold his horse and purchased a handsome touring car.

The Ladies' Aid Society, of the New Market First Baptist church, meets this afternoon in the lecture room of the church.

Mr. and Mrs. John M. Dayton, of New Market, have been entertaining Miss Alice Abbott, of Peekskill.

GREATEST SEWING MACHINE VALUES EVER KNOWN

The "Bee Hive" is a sewing machine with a reputation for honesty and superiority of manufacture. Thousands of homes in Newark today boast a "Bee Hive." Its friends are legion because repeated comparison has shown it to be the best machine on the market—because it runs year after year with the same pleasing ease and regularity of movement—giving the same uniform grade of work, and offering little or no trouble from breaking down parts. Making no big profits, paying no agents, you get it just as it comes from the factory, with a small percentage added for freightage, cartage, etc. We employ no collection agencies. This week a public demonstration with free instruction, on the first floor in the rear (archway between notions and dry goods). Everyone is welcome to ask all the questions they care to, experiment all they want to, and be at liberty to bring their own cloths and sew on them free of cost. So easy that a child can run them. A saving of labor and money and a machine that has satisfied thousands.

The local fans are beginning to get enthusiastic over the coming series between the Plainfield and Somerville teams. The first game comes off at Somerville Saturday afternoon. A large delegation of Plainfield rooters are planning to make the trip and furnish plenty of excitement for the local boys.

With Ward and Warry MacLaughlin pitching in great form, Doerflinger has nothing to worry about in the twirling department. Both of these box artists should prove effective against that Somerville bunch. But you never can tell.

Bruggy's home run in the Bound Brook-Dunellen game sort of took the life out of the borough ball-tossers. It was one of the longest swats that has been made on the Bound Brook grounds this year.

Baseball is again a funny proposition after all; yesterday the Pittsburg nine trounced the Giants 11-1 in the first game of a double header and then in the second contest the New Yorkers won with apparent ease swamping their opponents by the score of 15-3.

Ty Cobb is reported as recovering his sight. It is said that the lead, which Lajoie has gained in the race for the automobile, is the best cure that could be prescribed for the great batsman.

Barnes is there with his bat during this late part of the season. The Plainfield first sacker clouted out two nice safeties in that game against High Bridge. In the field he is a bit slow, especially when attempting to catch runners off the initial bag.

It doesn't look as though we would ever find out which is the better of those two merchant's teams.

FOOTBALL.

Nearly all of the big college squads have assembled for the season's work. The practicing this year will be unusually difficult on account of the new rules, and the time at present is being spent in getting accustomed to the new game.

The Plainfield High School boys are beginning to talk football already. They expect to turn out a winning team th's year and from the looks of things their expectations will become a reality.

Augustus Widowson, better known as Joe, who was a tower of strength to the P. H. S. line last year, will be back in the game again this season and he says that he is in fine fettle. His brother, who is the same size as Joe and just as good in a rough house as his big brother, is enrolled among the students at the high school and will join the candidates for the team.

There is the usual bunch of good gridiron material at the North Plainfield High School and indications point to a must successful season. Principal Phelps, the ex-Yale player, will coach the eleven again this year.

GOLF.

According to the official program for the women's National golf championship, to be held October 10 to 15 at the Homewood Country Club, Flossmore, Ill., similar conditions to those of a year ago will prevail. The competition is open to all women amateur golfers belonging to clubs which are members of the United States Golf Association, and to those foreigners visiting this country who may be invited by the Executive Committee of the association. In this tournament the Robert Cox trophy and four medals will be played for.

On Monday, October 10, the women will compete in an eighteen-hole medal play testing round, and the thirty-two making the best scores will qualify. Thereafter one match round will be run off each day. In the levent of a tie for last place in the qualifying round, the contestants so tied shall continue to play until one or the other shall have gained a lead by a stroke at any hole or holes to be played out. Competitors shall enter for the championship through the secretaries of their respective clubs. An entrance fee of $5 must acompany each entry, and must be received by the secretary of the association not later than 6 p. m. on Monday, October 3.

Beginning on the second day of the tournament side events will be held each afternoon. On Tuesday there will be a consolation medal-play handicap for the non-qualifiers, while on the following day the women will have a chance to compete in a handicap versus bogie. Driving, approaching, and putting contests are carded for Thursday, best-ball foursomes on Friday, and mixed foursomes on the last day.

FELL FROM A TROLLEY; BROKE ONE OF HIS RIBS

William Gildes, aged about 35 years, a carpenter employed at the new Jefferson school on Dunellen avenue, alighted from a main line trolley car at West Front street and Mariners place, before it stopped, about 12 o'clock yesterday, and received severe injuries, including a scalp wound, a broken rib on the right side, and his face and knees were scraped and bruised.

The ambulance and police patrol were summoned, but the ambulance reached the scene first and the man was removed to his home, 110 Watchung avenue, where Dr. C. A. Gesswein attended his injuries. The physician does not believe there are any internal injuries, although Mr. Gildes complains about severe pains about the abdomen.

Miss Marie Schenck, of Newark, has returned home after a visit with friends here.

Mr. and Mrs. N. Mansfield Smith, of the West End, have returned from a visit with relatives at Phillipsburg.

Mr. and Mrs. William Myers, Miss Ella Martine and D. W. Martine, of Watchung avenue, who have been spending the summer at Pemaquoid Point, Maine, will return home next week.

William Vincent Rafferty, of Sandford avenue, has returned from a sojourn at Asbury Park. Mr. Rafferty will leave in a few days for Washington, D. C., where he will enter his sophomore year in Georgetown University.

A teacher in a lower grade was instructing her pupils in the use of the hyphen. Among the examples given by the children was the word "bird-cage."

"That's right," encouragingly remarked the teacher. "Now, Paul, tell me why we put a hyphen in 'bird-cage.'"

"It's for the bird to sit on," was the startling rejoinder of the youngster.

Little Howard came in the other day, crying and rubbing several bumps caused by a series of "butts" administered by a pet sheep.

"Well, Howard," said his sympathetic auntie, "what did you do when the sheep knocked you down?"

"I didn't do anything. I was getting up all the time."

"Mamma, mamma," called little four-year-old Clara one cold morning, "please go out and see how cold it is by the degreeser." She meant the thermometer.

The Woman Who Sews Deserves the Best Sewing Machine that is Made

It scarcely requires a moment's thought to realize the almost infinite superiority of the rotary motion of the Shuttle, over the vibrating motion. The former runs round and round without any stop or jar. The vibrating shuttle starts and stops twice in every stitch.

Here are the reasons why the Standard is best—why it saves time, work and worry—all proven by the most thorough test:

THE "STANDARD" ROTARY SHUTTLE SEWING MACHINE

1. Makes 175 stitches while others make 100.
2. Runs 75 per cent. lighter than old-style machines.
3. Makes less noise than any other machine.
4. Is the most rapid sewer—makes two motions of the treadle to three of other machines in sewing the same length seam.
5. Tensions not changed by change of speed, size of thread, thickness of goods or length of Stitch.
6. Has the biggest bobbin of any lock stitch machine. Holds 100 yards of No. 80 cotton.
7. Does not break thread when machine is run backward.
8. Feed motions are positive—no springs used—hence machine will feed over all thicknesses of goods and seam without "chewing" the cloth, no matter what the length of stitch.
9. Will wear twice as long as other lock-stitch machines.
10. Best set of attachments in any machine, self adjusting, and fastened to the presser bar in place of the foot.

ONLY ONE REASON for buying any other machine, viz: It may cost less at first.

THINK OF IT—with exactly the same speed of the treadle, and lighter work, you take a Hundred and Seventy-five stitches with the Standard while any other machine is making only a hundred—and the work is done more even and true.

YOU CAN BUY THE STANDARD ROTARY ON OUR EASY PAYMENT CLUB PLAN. $5.00 CASH AND $5.00 A MONTH.

Charles P. Sebring and Frank Mobus, the Republican and Democratic candidates for the shrievalty nomination, respectively, were given large majorities in North Plainfield at the primaries yesterday. Both candidates carried every district by a big margin. There was a large Democratic vote cast during the day, being greater in proportion to the number of voters than the Republican poll.

North Plainfield gave Sebring 245, Kay 27, and Fitzga 7 votes. Mobus won in the borough with 217 votes against 13 for his opponent, Charles S. Hamilton.

'UNCLE DAN' HAPPY

"I am mightily pleased," said State Treasurer Daniel S. Voorhees, leader of the Regulars in Morris county, when asked for his opinion of the result of the Republican primaries. "The result bears out my statement made long ago as to the situation. Judge Runyon carried Morristown by an overwhelming majority and he has won in Madison and Wharton. He received all but one delegate in Dover, and he got one delegate in Boonton which we did not expect."

RUNNERS, TROTTERS AND PACERS AT FAIR

Best Runners In the East Will Battle For Purses Monday—Harness Racing Balance of Week.

Racing at the Trenton fair this year will mean more than it ever has meant in the years that have passed, because runners and steeplechasers are to be added to the program.

The regular speed program of Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday will not only be maintained, but it has been elaborated on in such a manner that even old fair patrons will be forced to say: "This is real racing. I did not think it was possible for a fair to do things this way."

However, Secretary Margerum has gone the limit this fall and given instructions to Race Secretary Horace P. Murphy to arrange a full afternoon's sport of running events for Monday. Racing on the big tracks around New York ended Sept. 1, which makes it possible for Mr. Murphy to bring to Trenton some of the best runners in the east. Trenton is the first fair to take up the running game in regulation style.

There has been running at fairs ever since fairs were first held, but that is not the sort of running to be seen at the Trenton fair. This will be the real thing, precisely the same as conducted on all regular running tracks and under the direction of men who have directed running races on the greatest tracks in the United States and Canada.

E. C. Smith, racing secretary at Sheepshead Bay, will be the clerk of the scales, and one of the best starters in the country has been engaged to look after that important task. There will be five dashes and a steeplechase event.

In the old days of racing at Monmouth park and other New Jersey tracks the entire country turned its attention to Jersey running races, and the sort of races that were the order of the day at that time will again be seen in connection with the fair this year. It is an innovation that will certainly be appreciated, as it will furnish some of the fastest and most exciting sport imaginable.

The barrier will be used and all of the other track necessaries to be found on the country's most up to date tracks.

The entries will close at the track Saturday, Sept. 24, and the first race will be called Monday afternoon at 2:30 sharp.

Last year it was admitted generally all over the east that Trenton had the classiest race meet of the year on a half mile track. This was due to the efforts of Race Secretary Murphy, who secured a wonderful field of horses to participate in the many classes. The track was made over and was found to be faster than in former years, and all of the conditions were more favorable to the horsemen, who are all coming back again this year.

Secretary Murphy says that he has been favored with greater success this year in the way of getting real topnotchers to enter. He says his list contains the names of the cream of horses that have been making half mile track history this season, and, in addition to this, he has a hundred or more horses, some of them unknown and others just coming into prominence. Every race will be filled to the limit, and if it is possible to get better sport than was witnessed last season the horses this year should provide it.

Fourteen races make up the four days' program, with Wednesday and Thursday the big days, as usual. The fastest classes are the 2:12 pace and the 2:14 trot.

Horsemen will find great improvement in the new stables recently built and also in other conditions pertaining to the races.

The new grand stand, a marvel of comfort and convenience, will afford a perfect view of the races from each seat.

A new judges' stand has been built to take the place of the old one, which was destroyed by fire. The new stand is intended to give comfort to the judges and to permit an unobstructed view of the race course from every part of the grand stand, clubhouse, paddock and pavilion. The stand is of steel construction, and when the judges are in their places they will be about six feet above the ground. Over the heads of the judges will be a portable roof which can be put up or taken down, as desired.

So with a fast track, a field of more than 200 entries, a program that could not be improved upon, Trenton stands in line to have a light harness meet that will be talked of for years to come.

It will be of interest to horsemen to know that the entrance fee for the trotting and pacing races has been fixed at 2½ per cent instead of the 5 per cent that prevails generally all over the country. The classes and purses follow:

TUESDAY.

2:27 class trotting	$500
2:22 class pacing	500
2:19 class trotting	600

Little, But Oh My!

How important! There are plenty of low-priced Typewriter oils, but they are really dear at any price. Like Col. Sellers' Eye Water, the more you use the more you have to use. The carriage sticks—the wheels won't go round, the operator gets cross and work is delayed. Don't flood your machine with oil, only a very little is needed—but it must be the right kind. The LENOX kind absolutely will not gum, will make your machine run smooth and keep your temper unruffled—try it and be convinced—Price 20 cents a bottle, sent by mail anywhere upon receipt of price.

The Brahman Funeral Pyre.

After the body of a Brahman has been anointed with sesamum oil the two toes are bound together and the two thumbs. It is then lashed to a litter made of two long parallel poles, to which are fastened seven transverse pieces of wood. The shroud is very simple, a large piece of cloth wrapped round the body and bound with ropes of straw. If the dead Brahman leaves a will his face is not covered; otherwise the shroud is brought up over the head. The burning ground, or ghat, is usually near a river, that those who have taken part in the ceremonies may purify themselves as quickly and as easily as possible. Before erecting the funeral pyre a shallow pit is dug and partially filled with dry wood; the body is covered with splinters of dry wood and sprinkled with panchagaria, an inflammable liquid, and placed on the pyre and covered with branches and roots, like a hut. The nearest relative or heir then takes a lighted taper and sets fire to the four corners of the pile and leaves at once to perform the ceremony of purification. The carriers, being of the lowest caste, remain until the body is entirely consumed.

Love, Honor and Obey.

The controversy about including the word "obey" in the marriage vow is probably as old as the marriage ceremony itself. When Marion Harland's parents were married in 1825 (as she tells us in her autobiography) the bride had "laughingly threatened that she would not promise to 'obey' and that a scene would follow the use of the obnoxious word in the marriage service. The young divine, with this in mind or in a fit of absentmindedness or of stage fright, actually blundered out, 'Love, honor—and obey in all things consistent!'" The costumes worn on this occasion were hardly as modern as the unfortunate amendment. "The bride wore a soft sheer india muslin, a veil falling to the hem of the gown and white brocade slippers embroidered with faint blue flowers. The bridegroom's suit was of fine blue cloth with real silver buttons. His feet were clad in white stockings and low shoes with wrought silver buckles."

The Vampire Bat.

The true vampire bat is a quite insignificant creature, not unlike our noctule bat in general appearance and size, but with a small "nose leaf" and no web between the hind legs. The really remarkable thing about it is its perfect adaptation for secret and painless bloodletting. Most bats have teeth very like those of the carnivorr, with long canines and small incisors, but in the true bloodsucking vampire bat the incisors are very large and broad and exceedingly sharp edged, thus being able to inflict a shaving surface cut which causes no pain, but a great deal of bleeding. Indeed, not only does the sleeper very rarely wake under the winged bloodletter's attentions, but a bite may be inflicted unfelt on a person who is awake at the time.—London Graphic.

Rossetti Liked Odd Words.

Dante Rossetti, like Signor d'Annunzio, took infinite pains to extend his vocabulary, says the London Chronicle. W. M. Rossetti relates that his brother used to hunt "through all manner of old romaunts to pitch upon stunning words for poetry" and make lists of them. The words thus noted were of a miscellaneous character, such as euphrasy, fat kidneyed, fat witted, fleshquake, foolhappy, gorbellish, grogram, lass lorn, lustral, primerole, recreandise, angelot, cherishance, trifulcate, laureole, novelries, flexuous, cumberworld and jobbernowl." Some of these explain themselves, but how many people could say offhand what "gorbellish" means? It does not figure in the English Historical Dictionary. And yet a good mouth filling epithet surely deserves to live.

Completing the Circuit.

Uncompromising integrity voiced with irony was a marked characteristic of the Duke of Wellington. When he was in India after the British victory at Assaye the envoy of the nizam offered £70,000 for some information as to the districts to be assigned to his master. General Wellesley, as the duke then was, listened to the proposal with great gravity and when the Indian had ceased to speak said to him, "Can you keep a secret?"

"Certainly, sahib," said the envoy eagerly.

The general made a low bow. "And so can I," he said dryly.

A Way Out.

"She insists that her paternal ancestor came over on the Mayflower."

"But I thought they proved to her that there was no such name on the Mayflower register?"

"They did. And now she says he was a stowaway."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The Story Needed Confirmation.

"Georgie, did you know that I was going to marry your sister?"

"Well, I heard her say so, but she's had that idea about so many other fellows that I didn't feel sure about it till you told me."—Brooklyn Life.

Poor Product.

"I'm a self made man, I am."

"Well, there is one thing you needn't worry about."

"What is that?"

"Taking out a patent."

The Heaviest Meal.

"When do you take the heaviest meal of the day?" asked a bachelor of a married man.

"When my wife cooks it," came the reply.

Lanier of the Cavalry

Or,

A Week's Arrest

By GENERAL CHARLES KING,

Author of "The Colonel's Daughter," "Foes In Ambush," Etc.

Copyright, 1909, by J. B. Lippincott Company

"Then as senior officer on the spot I'll take charge of him; also, Sergeant

"I LOST THE CHANCE TO KISS THE BRIDE."

Fitzroy, of you and the sleigh you feloniously made way with. Stand aside, sir. Now, gentlemen, go on with your train.

"I did my best to be in time for the ceremony, Mrs. Rawdon," continued Ennis, gallant and impressive, as he swung her suddenly aboard, "but with my usual luck I lost the chance to kiss the bride."

For answer she quickly turned, flung her arms about his neck, and her warm lips swept his cheek. "One for you, Mr. Ennis," she cried, and then again, "and this for Mr. Lanier!"

Friday again and late in the day and Bob Lanier's arrest lacked but a few hours of its first full week, and Bob was in bandages and bed in a sunny room of the hospital. Paymaster Scott was up and about and in his independent way had been saying unrelishable things to Button, who was in a most peppery frame of mind. A wire had come from department headquarters to say an inspector would follow. "Instead of ordering a general court to try Lieutenant Lanier they have ordered a colonel out to try me, by gad," said Button, "for that's just what it all amounts to."

And of all colonels to investigate matters at Cushing there wasn't one in the army Button would not rather have had than the very one who was coming—bluff, blunt, rasping old Riggs, best known to fame and Fort Cushing as "Black Bill"—"Bill Riggs to come and overhaul my regiment when it's notorious he never could command even a two company camp without having everybody by the ears? Such men aren't fit to be inspectors!"

Indeed, there was much to warrant poor Button's disgust. He had preferred most serious charges against Lanier. He had accused him of quitting camp on campaign, quitting his guard in garrison, quitting his quarters when in arrest, failing to quit himself of a money obligation, drinking and consorting with enlisted men, and in his letter of transmittal he had intimated that there were other misdeeds he might yet have to uncover, all, said Button, on the information of veteran officers and sergeants of the regiment, notably Captains Curbit and Snaffle, Lieutenants Crane and Trotter, Sergeants Whaling and Fitzroy, and now here were both medical officers, both of his majors, two of his best captains, seven of his subalterns and nine-tenths of the women folk at Fort Cushing taking sides with Lanier and issue with him—their colonel and commander! And here, too, were Lieutenant and Mrs. Foster, highly connected, influential, wealthy, insisting that his most active and important witness, the unimpeachable Sergeant Fitzroy, had corrupted their coachman, run off with their sleigh and ruined (this was Mrs. Foster) their horses.

And the story Snaffle told Button before Foster could reach him was to the effect that Foster ought to be ashamed of himself for abusing Fitzroy for taking the sleigh in hopes of having a warm nest to fetch the poor girl home in as soon as he'd found her. "Sure, did Mr. Ennis expect her to ride back on his cantle on so bitter a night? Faith, Fitzroy was worth the whole pack of 'em put together if they'd only let him alone."

And that, at 9 o'clock, when Ennis was sent for, was the colonel's way of looking at it. Moreover, he had a rasp up his sleeve for our massive young friend on half a dozen other counts.

"In point of fact, Mr. Ennis, that girl has simply fooled the whole party and is probably laughing at all of you. A girl that will run away without a word or line to her father and marry an out and out adventurer, a mere nobody, has neither heart nor head anyhow. And now you've interfered in a matter of discipline just as Mr. Lanier did, and I gave you credit for better sense. You know I had ordered that fellow's arrest."

And so all Fort Cushing seemed in turmoil and trouble as the sun of the 23d went out and "Black Bill" came in, yet that sun must have been potent, for Mrs. Stannard's face as homeward she sped after a long talk with Mrs. Osborn was radiant with sunshiny smiles. "You're not to know anything yet, Luce, at least until you get it from Dr. Mayhew, for you never could keep it, and for a week at least it's got to be kept."

"Well, one thing you can tell," said the major—"that is, if you know—and put a stop to an awful amount of censure that poor girl's getting. Why did she leave no word for her father?"

"Because she expected to be home in two hours." And the reader can judge just how full and satisfactory must that answer have been.

Now, whatever Mrs. Osborn had told that so cheered Mrs. Stannard, it is certain the latter could not contain herself long and that even as the major was summoned toward 9 of the evening to join the solemn conclave at the colonel's (where by this time Button had opened proceedings by giving "Black Bill" the best dinner a frontier larder and cellar afforded) she bustled over to the Sumters', was delightedly welcomed by her friend and neighbor, whose husband, too, had been called to council, and presently these two sages were in confidential chat.

To them presently entered the captain, electric, bristling. He wanted the bundle of latest newspapers. They had not half read them, and Colonel Button was all eagerness to see some articles concerning the campaign about which Riggs had been twitting him, asking him whom he had subsidized at this late hour to rescue his reputation, etc. Riggs had seen three long, well written letters in the great New York Morning Mail, obviously the work of a correspondent on the spot, an eyewitness to the scenes he had described, and these letters refuted the calumnies recently heaped on Button and his comrades—gave him, in fact, high praise for soldiership, bravery, energy, even though the writer owned himself by no means one of the colonel's circle, if, indeed, one of his personal friends and admirers. Only the Sumters at Cushing subscribed for the Morning Mail. Riggs had seen the paper at Omaha. It took a search of some minutes before even the first was found. Then Sumter's eyes danced as he read, and Mrs. Sumter exclaimed over another, and for the first time in a week sounds of cheer arose in that little home. Presently Mrs. Stannard read aloud a spirited, stirring paragraph, describing a dash led by Lieutenant Lanier, and then Sumter made a swoop for all three pages and said, "The quicker Button can see these the sooner he'll come to his senses," and, begging pardon for his rudeness, took the papers and his leave and almost collided with Kate.

It must have been nearly an hour later when Sumter came hurriedly in, threw his furs off in the hall and, with troubled face, re-entered the parlor. His wife rose instantly, laid her head upon his arm and asked, "What has happened?"

"A scene the like of which I never thought to bear of in this regiment. We had adjourned to the office. Snaffle had been drinking a bit and got angered and blustered when Riggs cross examined him. One thing led to another, and finally in exasperation he blurted out: 'I'm sick of being called the accuser of Mr. Lanier. Why, I've defended him! I've hidden worse things than ever I told you yet, and now I'll stand it no longer! You twit me with spying and slandering. Then by all that's holy you shall say here and now who's the better man!' 'Twas Lieutenant Lanier himself that leaped from the window this night a week ago—the back upper window of Sumter's quarters. That's how his hand was cut and torn, and I've got three men that'll swear to it.'"

He broke off suddenly, for Kate had turned and flung herself from the room and into the arms of Mrs. Stannard.

"Oh, father, father—it was—it was what I heard—when she screamed—and fell!"

"What did you hear?"

"The other voice—his voice. It said plainly: 'Miriam, hush! Don't you know me?'"

CHAPTER VII.

"BOB," said Mr. Ennis, sauntering in to his comrade's bed side the following morning, "I'm instructed to pay you a kiss." Lanier's bandaged head spun on the pillow. He had but one girl in his mind.

"Wh-who?" he demanded.

Ennis threw his head back and laughed. "Nine times out of ten when a fellow is asked, 'Will you take it now or wait till you get it?' he's wise to take it now. If I'm any judge I should say you'd better wait till you can get it, which may be in less than a week."

"Ennis, if you can quit being an ass long enough to tell me what you mean and where you've been I'll thank you. If you can't I wish you'd get out. Ugashe!" concluded Bob, with a dose into Apache and the pillow.

"Well, it probably isn't just the kiss you were thinking of no more was I when I got it—but, Robert, my son and fellow soldier, it's my recorded conviction that the most enviable member of the regiment this day of our Lord is your twin trooper friend Rawdon. I saw him off on his wedding tour, and he didn't have on your clothes."

Lanier's head popped up in an instant, the one visible eye all eager interest. "Where were they married? When did they get off? Was Lowndes there?" were the questions that flew from his lips.

"Arena. On No. 6. Don't know," was the categorical answer. "Rawdon brought the parson out from Omaha, and the Osborns gave her away. Of Lowndes I've seen nothing since the night you staked him at Laramie, and what I've heard of him you refused to listen to. Of that callow specimen of the effete and ultra refined Back Bay district you've long since had my opinion. He's too good and gentle for this western world of ours, Bob, and he and his shuddering kinsfolk suffer too much by contamination"—

"Oh, shut up, dad! His people did wire him that his mother was desperately ill. They merely wanted to get him away from the campaign. He'd been gambling, the pesky little fool, with some of the Rawhide crowd, was all out of cash and dared not tell his guardian. That's all there was to it. Soon's he gets his money he'll square up—thought perhaps he had, since Rawdon had enough to marry on. Lowndes owed him ten times what he owed me, I reckon."

Mr. and Mrs. John M. Humes, of Westerly, R. I., are the guests of the latter's sister, Mrs. T. B. Cardner, of Orange place. Mr. Humes was chief of the volunteer fire department at Westerly until its disbandment several years ago. He is now chief of the fire police of Westerly.

PROBLEM TO FIND SEATS FOR 2,835 CITY PUPILS

The matter of seating pupils in the city schools is going to be a problem according to Superintendent Henry M. Maxson. The increase in enrollment in the schools was greater than anticipated, and it is expected that when the new Jefferson School is opened the total enrollment in the city schools will be over 3,000. The contractors have as yet not completed the new school but it will be opened next Monday. It is expected that 200 pupils will attend.

The enrollment of the city schools today is 2,835, and is diivded as follows: High Shcool, 408; Stillman, 380; Whittier, 167; Franklin, 433; Washington, 391; Bryant, 404; Lincoln, 301, and Irving, 351. The division in the high school among the classes is as follows: Seniors, 63; juniors, 63; sophomores, 87; and freshmen, 95.

The enrollment in the High School is 56 more than on the opening day last year. The freshmen class at present shows nearly 60 larger than last year and the secnior class, ten larger; but these figures are subject to change as the pupils get more closely graded. The Stillman, Franklin, Bryant and Lincoln schools are each a little larger than last year. In the other schools it is not possible to make comparisons since there have been readjustments and transfer of classes to relieve crowding so that conditions are now different from what they were last year at this time.

To Hold Festival.

A peach and ice cream festival will be held in the Grace M. E. church Friday evening. It will be given under the auspices of the Official Board of the church. Raymond Miller, W. J. Conroy, J. Russell Harden compose the committee in charge of the affair.

SUSPECTED WATCH THIEVES ARE CAUGHT IN THIS CITY.

Promiscuous display of numerous gold and silver watches resulted in the arrest of Isaac Frank and Isaac Jackson, of Bayway, near the trolley waiting room last night. The men were showing the watches in an endeavor to sell them when Sergeant Flynn happened along. He questioned the men as to where they got the watches. They explained that they had bought them; but their appearance so belied this possibility that Captain Frederickson was called and both of the men were arrested on suspicion.

Pending an investigation, they will be held at police headquarters. Two of the watches were gold and five were silver.

MT. ST. MARY'S OPENS SEMINARY TODAY.

The seminary course in Mt. St. Mary's college opened with the preliminary exercise this morning. An unprecedented number of pupils have matriculated and a statement of the total enrollment will be printed within a few days.

The college has become strongly entrenched in the favor of female institutions and it is believed that the present season will surpass any female collegiate enterprise of its class in the State of New Jersey. Many of the graduates from this institution have earned eviable places in the literary and musical society of the city of Plainfield.

5TH DIST. REPUBLICAN CONVENTION TOMORROW

Representative Fowler, Defeated Candidate, to Address Delegates.

It was reported today that Chas. N. Fowler, of Elizabeth, who was defeated by Judge William N. Runyon, at the Republican primaries on Tuesday, will make a speech at the Republican Congressional convention to be held here tomorrow. What the purpose of his addressing the delegates is no one appears to be in a position to state, but it is expected and hoped that he will declare himself for the nominee and will turn in and work for his election.

The convention will be held at the New Plainfield theatre and will be called to order promptly at noon by Former Mayor Alexander Gilbert, of this city, chairman of the Congressional committee. He is an able presiding officer and a good speaker and his address will be listened to with much interest. After the selection of a temporary chairman and appointment of committees on rules, resolutions and permanent organization, adjournment will be taken until 2 o'clock in the afternoon. The Morris county delegates will be entertained at dinner at the Hotel Kensington and the Union county delegates at the Hotel Windham. The Warren delegates will dine at Timbo's restaurant.

The temporary chairman, whose election will be made permanent, will be a Morris county man, to be chosen by the committee on organization. There is uncertainty as to who will place Mr. Fowler's name before the convention. Judge Runyon's name will be placed before the convention by one from his own ward, Robert H. McCready. Mr. McCready is an excellent stump speaker. The climax to the convention will be Judge Runyon's speech of acceptance.

The Congressional convention headquarters will be the Frost building, George H. Frost having kindly offered the use of the second and third floors of his building on Park avenue and North for the purpose. Each delegation will have a room by itself.

The committee on arrangements for the convention consists of John H. Cose, Howard Tracy and Arthur Lovell. Mayor Charles J. Fisk is giving much of his time assisting the committee in its work. A band from Elizabeth has been engaged to enliven the convention.

SURPRISE PARTY FOR MISS EMMA ROANTREE.

Miss Emma Roantree, of the borough, whose marriage to John Wearren, formerly of this city, will take place at St. Joseph's church, Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock, was given a surprise party last night. The affair was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Flynn on Rock avenue, where a large number of friends of Miss Roantree gathered.

Miss Roantree has been employed as stenographer for the law firm of John H. VanWinkle & Son in the Babcock building. Mr. Wearren was formerly in the United States Navy, and he made the trip around the world with the American fleet. Since leaving the navy he has located in business on Staten Island, and the couple will reside there after their marriage on Monday.

Will Be a Hostess.

Miss Clara Barton Smith, daughter of Captain and Mrs. W. C. Smith, of Grandview avenue, will be the hostess for Maine and Vermont at the national encampment of the G. A. R., at Atlantic City, next week. Captain Smith is a member of the general reception committee. Miss Smith was recently elected a member of the Women's Relief Corps and is said to be the youngest member.

Spent Summer in Nova Scotia.

Mrs. Mary McNeill Hopcraft, who has been spending the summer in Nova Scotia, has returned to this city and re-opened her studio in the Babcock building for voice culture and the speaking voice. Mrs. Hopcraft had a delightful summer in Nova Scotia and while there she was soloist at the Grand Pre church, and her singing attracted much favorable comment.

Somerset G. O. P. Outing.

500 Somerset county Republicans attended the outing yesterday at Witzel's Grove, on Long Island Sound. A shore dinner and clam bake were served at the grove.

Trinity Commandery, No. 17, K. T., will hold a regular conclave Monday night.

MISS LOUISE HEIDLOFF NOW MRS. FITZ RANDOLPH

Miss Louise Marie Heideloff, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Heideloff, of West Front street, and Robert Fitz Randolph, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Fitz Randolph, of New Market, were married at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon by Rev. George H. Gardner, pastor of the New Market Baptist church. The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride's parents on West Front street. The couple were married under a large wedding bell, arranged in one corner of the parlor, around which there was a bank of ferns, palms and flowers.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. Her sister, Miss Emma Heideloff was the bridesmaid and Fred Fitz Randolph, the groom's brother, was the best man. The wedding march was played by Miss Ethel Morris. The bride was gowned in white landsdown, trimmed with white satin and she carried a bouquet of white bride roses.

Congratulations were extended to the bride and groom, after which supper was served by D. Demolli & Co., the caterers.

Mrs. Randolph was the recipient of a large collection of gifts, including $70 in gold from the groom's father. Mr. Randolph is a mechanician in the employ of Brokaw Brothers, and the firm gave the bride a handsome oak book-case, while the groom's fellow employes gave a complete set of table linen. After an extended wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Randolph will be "at home" after October 1, at 560 West Front street, the house being completely furnished and ready for their occupancy.

SEBRING NAMED FOR SHRIEVALTY AFTER ALL

Friends of Charles Parkhurst Sebring, of North Plainfield, are congratulating him today that the report current that he had been defeated by Robert Kay for the Republican shrievalty nomination in Somerset county was groundless. The figures obtainable early this morning gave Kay a majority of four votes, but later returns showed that Sebring had pulled through with about fifteen majority. Millstone is the only district missing, but it was announced at the Somerset county clerk's office that no matter what the result was there, Sebring was nominated.

Frank Mobus, of North Plainfield, is the Democratic nominee for the shrievalty as stated yesterday.

WANDERING WOMAN CLAIMS THREE DIFFERENT NAMES.

A supposedly Danish woman, who has been wandering about Warren township for several days, is being cared for at the home of Edward Cooper, where she made her appearance last night. She says her name is Mrs. Berglind. She also has given the names of Mrs. McIntosh and Mrs. Carlson, and claims to have resided in Chatham.

It is believed that the woman wandered away from her home and took a Lackawanna train from Chatham, alighting at Millington, from where she walked to Mr. Cooper's home in Warrenville, where she arrived in an exhausted condition. She appeared to be bewildered and could give no account of her reason for being in Warrenville. She declares that she is seventy-six years old.

Announce Engagement.

Captain and Mrs. William C. Smith, of Grandview avenue, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Mary Tomlinson Smith, to Thomas Raymond Randolph, son of Thomas Randolph, of Central avenue. The wedding will take place in the near future.

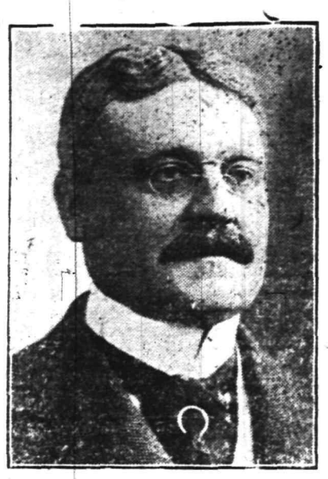
IRA WOOD RENOMINATED

Unanimous Choice of Fourth District Republican Convention Today.

HIS SPLENDID RECORD.

The Trenton Man Has Well Represented His District at the Lower House at Washington.

Ira W. Wood, who has long served the Fourth Congressional District, and the State, with distinguished ability, was renominated for congress today at the Republican convention in Flemington. The district includes Somerset, Mercer and Hunterdon counties.



Ira G. Wood.

Congressman Ira W. Wood's six years' service in congress has been of great benefit to his district. About fifty rural delivery routes have been established during that time, and the three counties that make up the district are now practically covered by rural service.

Through Mr. Wood's efforts every river and harbor bill that has been passed during his term of service has contained some provision for the improvement of the Delaware river. The first river and harbor bill passed after his election provided for a survey, and the next bill made an appropriation of $50,000 for the removal of Perriwig bar.

Congressman Wood secured in subsequent river and harbor bills two surveys for the deepening of the channel from Philadelphia to Lalor street, Trenton, and from Lalor street to the upper railroad bridge.

The river and harbor bill of last spring provided a cash appropriation for the improvement of that part of the river between Philadelphia and Lalor street of $100,000, and authorized the secretary of war to make contracts to an additional amount of $160,000.

Congressman Wood secured an appropriation of $125,000 for the present improvement of the Trenton post office building, which is now being completed. This amount was subsequently increased $50,000 by Senator Briggs.

An appropriation of $30,000 for the battle monument at Princeton, which is soon to be erected, was obtained through the efforts of Congressman Wood.

Congressman Wood has kept in close touch with all parts of his district through his custom of making periodical visits to the principal towns in each county, affording his constituents easy opportunity of consulting him on congressional matters.

He has secured the passage of a great many private pension bills for exceptional cases, and has expedited the adjucation of hundreds of other cases in the pension bureau.

Vets to Attend Encampment.

A large delegation of members of Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., will go to Atlantic City on Monday to attend the National G. A. R. Encampment, which will be in session there for a week. Past Department Commander William C. Smith, of this city, has been appointed a member of the general reception committee during the week of the encampment. The local veterans will take part in the big parade to be held on Wednesday, September 21.

Proctor's New Show.

H. L. Griffith & Co., will present a sketch, "Bobby's Pal," at Proctor's theatre today. There are four people in the sketch. The Belfort Trio, expert acrobats; Neary, Bliss & Ross, singers and dancers, and the Hillyers in an original manikin act will complete the bill.

—For tomorrow's trade Neuman Bros. will have 150 baskets of fancy white and yellow peaches for canning. This will be exceptionally fine fruit.

HENRY SERAY MAXSON WEDS MISS WALTERS

Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Florence Nightingale Walters, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sydney Belmont Walters, and Henry Seray Maxson, formerly of Plainfield, but now of Freeport, L. I. The wedding took place on Thursday, September 8, at the home of the bride's parents, Freeport, and was witnessed by a large number of relatives and friends. Rev. Mr. Soule, pastor of the Somerville Baptist church, and an intimate friend of the couple, performed the ceremony.

The bride was gowned in a lace robe over white satin, and wore a tulle veil and orange blossoms and carried a shower bouquet of bride roses and lillies of the valley. Miss Grace Walters, cousin of the bride, was bridesmaid and Leona Walters, four years old, niece of the bride was flower girl.

The groom, the son of Mrs. Amanda Maxson, of this city, is a practicing attorney of Hempstead, L. I., and Brooklyn, being a member of the firm of Maxson & Jones. He is secretary of the South Shore Yacht Club, of Freeport, and the club presented the bride with a handsome silver punch bowl. She also received two large chests of silver.

The couple left on a wedding tour which will include the White Mountains and Maine, and upon their return will reside in the groom's new home just completed on Long Beach avenue, Freeport. They will be "at home" after October 15.

THOMPSON HIGH MAN ON ASSEMBLY TICKET

Lloyd Thompson, of Westfield, was high man on the Republican Assembly ticket at the Union county primaries on Tuesday, receiving 7,486 votes. He was endorsed by the Progressive and the Local Option forces. He received 3,217 more votes than L. V. Hoagland, of Elizabeth, who was high man on the Progressive ticket. Louis McLaughlin, of Elizabeth, led the Democratic ticket, getting 6,542 votes, and running but 944 votes behind Thompson. Messrs. Brodhead, Morris and McLoughlin polled more votes on the Democratic ticket than did Meisel, Schwartz and Wurfel on the Republican ticket.

The vote at the Republican primaries for the Assembly nomination was as follows: Brodhead, D., 6,438; Morris, D., 6,448; McLoughlin, D., 6,542; Hoagland, R., 4,269; Meisel, R., 5,487; Schwartz, R., 5,973; Thompson, R., 7,486; Wurfel, R., 3,439. This includes the disputed first district in Westfield, which is still doubtful.

ELECTION EXCITEMENT CAUSED HIS DOWNFALL.

Samuel Goff, who has been arraigned before Judge William N. Runyon in the city court several times within the past year for being drunk was again before him this morning on the old charge.

After explaining to the judge that he had been electioneering and that because he did not get the usual amount of sleep he was tired and the small amount of liquor he had imbibed went to his head. He promised the judge to take the pledge for a year and will have to present the signed document to the court tomorrow morning.

Union County Democratic chairman who will be selected at the Fifth District Democratic convention as the party's Candidate for Congress.

OPPOSITION TO CORIELL

George W. V. Moy Being Urged to Become Independent Mayoralty Candidate.

NAMED BY THE DEMOCRATS.

Defeated at the Republican Primaries by 480 Votes He is Pressed to Be Citizens' Candidate.

Rumors to the effect that an Independent or Citizens' ticket would be put in the field for the mayoralty stirred the politicians today. That there is trouble ahead for Former Sheriff B. Frank Coriell, the nominee of the Republican primaries, is the belief expressed by the knowing ones. Pressure is being brought to bear on George W. V. Moy, Progressive, who was Mr. Coriell's opponent at the primaries, by some Republicans, as well as the Democrats, to get him to enter the lists.

At the Democratic primaries, Mr. Moy received 57 votes, while his closest opponent, DeWitt C. Ivins, a Democrat, obtained but 22. This makes Mr. Moy the Democratic choice. There are many precedents for a successful Republican candidate for nomination accepting the Democratic nomination. Mayor Fisk did so and others have. But there is no precedent here, it is said, of an unsuccessful candidate for a mayoralty nomination, accepting a Democratic nomination.

There were 2,652 votes cast for mayor at the Republican primaries and Moy was beaten by 480 votes. He had the Progressive endorsement. Coriell was supported generally by the organization leaders. The latter carried nine of the districts, Moy capturing the Second district of the Third yard, and also getting a majority in the Third ward.

FUNERAL SERVICES OF MRS. JOHN W. KIRKNER.

The funeral service of Mrs. John W. Kirkner was held from the late home on West Seventh street, at 2:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon and was largely attended by relatives and friends. Rev. Elory Bowers, curate of Grace church, assisted by Rev. C. L. Goodrich, pastor of the Congregational church, officiated.

During the service a quartet from Clinton Commandery, K. T., of Brooklyn, sang "Lead Kindly Light," "Nearer My God, to Thee," "Crossing the Bar," and "Heaven is My Home." There was a large display of floral tributes. The burial was in Hillside cemetery and the bearers, friends and neighbors, were William Robinson, Wilbur Rogers, Frank Weeks, George H. Batchelor, Chas. A. Rice and Thomas F. Hylan.

Peddled Watches.

With pockets full of watches Isaac Jackson and Isaac Frank, both of whom claimed Bay Way, near Rahway, as a residence, were arraigned this morning on a charge of peddling without a license. A conductor of the Public Service trolley claimed that Jackson had attempted to sell him a watch on the car yesterday morning. On their promise to get out of town and refrain from attempting to sell their wares here the two young men were allowed to go by Judge Runyon.

The original New York company will be seen, with William Courtney in the leading role. It will be the aim of the management to present at least one of the first class New York attractions here once a week throughout the season and at other times produce the best plays by the local stock company.

Reiber—Joseph.

Miss Mathilda P. Reiber, of New York, and Harry T. Joseph, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen B. Joseph, of the borough, were married last evening at the home of the bride's parents. Rev. John Mapleson, a New York pastor, officiated. The bride is a sister of Mrs. Charles M. Dolliver, of the borough. The groom holds a position at the First National Bank.

Begins His Eleventh Season.

William Holmes, of Arlington avenue, well-known in local musical circles, today begins his eleventh season as a teacher of singing at his studio in the Babcock building. Mr. Holmes has been a baritone soloist at the First Baptist church for many years and has had great success as a teacher. His advertisement appears in another part of The Daily Press.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Bradford and children, Marcus and Charles Bradford, of Stebbins place, have returned from a two months' stay at Camp New Verna, Sabael, the Adirondacks.

GEORGE VOEHL WEDS MISS CARRIE BECHTLE

Miss Carrie Bechtle, daughter of Fred Bechtle, Jr., of West Second street, and George Voehl, of Verdon street, the borough, were married at 6:30 o'clock last night by Rev. Dr. Charles M. Anderson, pastor of the First M. E. church. The ceremony was performed at Dr. Anderson's home on Central avenue.

Miss Tina Voehl, sister of the groom, was the bridesmaid and Frank Merritt, of this city, was best man. The bride was gowned in white net over satin, and carried a bouquet of bride roses.

Following the ceremony the couple left in Mr. Voehl's automobile for a trip, which will include a visit to White Lake, N. Y. Upon their return they will reside on Verdon street, the borough.

Mr. Voehl is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Voehl, of Grove street, and for many years was engaged in the bakery business on West Front street.

MRS. KRAFT PAYS THE FREIGHT TO RICHMOND

Jealousy inspired Mrs. Thomas Kraft, of East Third street, to denounce her husband, according to evidence brought before Judge William N. Runyon this morning, but she relented enough to produce the necessary money to pay the carfare of her alleged rival to Richmond, Va. The parties to the trouble are colored and it is alleged by Mrs. Kraft that ever since last January Susie Elliott, a young woman from Richmond has caused trouble in her home.

William G. DeMeza represented Kraft in the city court this morning and elicited the information from the witnesses called that Kraft was not guilty of anything reprehensible and in fact had always been a model husband. Mrs. Kraft's idea seemed to be that the only obstacle to her continued happiness was the deportation of the Elliott woman. This was easily accomplished when Mrs. Kraft produced the ten dollars necessary to pay the railroad fare of the woman accused of alienating her husband's affections.

Kraft has lived in Plainfield for several years and has always borne a good reputation. He was formerly janitor of the Park avenue Baptist church and is now engaged in landscape gardening.

At the Republican primaries Charles N. Fowler received 3,948; Franklin Murphy, 912; Stokes, 457. McDermit, Democrat, got 318.

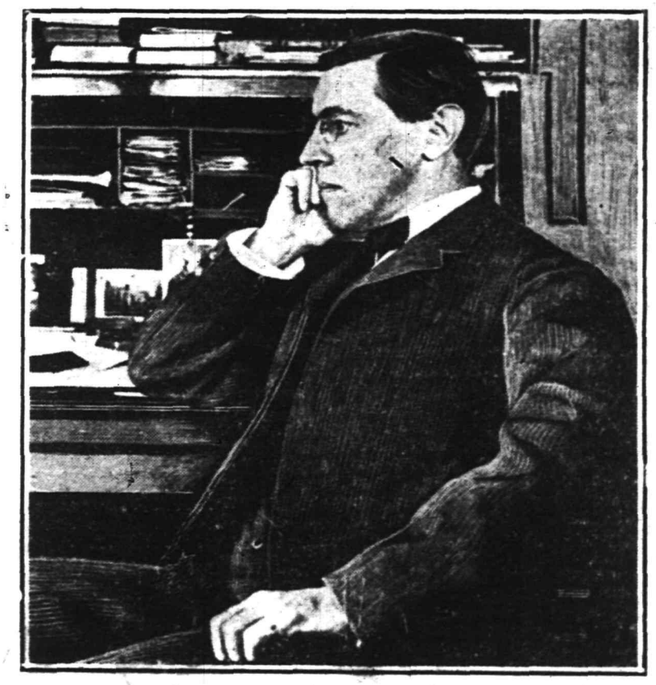
Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., will meet tonight and receive several applications for membership.

PICK WOODROW WILSON FOR THE GOVERNORSHIP

Princeton's President Likely Choice of Democratic State Convention Today.

The Democratic State convention opened shortly after noon today in the Taylor Opera house in Trenton with delegates to the number of 1,400 present. It was apparent at the outset that the scholarly Dr. Woodrow Wilson, president of Princeton



Dr. Woodrow Wilson.

University, would in all probability be nominated for Governor on the first ballot. James B. Nugent, the State chairman, called the convention to order and James R. Hardin, of Newark, presided. William K. Devereux, of Asbury Park, was appointed secretary.

Clarence Cole, of Atlantic City, placed the name of Woodrow Wilson before the convention with a speech which brought the entire body of men to its feet in cheers for the scholarly man. After the speech John A. Montgomery, of Trenton, placed the name of Frank S. Katzenbach, of Trenton, before the convention, immediately after which Judge Murphy placed the name of Jersey City's Mayor in nomination. Mayor Wittpenn's name was reecived with cheers, but they were faint in comparison with those which had preceded. Peter Daly, of New Brunswick, called the attention of the convention to the splendid character and the abilities of George S. Silzer, of Middlesex, and placed his name before the convention.

Only a few minutes were needed by the Democratic State committee last night to organize the convention preliminaries, but more than two hours were devoted to the construction of a platform. A tentative draft of the platform was drawn by Chairman Nugent and over two hours were devoted to a discussion of its provisions. Assemblyman Mark Sullivan, of Jersey City, the minority leader for three years, was present in the capacity of adviser. A public utilities measure is believed to be the hook on which the Democrats hope to hang their hopes; direct nominations of candidates for Governor and Congressional places, with an approval of the present laws relating to the choosing of United States Senators.

According to Chairman Nugent Dr. Wilson has been, ever since his name was first mentioned as a possible candidate for the governorship, gaining in favor among the Democrats all over the State and he declared his belief that Dr. Wilson would be able to defeat any nominee of the Republicans.

James C. Connelly was chosen by the Union county delegates as chairman of their delegation at their caucus, with J. W. Crane as vice-president. Edward Nugent, of Elizabeth, was named for the committee on resolutions; Benjamin C. Mayham, on rules; W. N. Collier, on permanent organization. At the Somerset county caucus Colonel Nelson Dungan was named as chairman, with S. S. Swackhamer vice-president; for the committee on rules, Joseph Fields, of Bound Brook, was selected; credentials, E. B. Bowers, of Bernardsville. Somerset county favored the candidates by the following votes: Silzer, 18; Wilson, 7; Katzenbach, 5; Harrigan, 1.

The optimism that prevailed

TIZ acts at once and makes tired, aching, swollen feet remarkably fresh and sore proof.

It's the sure remedy you know for everything that gets the matter with your feet. It's for sore feet and for sweaty, bad-smelling feet, and for corns, callouses and bunions, too.

"For years I have been troubled with sore and tender feet; suffered intense pains. Have had the assistance of physicians without relief. I bought a box of TIZ, which worked a perfect cure, as it has with a great many of my friends. I would not be without it. All it requires is to be known to be universally used." A. F. Dreutzer, Chicago.

TIZ is not a powder. Powders and other foot remedies clog up the pores. TIZ draws out all poisonous exudations which bring on soreness of the feet, and is the only remedy that does. TIZ cleans out every pore and glorifies the feet—your feet.

You'll never limp again or draw up your face in pain and you'll forget about your corns, bunions and callouses. You'll feel like a new person.

AMONG OUR NEIGHBORS

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

The primary elections in the borough were not exciting although the residents of Dunellen were deeply interested in results as may be seen by the number of them on North avenue Tuesday night and early Wednesday morning. The returns for the borough came in at an early hour but the crowd that waited until the wee small hours was interested in the fight for the nomination for Congressman in the Fifth district.

In the local offices there was only one real contest, that being in the race for the nomination for Democratic candidate for the Common Council. Peter Staats was left far in the rear, Louis Schneider and W. W. Walters being the favored ones. August C. Streitwolf was defeated in the contest for the nomination for Democratic candidate for the Assembly.

The entertainment committee of the Christian Endeavor Society of the Presbyterian church will hold a meeting tomorrow night at the home of Lewis T. Churchhill on Washington avenue, to plan for a social and entertainment, which is to be given by the society in the near future.

The vote, which James E. Martine received from the Democrats of Dunellen for the nomination for candidate for the senatorship, shows the popularity of the "farmer orator" in the borough. Mr. Martine was given every Democratic vote excepting two in Dunellen.

The committee on nominations for officers of the Christian Endeavor Society of the First Baptist church of New Market has been appointed by the president, Walter Nelson, as follows: Frank Smalley, George Hadley and Rev. G. H. Gardner.

Walter G. Runyon has returned from Atlantic City, where he has been spending the past week. Mr. Runyon attended the firemen's convention in that city yesterday and says that the affair was a most successful one.

Edmund Stokes seemed to be the choice of the borough Republicans for the nomination for U. S. Senator, although he only received 18 votes against 13 for Fowler and 10 for Murphy.

Principal Glazier, of the New Market school, who lives on North avenue, has been spending a few days in Pennsylvania.

The Misses Amy and Jessie Haynes have been entertaining a young lady friend from Nyack, N. Y.

Mrs. Agnes Randolph, of Piscataway, is recovering from an attack of sciatic rheumatism.

CHRISTIAN FIELD

The Ladies' Christian Work Society, of Trinity Reformed church, will hold a peach festival in the lecture room of the church, Thursday night, September 22, the proceeds to be for the benefit of the carpet fund.

With the return on Sunday of Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, of the First Baptist, and Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, all the Plainfield pastors will have returned to their work for the fall and winter months.

TALL CEDARS TO MEET.

Will Hold Their Annual Session at Atlantic City.

Atlantic City, Sept. 15.—September 30 has been fixed as the date for the annual Arbor day of the Tall Cedars of Lebanon and Atlantic City, where the first Arbor day was celebrated last year, has again been selected as the place.

The supreme forest's outing committee, which consists of the supreme tall cedar and the grand tall cedar of each lodge, met at the Trenton House Tuesday evening and things were put into motion for the second annual Arbor day. All arrangements were not made, nor were details thought of, but the general scope of the celebration was discussed with much spirit.

A committee consisting of Arthur Wright, of Atlantic City, chairman; J. Wirt Willis, of Wilmington; C. Fowler Cline, of Wenonah; John S. Broughton, of this city, and Edward H. Flagg, of Riverton, was appointed to carry out the plans as outlined by the general committee, and in fact do everything it thought necessary to make the celebration a success.

The Cedars call their annual outing an arbor day, as that name carries out the idea of the order's title, and furthermore the arbor day is always a day on which a number of saplings are planted in the Cedar nursery.

GOLF.

The members of the Plainfield Country Club will engage Saturday in a "watfest" or elimination contest for a cup offered by Stuart H. Patterson, the details of which were explained a few days ago. The play will be for both classes, A and B, each one receiving two-thirds of his regular handicap, strokes to be taken at holes as indicated on "Table of Odds."

The play for the club championship in golf will begin at the Plainfield Country Club, Saturday, September 24, with a qualifying round at 18 holes, medal play, the first sixteen to compete at match play for the championship, and the second sixteen at 18 holes, match play, handicap, for a special prize. There will also be a prize for the winner of the beaten eight in the first sixteen.

The Park Golf Club golf team is planning to play a match with the Colonia Golf Club team, on the local course, Saturday, and a return match at Colonia the following Saturday. The Parks have a number of good players from which a strong team can be selected, and it is possible that several inter-club matches will be arranged this fall.

Owing to the death of Francis deLary Hyde, one of its active members, the Park Golf Club course was closed on Saturday, but regular competitions will be resumed this week.

The dinners and luncheons served by Superintendent John Hilton at the Plainfield Country Club are as popular as ever, and the club is the scene of many delightful social affairs during the week.

INVENT MONOPLANE THAT CAN'T CAPSIZE

Monoplane success is believed to be solved in the machine which the inventors, Gustave A. Brachausen and Henry Albisser, of Rahway, announce finished after six months' labor, was placed on exhibition yesterday. Both men are confident that it will be a success from the first flight, scheduled to take place in two weeks.

The new idea is in that the weight of the operator and the machinery is below the wings and the means of procuring stability is obtained by departure from the customary methods. By means of the steering wheel the operator will wholly direct every move. A movement of the wheel, the makers claim, will completely controvert any caprice of the wind.

Cables guiding the wings are connected with the wheel thus enabling the operator to readily right the machine.

"It is the same plan as that by which a bird flies," said Mr. Brachausen. "The wings extend from the upper part of the bird, leaving the weight wholly under the wings. This is the idea of our machine, together with the method of securing perfect equilibrium. By a simple act of the operator the wings are controlled absolutely and the machine consequently cannot capsize.

"This is a great point, for probably the greatest cause of accidents to monoplanes has been exactly this, the difficulty in having the machine sail smoothly. In other machines there is grave danger when the machine becomes tilted."

Concerning another advantage of their machine, Mr. Albisser said:

"It will not collapse if the motor gets out of order, but the position of the operator will enable the machine to float to the ground as gently as a parachute."

The length of the prospective machine is thirty-two feet and the two front and main wings each are sixteen feet. The surface is 204 square feet, fifty-four more than that of the monoplane in which Bleriot crossed the English Channel. The weight is 325 pounds. The frame is constructed of spruce and Roebling cables are used throughout, except in holding the framework together, where piano wire is used. The propeller is six feet long. The power is obtained from a 12-horsepower motor, but it is not unlikely that the inventors will install another before venturing aloft. In fact, they are contemplating using a larger motor.

The machine is on exhibition in a tent near Monroe street, on the banks of the Rahway River.

Earl Lynn, of Grant avenue, has been removed to Muhlenberg Hospital for treatment for typhoid fever.

Mr. and Mrs. P. I. Minton, of East Fifth street, who have been spending a week of their vacation at Red Bank, are now visiting at Long Branch for a week.

Mr. and Mrs. Leslie R. Stewart, who have been on their honeymoon in Atlantic City for the past week will return to this city to go to housekeeping at 1219 Lenox avenue next week.

The regular monthly business meeting of the Baraca and Philathea classes of the Temple Baptist church was held Tuesday night in their respective class rooms at 8 o'clock. Matters of routine nature were transacted and a social followed.

FOWLER IS SILENT REGARDING DEFEAT.

Elizabeth Sept. 15.—Fatigued by his strenuous political campaign and probably disheartened by his first defeat since 1895 Congressman Charles N. Fowler retired about 6 o'clock last night after refusing to discuss even a single point of Tuesday's primaries. Mr. Fowler was asked to whom he attributed his defeat, but he refused to answer.

There is a large dark cloud hanging over the local insurgent camp tonight. The optimistic Fowlerites were positive that their man would make a good showing in this city, and the Congressman himself thought he would get no less than half the delegates.

Fowler was turned down in the lower section of the city. He received one delegate from the Second district of the First Ward and one from the Second district of the Fifth Ward. The Ninth, Tenth and Eleventh gave him one apiece and the Twelfth gave him two. It was conceded before yesterday that Fowler would carry the uptown wards. His defeat there comes as a surprise even to the machine men.

Another defeat for the insurgents is that of Louis V. Hoagland and Lester E. Wurfel, candidates for Assembly. They are Fowler men.

PICK WOODROW WILSON

among those who were fighting to secure the nomination of Frank S. Katzenbach, Jr., as the Democratic candidate for Governor, which was very marked all day yesterday, waned materially as evening wore away and it was found that many delegates who had been counted as anti-Wilson were slipping into the hands of the Smith-Nugent faction. At midnight, after a careful canvass of the situation by one of the most sagacious of the Katzenbach leaders, it was conceded that only about 700 delegates could then be depended upon to line up against the plan to nominate Wilson. This number, it was further conceded, would probably be reduced this morning when the Hudson and Essex delegates arrived on the scene and presented a big front for the college president. Delegates that were last night counted as anti-Wilson were expected to drift into the Wilson camp before the convention got down to the actual business of nominating a candidate.

Both Senator Smith and State Chairman Nugent were positive at midnight that Wilson would be nominated on the first ballot.

In an effort to stem the tide Wilsonward, a conference of the anti-Wilson men was held early in the evening. This meeting took place in the office of Erwin E. Marshall, chairman of the Mercer county Democratic executive committee, and was attended by several of the leaders who favored the nomination of Katzenbach, and also by Senator Geo. Silzer, of Middlesex, and Mayor Otto Wittpenn, of Jersey City, both of whom are avowed candidates for the nomination. There was a tacit agreement at this conference that the Katzenbach, Silzer and Wittpenn delegates should stand together against the nomination of Wilson. The understanding was that after the first ballot, if Wilson did not then have a majority, all those opposed to him should center upon an effort to nominate the man who received the highest vote among his opponents. This plan was supposed to favor Katzenbach.

At midnight another conference took place in which State Chairman Nugent participated.

In the determination to get in close touch with influential delegates from all sections of the State as fast as they arrived in Trenton, Former United States Senator James Smith, Jr., the chief backer of the Wilson boom, arrived in town early yesterday afternoon and took up his headquarters in Room 100 in the Trenton House, from which spot he has directed many Gubernatorial battles with more or less success during the past twenty years.

Accompanying Mr. Smith was Col. George B. M. Harvey, editor of Harper's Magazine, who is taking a very active interest in promoting the candidacy of Dr. Wilson.

Mr. Smith soon found that Trenton was a hot-bed of Katzenbach sentiment, State Committeeman Charles M. Gallagher, of Mercer, being the only pro-Wilson man to make his presence felt. Mr. Gallagher told Senator Smith that it was a hopeless task to try to get any Wilson support out of Mercer, but that he (Gallagher) would do what he could personally to aid the wishes of the Smith-Nugent faction. During the rest of the afternoon Mr. Gallagher was at the call of Senator Smith and was instrumental in securing several prominent Trentonians calling on the Senator. But practically all of those were willing to pay their social respects to the Senator firmly told him that he could not have any of their political influence in behalf of the college president's candidacy.

As delegates from other sections of the State began to arrive in the evening many of them called at Room 100, but it was noticeable that several of the "old guard" who have heretofore stood loyally by Senator Smith were not giving him their accustomed support. At times Room 100 was almost deserted.

The Katzenbach boomers were thoroughly organized and were very energetic during the evening in rallying support for their favorite. They maintained headquarters in the Hotel Sterling which were thronged with Trenton Democrats, while other Katzenbach men acted as scouts in buttonholing delegates wherever they might be found. Mr. Katzenbach attended a meeting of the State committee and at its conclusion held a reception in the Hotel Sterling, where he received a large number of friends.

Surrounded by a group of faithful adherents, Senator George Sulzer kept "open house" in a suite of rooms in the Trenton House. Former Senator Hinchcliffe, of Paterson, who is an ardent advocate of the Middlesex Senator's ambition to be Governor, was keeping tabs on how things were going and declared that Silzer would have at least 200 votes to begin with in the convention. Senator Silzer said himself that he believes that the convention would not nominate Wilson, but that its choice would fall upon either himself, Katzenbach or Mayor Wittpenn. His idea was that if it was found that Wilson's nomination was impossible the support of the Davis Hudson county delegates would be thrown to him.

The Woman Who Sews Deserves the Best Sewing Machine that is Made

It scarcely requires a moment's thought to realize the almost infinite superiority of the rotary motion of the Shuttle, over the vibrating motion. The former runs round and round without any stop or jar. The vibrating shuttle starts and stops twice in every stitch.

Here are the reasons why the Standard is best—why it saves time, work and worry—all proven by the most thorough test:

THE "STANDARD" ROTARY SHUTTLE SEWING MACHINE

1. Makes 175 stitches while others make 100.
2. Runs 75 per cent. lighter than old-style machines.
3. Makes less noise than any other machine.
4. Is the most rapid sewer—makes two motions of the treadle to three of other machines, in sewing the same length seam.
5. Tensions not changed by change of speed, size of thread, thickness of goods or length of Stitch.
6. Has the biggest bobbin of any lock stitch machine. Holds 100 yards of No. 80 cotton.
7. Does not break thread when machine is run backward.
8. Feed motions are positive—no springs used—hence machine will feed over all thicknesses of goods and seam without "chewing" the cloth, no matter what the length of stitch.
9. Will wear twice as long as other lock-stitch machines.
10. Best set of attachments in any machine, self adjusting, and fastened to the presser bar in place of the foot.

ONLY ONE REASON for buying any other machine, viz: It may cost less at first.

THINK OF IT—with exactly the same speed of the treadle, and lighter work, you take a Hundred and Seventy-five stitches with the Standard(while any other machine is making only a hundred—and the work is done more even and true.

YOU CAN BUY THE STANDARD ROTARY ON OUR EASY PAYMENT CLUB PLAN. $5.00 CASH AND $5.00 A MONTH.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

Miss Carry Lee, who is now the leading woman in Proctor & Sanderson's local stock company, will be succeeded at the Plainfield theatre on Monday, September 26, by Miss Ilka Diehl, of Cleveland, O., who has had an extensive experience in many high-class productions. The management is constantly planning to improve the company and bring it up to a high standard. Miss Diehl comes from a long line of theatrical folk, her mother, Anna Franosch, being a prominent member of Augustin Daly's company for years, and her grandfather, Adolph Franosch, was a baritone of note. Miss Diehl appeared last summer with Charles Dixon in "Three Twins" and "Bright Eyes," and more recently has had the lead in the production of "Alma, Where do You Live," which has been a great success. She has also appeared a great deal in German stock productions. For some time she was with Vaughn Glaser.

—Neuman Bros. will have for tomorrow, fancy Bartlett pears for canning, and housekeepers should take advantage of this opportunity.

MAN STRANGELY MISSING.

Thought Lawrence, of Dover, Might Be Badly Injured.

Dover, Sept. 15.—Augustus Lawrence, of Millbrook, doing business in Dover, began a search last night for his brother, David, who has been missing since Saturday. The missing man, who lived about half a mile from here, left his family Saturday night, driving a spirited horse to Dover, and it is possible that the animal might have run away and injured him seriously.

Lawrence, who is about 47 years old, is an iron worker.

—The Spicer Universal Joint Manufacturing Co. has laid off its night shift until next Monday. The men had made a request for extra pay for night work and as the company was short of forging material it was decided to lay off the night gang for a week. New stock will be on hand next week and the entire force will be put on.

PLAINFIELD AND FANWOOD.

Mrs. H. C. Smith and children, of Dunellen, have been visiting Mrs. Smith's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Louis B. Coddington, of Park avenue.

Lack of enthusiasm on the part of its Democratic friends give the local candidate on the Republican ticket a walkover Tuesday.

Two stage loads of young people from here and Plainfield attended the dance held last night at Schott's hall, Berkeley Heights.

James Corrona, of Stanbury avenue, has resigned his position as head painter at the Aeolian Company works, Garwood.

Mrs. Edward L. Hand and Miss Gertrude Smalley spent yesterday enjoying a sail up the Hudson as far as Newburgh, N. Y.

Edward L. Hand has been attending the Firemen's Relief Convention at Atlantic City as delegate from the local association.

Mr. and Mrs. George Harper, of Front street, have been entertaining Mr. and Mrs. Richardson, of Bound Brook.

Twilight Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., meets tonight in the Library rooms.

MILLIONS OF IMMIGRANTS.

Washington, Sept 15.—Since 1901 9,771,512 aliens have arrived in the United States. The races represented have been classified into forty subdivisions by the statisticians of the Immigration Bureau. The Southern Italians lead all in numbers, with a total of 1,761,948, with the Jews second, at 976,263. Polish homeseekers were third in number, with 873,660. The Pacific islanders were the least in number. Only 661 of them have immigrated in the ten years.

The amount of money possessed by each alien at landing averages $22, but some amazing individual differences are evident. The Spanish-Americans were richest, averaging $104 each, and the Coreans were poorest, with only $7 each. Pacific islanders averaged $53 and the Japanese $41. The Jews are among the poorest. Their average was $13.

The combined normal population of Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, Delaware and New eJrsey is not equal to the immigration in the last ten years.

GEN. SADLER FILES PLEA.

Tries to Get Rid of Suit by Brientnall.

Trenton, Sept. 15.—Adjutant-General Wilbur F. Sadler, Jr., has filed a plea in the case of Brigadier-General R. Heber Brientnall, retired, to be reinstated in his old office because the Vredenburgh act has been upset by the Court of Errors and Appeals on the ground of unconstitutionality.

General Sadler tells the court that in his opinion there is no just cause for the complaint of General Brientnall and he cites the order of retirement under which General Brientnall was retired, saying this order was written at the dictation of General Brientnall, as was also circular No. 1, announcing to the National Guard his retirement.

He contends that General Brientnall has been legally retired, and holds that he (Sadler) should not be impeached or put to more trouble in defending this suit in consequence. This is not an answer to the information filed by General Brientnall, but is a plea to get rid of the entire suit without more than this formal legal answer.

Funeral of Mrs. Crowley.

The funeral services of Mrs. Mary Crowley, who resided at 940 West Fourth street, were held this morning at St. Mary's church, where a solemn requiem mass wass aid. The interment will be made in New Hampshire. The bearers were: Edward Coffey, M. F. Coffey, Morris Kennedy, Michael Regan, Dennis O'Keefe, Michael Watson.

Appointed Clinical Assistants.

Dr. A. H. Dundon, of the borough, and Dr. H. A. Corbusier, of Park avenue, have been appointed clinical assistants at Muhlenberg Hospital by the Board of Governors.

THE RED DAB OF DEATH.

Tragic Mark on the Steel Skeleton of the Skyscraper.

"See that big blob of scarlet paint?" said the engineer as he pointed to a girder high up in the skeleton of the new skyscraper. "That red spot means that one of the men working on the building was killed by the girder sweeping him off the structure while being put in position."

The visitor craned his neck and saw a rough patch of vermilion paint on one of the floor girders up on the sixteenth story. "It must be a dangerous life," he said to his engineering friend.

"Yes. Those men up there are working under the chance of instant death at any moment. They'll walk along the topmost girder, 300 feet above the sidewalk, a little path of slippery iron five inches wide—and will lean outward against the wind. You or I couldn't do it for a second.

"Now and again there's an accident. A chap slips. A worker gets hit by a swinging girder and flung off. Another man takes an incautious step and falls off into eternity. The men working near by do their best to get at him if he manages to grab the girder he's falling from, and there are some swift and reckless races with death to get to their comrade at any cost in the five or ten seconds allowed them while strong fingers are sliding away from a slippery beam flange. If the worst happens and the man falls in spite of their efforts, then they apply the dab of red paint, and the ironworkers call it a day. They don't speak much of the man that is gone, as a rule. He's soon forgotten. The men consider it fate.

"You'd think, by the way," went on the engineer, "that the higher up these men worked the more careful they'd become. They aren't particularly careful, but they do guard against the hypnotism of height. One of the men working on a high girder gets paralyzed now and again by a sudden fear that holds him motionless and still on his iron beam.

"The men look out for this sort of thing, and the remedy is to distract his attention by a rough blow on the back or in some cases by exciting him to anger through any means in their power. When the man gets fighting mad he is freed from the paralysis of terror or whatever you may choose to call it. He gets up from his girder to make a rush for the other fellow to do him up, and the moment he is safe he is restrained by the other men.

"Whenever you see a skyscraper framework," concluded the engineer, "each dab of scarlet paint on the iron means that some man has come to his death. Every skyscraper and every bridge is the monument to some little group of unknown workers, laboring at dizzy heights and dallying with sudden death as part of their day's work."—New York Press.

A Poverty Stricken Queen.

Partly owing to the fact that she was wedded to an avaricious king and partly because she was generous with the little money allowed her Elizabeth of York, queen of Henry VII., spent but a small amount for dress. She was very often in debt, and the sums she spent were ridiculously small, 20 shillings ($5) being the greatest amount expended at any one time. Her gowns were mended and turned, and new waists were made for them, as is shown by the record of bills paid to her tailor. These bills prove that she wore her clothes for a long time, for her gowns were obliged to be newly hemmed, and also that, though a princess of the great house of Plantagenet, she wore shoes costing but 24 cents, which were decorated with tin buckles.

Made It Clear.

A senator, speaking of the advantages of clearness of statement, told a story about a restaurant to illustrate his meaning. He said:

"This restaurant advertised a dinner, but not in the loose way many other restaurants advertise dinner as between certain hours, whether there would be enough dinner to last between those hours or not. No. The man who runs that restaurant has a proper knowledge of his responsibilities and of the exact use of the language. He advertised, 'Chicken pie, 25 cents; from 12:30 until gone.'"—Saturday Evening Post.

A Cynical Statesman.

The saying that "all men have their price" is ascribed to Sir Robert Walpole. While speaking of a faction in parliament which bitterly opposed some of his measures he said, "You see with what zeal and vehemence these gentlemen oppose me, and yet I know the price of every man in this house except three."

Of some who called themselves patriots he said: "Patriots! I could raise fifty of them within four and twenty hours. I have raised many in one night. 'Tis but to refuse an unreasonable demand and up springs a patriot."

A Dilemma.

Mr. Crimsonbeak—A hunter in Newfoundland who has lost his bearings often finds himself in a fog but has no difficulty in finding the way, as, owing to the constant west winds, the tops of all the trees point east. Mrs. Crimsonbeak—But suppose he doesn't want to go east?—Yonkers Statesman.

Married For Money.

"Do you mean to say that you married for money?"

"In a way I did. I got married because I couldn't afford to stay engaged any longer."—Cleveland Leader.
